with Britain and America. It was he who secured American recognition from President Roosevelt and the U. S. senate back in 1933, after we had snooted bolshevik Russia for nearly a decade and a half.

He has been a strong advocate of full Russian participation in international bodies such as United Nations and has believed that communist Russia and the capitalist nations can reconcile their views and live in peace as neighbors.

EASING this last of her internationalists out of the picture is a pretty definite indication that the communists who run Russia have decided to go off the deep end for isolationism.

What that means can only be guessed, but the feeling is growing that it means isolation of COMMUNISM, led by Russia, from the capitalist (free enterprise) remainder of the world.

Time will tell what the results of that will be.

AS Yugoslavia pales for the moment as an "incident," the Dardanelles moves toward the center of the stage.

Turkey turns down flatly Russia's proposal that these strategic straits be made the private property of the BLACK SEA nations. (As spheres of influence are now drawn, Russia is the only Black Sea nation that counts. Therefore Russia's proposition amounts to making the Dardanelles a private Russian possession.)

The Ankara correspondent of the Associated Press reports that Turkey's reply to Russia "follows precisely the lines of earlier American, British and French notes REJECTING both Soviet penetration of the straits and her proposal to shut off control of them from all nations EXCEPT those of the Black sea."

That is to say, we and the British and the French are set to keep Russia out of the Mediterranean, and our friendly watchdog of the Dardanelles, Turkey, is standing pat (so far) for our side.

YOU can see readily enough why Yugoslavia fades into the background with this centuries-old struggle to keep Russia out of the Mediterranean coming to a head.

WITH all this heat and dust and smoke in the Balkans, INDIA has been more or less obscured as a world trouble spot. But something very interesting has happened there—interesting, but NOT reassuring.

Britain finally washed her hands of India and announced (months ago) that she is going to give the country back to the Indians (people of India). Whereupon it developed that each of the various factions of India didn't WANT independence unless IT could run the new shebang.

Hindus were suspicious of Moslems. Moslems were suspicious of Hindus. Every group was suspicious of every other group.

THE latest development is that Jawaharlal Nehru, head of the Hindu Congress party (India's most numerous faction) has been named to head a new interim government for the country, to take effect September 2.

The Moslems, apparently, are going to boycott the new interim government. The princes who run Indian states of their own, haven't said flatly what they are going to do.

A first-class mess seems to be in the making.

APPROACHING THE MAXIMUM

By CHARLES V. STANTON

Announcement that Douglas County's operating sawmills are cutting timber at almost double the rate recommended under sustained yield practice, may prove startling to many people who have not kept in touch with the very rapid rate of development in Douglas County. The analysis of current timber removal was made by the Roseburg district office of the O. & C. Revested Lands Administration and reported by J. E. Slattery, district forester. It lists 140 sawmills with an estimated cutting capacity of 700 million board feet per year, as compared to an allowable cut of 380 million board feet per year in the same general area.

The survey does not include mills in the lower Umpqua area, west from Elkton, nor in the Glendale district.

To those who are interested in seeing Douglas County's timber industry placed on a sustained yield basis, the report is somewhat alarming.

On the whole, however, the situation is not as critical as one might be led to believe, PROVIDING IT GETS NO WORSE.

We must remember that Douglas County has a large number of privately owned timber tracts which, because of their location, type of timber, and other factors, are not suitable for blocking with publicly owned timber in sustained yield operations. We have, too, a vast amount of ripe, mature timber which should be cut as soon as possible. Like any ripe crop, it should be harvested before it begins to deteriorate.

Our forestry officials estimate that we can support a much higher rate of cut for a number of years, while we are harvesting our mature timber, than will be possible once we have reached the sustaining level.

We need not be greatly concerned, therefore, with a moderate overcut at the present time. We have, on the other hand, almost reached the danger mark. Should new sawmilling operations continue to develop, we will be faced with one of two alternatives. Either we must abandon our sustained yield program entirely and allow the industry to cut off all available standing timber and then move on to some other locality—the practice which has been consistently followed across the continent—or we must insist that the operator who has not provided himself with timber to maintain a sustained yield operation, shall go out of business when his supply is exhausted.

Neither alternative is to our liking. No one wants to see a thriving industry forced out of operation, throwing its many workers out of employment. Nor do we want our timber resources destroyed and our towns left as ghosts of a once busy community as has been the experience of so many towns in the wake of the recklessly destructive timber industry.

Our chief hope lies in early development of processes for greater timber utilization. Important strides are being made in this field. As methods are developed to utilize materials now left in the woods or wasted in manufacture, we can more than double our production without increasing the number of trees removed.

If we can take tree tops, limbs and other small portions of a tree—the parts now left in the logging woods to be burned—and convert them into various types of building board or other products substituting for lumber, we can make one tree go further in the construction of a building, while, at the same time, we can convert chips, sawdust, slabs, into various marketable wooden products, or into plastics, rayon, adhesives, sugar, protein feeds, alcohol, etc.

We are not discouraging industry if we urge that sawmilling be kept within limits which will not destroy our resources, or, as an alternative, leave manufacturers stranded for lack of raw materials. If we can succeed in keeping our industry within bounds which will permit a perpetual cut of uniform annual volume, and, at the same time increase to its maximum the percentage of wood from a tree going into profitable use, we will have achieved the goal which will in the long run most benefit both the community and the industry.

LETTERS to the Editor

Pleads for Cleaner Roseburg, With Less Noise From Vehicles

This letter, I hope, will appeal to all residents of Roseburg and vicinity.

Our city of Roseburg is, naturally a city of beauty, well and attractively located on one of the most beautiful rivers in the United States. Do we appreciate its beauty and natural advantages? If we do, let us show it by trying to keep it clean.

I have heard visitors say: "Roseburg is such a lovely little city, if it were not so dirty and noisy." The streets, children's play park at the corner of Lane and Jackson streets, and Library park are "sights." Whole newspapers, paper bags, wrappings from various articles are blown hither and thither; broken bottles with dangerous, jagged pieces of glass are a menace to small children, pedestrians and automobile tires.

Talking with a young mother whose children play in the park before mentioned, she said: "I go up to the little park and pick up broken glass from it day after day. I am so afraid my children will be hurt and injured for life on numerous broken liquor bottles thrown there day and night."

Will the owners of those bottles kindly take them home with them and dispose of them properly?

When we attend the band concerts every Thursday evening and take newspapers to spread on the seats to protect our clothing, let's take them home with us and help the City Fathers, so that it will not be necessary for them to employ a man to clean the place up the following morning. It is very little for each one of us to do, and will save work for someone else and keep the papers off the street, which they eventually reach, blown by every passing breeze.

Let us take our theater ticket stub, gum, and candy bar wrappers home and not empty our pockets on premises which the owner tries to keep clean, and I am sure we will soon have a city that we can be proud of.

Now, about the noise. Is it necessary for all trucks, pickups, motorcycles and cars to start with the cutout open when leaving their parking places or driving through our city? I thought it was against the city's laws. Am I correct? Cannot we, with a little care, make less noise to the satisfaction of all residents and visitors?

MRS. MARIE FLINT McCALL,
Roseburg, Ore.

Ex-Governors, Editors Join in Sugar Appeal

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Six former Oregon governors and the editorial page editors of the two Portland newspapers have asked President Truman to direct OPA to grant Northwestern housewives an extra 10 pounds of sugar to save the region's bumper fruit crop.

The group said in a telegram to the President that it agreed with Oregon's National Democratic Committeeman Lew Wallace, who earlier appealed to OPA for the extra sugar so housewives could home-can the crop. The OPA rejected the appeal.

Junior Red Cross Girls of Roseburg Write of Training

Loraine Losee and Irene Trapolis, Junior Red Cross representatives of the Douglas County Chapter, writing home from Camp Celio, Nevada City, California, report that in spite of a heavy study schedule at the Junior Red Cross Student Leaders' Camp, they are finding time for the informal exchange of ideas and experiences with students from other chapters.

Ninety-seven boys and girls, representing five states and 56 Red Cross chapters, begin their day with 6:30 A.M. reveille, and follow a daily schedule of classes in first aid, water safety, accident prevention, home nursing, nutrition, and work on the various aspects of Junior Red Cross organization and program, with lights out at 9:30 P.M.

The classes are interspersed with supervised swimming and recreation and excellent meals, including mid-morning and mid-afternoon "snacks."

The camp faculty is composed of 15 national and chapter members who have specialized in the various phases of the Junior Red Cross program which they are teaching. The student body is divided into five groups, each group working on some special project in addition to general instruction on organization and Red Cross courses.

These groups rotate in taking responsibility for the operation of the camp for an entire day, including the publication of a camp paper and an evening campfire program of music, stunts, movies, and addresses by visitors from national headquarters and the U. S. Forest Service.

Miss Losee and Miss Tropolis say that as a result of this intensive training at the camp, and ideas received from fellow students, they hope to give some "practical assistance" in bringing about better understanding of and increased activity in Junior Red Cross work in the schools of Douglas County.

Air Milk Relay Keeps Baby Alive

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 26. —(AP) —A two-week-old baby, born prematurely in the desert town of Inyokern, is alive today because mothers' milk is flown daily from Los Angeles by a relay of naval aviators.

The American Red Cross supplies messengers who take ice-packed bottles from the mothers' milk bank at California hospital in Los Angeles to an airport at nearby Downey. There it is picked up by navy pilots and flown 110 miles to the U. S. naval test station dispensary at Inyokern. From hospital to hospital the run takes just one hour.

The baby, son of Marine Sgt. and Mrs. Charles Powers, weighed three pounds, 10 ounces at birth, and now tips the scales at four pounds, two ounces.

The Inyokern service is "special, but not unprecedented for us," says Mrs. Evelyn Shalda, clinic superintendent at the mothers' milk bank, which she says is the only one west of Chicago. The clinic has a 3,000-ounce refrigerator supply and furnished 100 ounces daily at Los Angeles general hospital.

Woman Accused of Yacht Theft to Aid Nazi POW

DOVER, Eng., Aug. 26. —(AP)— Mrs. Doris Blake was held today on a charge of stealing the yacht Lalun in which, police said, she crossed to France with an escaped German prisoner of war, Alexander Todt.

Todt, son of the German engineer who built many of the Nazis' military defenses, was captured aboard the yacht Wednesday at Calais, France.

"We took the yacht," police quoted Mrs. Blake as saying. "We were going to send the money back. It may sound crazy, but it's true."

She is 25 and the mother of two children.

Trailer Crushes Logger At Camas Valley Camp

COQUILLE, Ore., Aug. 26.—(AP) —A fractured neck vertebrae, a broken right leg, several cracked ribs and lesser injuries were suffered by J. W. Priest, 50, Coos county logger, when he was crushed Thursday night by a logging truck trailer at his logging area in Camas valley. The trailer was thrown against Priest after the last of a load of logs was dumped. His condition was reported serious at the Belle Knife hospital.

Time Enough

CHICAGO, Aug. 26. — (AP) — Lt. Carl Relli has had to amend his order setting a 30-second time limit on telephone calls between state policemen on duty and their wives.

The wives objected when Relli, with romantic sympathy for unwed members of his force, allowed one minute for conversations with new girl friends; two minutes to sweethearts, and two and one-half minutes to fiancees.

So now wives get 45 seconds.

RHEUMATISM and ARTHRITIS

I suffered for years and am so thankful that I am free from pain and able to do my work that I will gladly answer anyone writing me for information. Mrs. Anna Pautz, P.O. Box 825, Vancouver, Wash.

Black Market In Lumber Pierced

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—(AP) —Assistant Attorney General Theron L. Caudle said today the government "has broken into the channels through which lumber is being diverted from the building of seriously needed homes for veterans and their families."

Caudle referred to the indictment by a Los Angeles Federal Grand Jury yesterday of two West Coast lumber firms. He said they were charged with criminal conspiracies to divert scarce building materials into black market channels.

In a statement, Caudle termed this "a signal step by the Department of Justice in its determination to stamp out black marketing in lumber." He added:

"Investigations of black market practices in lumber are being continued in other sections of the country."

Caudle said the department is working "in close cooperation" with the National Housing Administration and the OPA "to get the lumber to flow in the construction of homes at the legal prices."

Girl Thrice Shot After Breaking Engagement

VANCOUVER, B. C., Aug. 26. —(CP)—Hospital attendants reported today the condition of Olive Negrich, 23, gravely wounded in a shooting here Saturday night, is still unchanged today.

The young woman suffered three bullet wounds. Marvin Lester Mack, 25, of Bremerton, Wash., is held on an attempted murder charge.

Police said Miss Negrich named Mack as the man who fired three shots into her as she triped and fell to the ground while running from him, following an argument. One bullet lodged in her spine, another passed through her body from the back, and a third entered her right arm.

Police said the shooting occurred after Miss Negrich told Mack of her intention to break their engagement.
