Yugoslav ships appears to be technically true. As a part of our general program in Eastern Europe, we have been trying to keep Russia from getting COMPLETE control of shipping on the Danube, which is the heart of the Balkans transportation system.

WASHINGTON dispatch says: "Diplomats here see in Tito's quick submission to the U. S. ultimatum a sign that the nations in the Russian sphere of influence have decided against forcing AT LEAST NOW—a major showdown that might shake if not wreck the machinery for preserving peace."

THE big point involved is that for the present—while we have a store of atom bombs all ready for use, and nobody else has—time is on Russia's side and AGAINST us.

BESIDES, the Dardanelles issue (in comparison to which Yugoslavia is a mere speck of dust) is casting its menacing shadow increasingly over European events.

WHAT is the game? Well, the impression is growing that TWO SYSTEMS—one communist, the other free enterprise—are hardening into shape. The communist system will be led by Russia, the free enterprise system by the United States and Britain, with the United States the NUMBER ONE leader.

IN China, what is described as a "last chance" compromise plan is put out by Chiang. Under this plan, all disputed areas would be put under American trusteeship, pending a final settlement with the communists.

Both are jockeying for position and power in the rivalry that will ensue when the lines are finally drawn and set. That is pure guesswork, but events tend to support it.

GENERAL MARSHALL is still on the job in China, doing what he can to keep the smolder-

THE FISH PACKER TUNE

By CHARLES V. STANTON

In a recent editorial entitled "Need for Salmon Escapement," appearing in The Oregonian, Portland, the writer lauds Columbia river commercial fishermen for their acceptance, without protest, of a decision by the Oregon Fish Commission and Washington Department of Fisheries, denying request for a three-day extension of the fall fishing season.

There is perhaps an element of opinion among anglers which holds that the commercial fishery and its delegated representatives are without scruple in their approach to the problems of conservation. One hears a great deal of loose talk. The Oregonian suggests that sportsmen, from whom ranks the criticism of commercial interests largely is recruited, pattern their own code and conduct after the example of the commercial salmon fishery in this instance.

Fish packers, who conducted one of the most disgraceful "smear" campaigns ever known in Oregon, in connection with the 1942 "Steelhead Bill," are preparing a more subtle approach to their campaign against Bill 378, the Coastal Streams bill passed by the last legislature, and referred to the people at the November election upon petitions circulated by commercial fishing interests.

On the Umpqua river, for instance, studies conducted jointly by the Fish Commission and Game Commission have forced commercial fishermen to read the handwriting on the wall, insofar as the spring Chinook salmon are concerned. The count bears out the contention, so long advanced by conservationists, that the river has been almost entirely depleted of this species of fish.

Now the demand is being advanced that if nets are forced out of the river, the Chinooks also should be protected from anglers.

In a little more than 25 years sportsmen have seen their bag limit cut from an unlimited number of fish to 15. In some waters the limit is even less. Many once prolific fishing waters have been closed entirely, particularly tributary streams. Instead of complaining about restrictions, sportsmen, in many instances, have sponsored these conservation measures. Contrary to the implication contained in The Oregonian editorial writer's sly little "dig," the rank and file of sportsmen's organizations has been actively promoting conservation, even at the expense of their own recreation.

The necessity of imposing continually tightening restrictions upon angling was created by the insatiable greed of the commercial interests in fishing our streams to the point of extinction. Are we now to accept without remonstrance the theory that the sports angler must pay for the damage done by commercial fishermen?

As to the stand taken by Columbia river fishermen, we join with The Oregonian's editorial writer in commendation. But the Columbia river fishermen—not the packers—are the best conservationists in Oregon; their future livelihood depends on saving the Columbia river salmon, and they are fighting the packers as vigorously as are the sportsmen.

To group the Columbia river fishermen with the packing interests, as the "commercial fishery and its delegated representatives," is a reference to which we cannot but take exception. The interests of the fishermen and the sportsmen are identical—to save our fish from extinction. The packers have no interest other than profits and have vigorously opposed any and every conservation effort. Their new tune, "Make the Sportsmen Pay," to which The Oregonian's writer has given voice, albeit inadvertently, is one we expect to hear with increasing frequency until after the November election.

ing fires of civil war from breaking into a conflagration. Our stake in China USED TO BE a free Chinese people, liberated from the shackles of tradition and oppression, with whom we can trade to our mutual advantage.

Our stake NOW seems to be to prevent communism from spreading into China, thus gaining further strength for the rivalry between two world systems that appears to be taking shape.

Italian Treaty Preamble Drawn At Peace Huddle

PARIS, Aug. 23.—(AP)—The peace conference today accomplished its first actual work on a draft peace document. Nearly four weeks after the conference opened it adopted the first paragraph of the preamble of the Italian treaty.

This paragraph names the members of the conference who will be signatories. Its adoption was facilitated by withdrawal of a Yugoslav amendment which presumably intended to ask that Albania be included. The paragraph, as accepted, names all conference members, except Norway, as signatories to the Italian treaty.

The paragraph was passed in the Italian political and territorial committee, whose session was marked by the first appearance of Sen. Tom Connally in the American delegation. Progress bogged down on the second paragraph in a debate over the meaning of the words "declared," "undertook" and "unleashed."

The paragraph, as drafted by the Foreign Ministers Council, read that Italy had "declared a war of aggression." The Netherlands proposal amending this to "unleashed," the Dutch proposal also suggested changing the phrase "entered into war with" the Allies to "provoked a state of war with" the Allies.

The delegate said the nations favoring an easing of the proposed Italian peace treaty, drafted by the Big Four, would maintain that Italy should receive greater credit for aid given the Allies after the overthrow of Mussolini.

Nelson Dethroned In Golf Tourney

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 24.—(AP)—For the first time in the last seven events, no Byron Nelson was listed in the semi-finals of the National Professional Golfers' Association tournament today. It took 36 holes of a withering, see-saw quarterfinals match yesterday to dethrone the defending champion, when 207-pound Ed "Porky" Oliver of Wilmington, Del., turned the trick with a 1-up victory.

Nelson, who had predicted all week that a new champion would be crowned—and it won't be me—finally had his forecast borne out, but only after one of the most stubborn contests ever witnessed by many in the sizeable gallery. Instead, the 1946 champion will be one of the following: Oliver, Harold "Jug" McSpaden of Sanford, Me., Jimmy Demaret of Houston, Tex., or Ben Hogan, Hershey, Pa.

Yugoslavs Declare U. S. Illegally Holds Her Ships, Reported

LONDON, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Yugoslavia, warned only yesterday by the United States that she might be haled before the United Nations Security Council for disciplinary action, was reported today to have complained to the council that the United States was illegally holding a number of her ships. The Moscow radio, in a broadcast heard by the Soviet Monitor here, declared that Yugoslavia had alleged specifically that the United States refused to relinquish six Yugoslav passenger ships and other vessels now anchored in the upper Danube. (There was no immediate confirmation from United Nations quarters in New York or from any other sources concerning such a complaint by Yugoslavia.) The Moscow radio, quoting a Tass message from Belgrade, said: "Dr. Stampar, Yugoslav delegate and deputy chairman of the United Nations Economic and Social Council, has sent a letter to the secretary general of the United Nations asking for inclusion on the agenda for the next Security Council meeting on Aug. 23 of the question of the incorrect detention of passenger ships and other vessels. 'The other vessels are 16 tugs, 18 tankers, 119 barges, seven pontoons, one crane and four other objects. These goods were stolen by the Germans and are at present in the upper reaches of the Danube, in the American zones of Austria and Germany.'"

Truman's Budget Slash Stirs Ire Of Demo Leaders

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—(AP)—President Truman, who already has crossed verbal swords with Republicans over his budget revision, today faced a major row with some of his own party leaders over the same issue. The Democrats are aroused by a $300,000,000 slash they contend he ordered in expenditures for flood control and rivers and harbors project for the fiscal years 1947 and 1948.

Four key party members in congress issued a statement terming the presidential action "without either constitutional or statutory authority . . . and in defiance of the will of congress." They described it further as "an assumption of unwarranted and drastic power" and issued a call for a national protest meeting in New Orleans September 20. The four are: Senate President McKellar (D., Tenn.); Acting Chairman Overton (D., La.) of the Senate Commerce Committee; Chairman Mansfield (D., Texas) of the House Rivers and Harbors Committee; and Chairman Whittington (D., Miss.) of the House Flood Control Committee.

Columbia River Indians to Defy Ban on Fishing

THE DALLES, Ore., Aug. 22.—(AP)—Indians who have traditionally fished at Celilo Falls on the Columbia River without restriction, have agreed to halt commercial fishing from Aug. 26 to Sept. 10 but will continue to take salmon by spear and dipnet for their own use. Representatives of the Yakima, Warm Springs, Umatilla and Columbia River tribes voted to defy the Oregon-Washington closure order so far as fishing for their own food is concerned. Hook and line is the only equipment authorized under the ban.

E. Morgan Pryse, district Indian Service director, said yesterday he has confidence that the courts would uphold the Indian rights if any Indian were arrested. The tribal representatives were in favor of seeking a court test immediately to clarify their rights under an 1855 treaty which Warm Springs Indian federation leaders believe is being abrogated by the State Fish Commissions. T. Leland Brown, attorney for the Warm Springs federation said yesterday the Indians at Madras intended to fish despite state rulings.

Oregon's Shorn Wool Production Declines

CORVALLIS, Ore., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Oregon's 1946 shorn wool production will total 6,962,000 pounds, which is 17 per cent less than last year and 51 per cent below the average for the past 10 years, the Oregon State College extension service estimated today. The number of sheep in Oregon has dropped to an estimated 819,000 head shorn this year, a 15 per cent drop from last year. The shorn wool crop for the nation this year is expected to total 289,000,000 pounds, 7 per cent below last year, and 10 per cent below the average for the past 10 years.

Other Nation, Including Russia and Her Satellites, Live Up to Their Obligations

Sen. Guy Cordon and Rep. Homer Angell concurred in citing foreign affairs as the United States' major current issue. "There is no room for partisanism in their solution," both said. Morse said he would fly to Europe within two months to study problems personally. All three congressmen told a group of 800 that the close unity of Oregon's congressional delegation had astounded senators and representatives from other states.
