ization Board refuses to alter the "pattern" established in the CIO decision.

WILLARD WURTE, 34-year-old chairman of the Wage Stabilization Board, puts the issue thus in a statement to reporters:

"While idle ships are involved, so in the future of economic stability, not only in the shipping industry but in American industry generally... Every person in this country has a stake in avoiding wage spirals today which can only mean higher prices tomorrow."

"That is true enough. If the spirals go on spiraling, it will mean tough times for everybody sooner or later. In an all-out race between wages and prices NOBODY CAN WIN."

THE temptation is strong to take sides and lay blame. If your sympathies lie with wage earners, it seems clear to you that the fault lies with the greed of business for higher prices. If your sympathies are with business, you are inclined to place the blame on labor's greed for higher wages.

The truth is that wages and prices are tied together like Siamese twins. Where one moves, the other has to move. We may not like it, but it remains true. We have had abundant proof of that in the development of recent months.

PRESIDENT TRUMAN, now on the spot, instructs Reconstruction Director Stearns to take charge of the maritime strike situation and try to work out a settlement.

Presidential Secretary Ross tells the Washington reporters that Stearns has these two courses open:

1. Approve the finding of the Wage Stabilization Board and fight it out with all that that implies.
2. Agree with the Maritime Commission—and the unions and the industry—as against the Wage Stabilization Board.

"Those," he adds, "are the alternatives."

THE compromise under the "pattern," as set, increases can be paid by the operators without approval of the Wage Stabilization Board if the cost is not passed on to the government, which still owns most of the vessels in the merchant marine, or to shippers in the form of high shipping rates.

AS to the future, there is an interesting straw in the wind.

The Department of Agriculture says the pack of canned fruit is expected to set a new record, with slightly lower prices as a result of the increased supply, which will bring some degree of competition into the canned fruit market.

As the situation stands, about the only thing that can bring lower prices is MORE SELLERS THAN BUYERS. Until that condition returns, the price battle will go round and round but nobody will get anywhere much.

THERE is another hopeful development.

After a sharp rise Wednesday, the stock market stays relatively stable the next day. The Wall Street report on Thursday says: "Selling was restrained in today's stock market on a more or less restricted basis, but many issues managed to achieve further modest recoveries."

That means that the trend continues in spite of frequent spells of the fitters there is still a considerable measure of confidence in the future of American business.

Famine Amidst Plenty

By JAMES THRASHER

The Federal Reserve has succumbed to the popular practice of pollarding and comes up with some enlightening results. Telling the misleading figures on national and average per capita wealth, it has added some facts to the figures by determining where the money really lies, and what the percentage of income is.

The board's survey of 1939 families reveals that the average savings in this group amounts to $1,750. But it also reveals that the top 10 per cent of these families has seven-eighths of all the savings, while the bottom 49 per cent has only 1 per cent. The survey also shows that while everybody is hungry for durable goods, the great majority doesn't want to buy at today's prices.

The board estimates that 8,000,000 families want new cars, and 4,000,000 want new homes. But its poll shows that one-third of these families wants to pay less than $4000 for a house, while only another third is willing to go above $5000. And while the average citizen expects to pay $10,000 for a new car, he seems content to wait around for a while on the chance of paying less.

Thus we have some statistics that make sense. No go with a situation which, though not perfect and chaotic, has been clear for some time. Our national wealth, though great, is still about as empty as a tin can.

Remember: Endorsed by Dorey at 6:30 tonight, Louis Jordan, downtown composer who's authored quite a bit of music that is recommended jazz fare, makes a guest appearance. Chicago Theatre at 8:00; California Melodics, featuring the new hits from "Annie Get Your Gun," at 8:00; Tummy Dorey's Playhouse, 8:30; Wrestling Matches, 9:30, and sweet swing both old and new on the Ten Thirty Club. You pay your money and you take your choice... It's varied enough to suit every taste.

Notes for Sunday: The story of the theft of the Mona Lisa will be dramatized on True Detective Mysteries at 12:30; The Shadow solves a forty-year-old murder case for the edification of idiot addicts afflicted with the who-dunit itch at 1:00; radio's Crime Doctor puts in a guest appearance on Quick as a Flash, 1:30; young love and school days complicate life for Tom Webster at 2:00; C. B. O. Star Show and thumb-nail edition of opera for the next hour.

Mark this one down for family listening at 6:00 on Sunday... Exploring the Unknown tells a true story of science titled "How Not to Worry," with Kay Francis appearing as guest star. Another guest you'll want to hear is Elsie McElhinna... Armed with her trigger-finger for coming up with the right answer, she'll appear on "Twenty Questions" at 8:00 o'clock this Sunday.
