trouble. Probably BLOODY trouble.

Wallace is sincere and patriotic, he should resign his post in the cabinet and carry his battle to the country as a private citizen. He is already the recognized leader of the left wing of the Democratic party, and he will find plenty of followers.

Wallace doesn't resign, Truman should fire him. Either that or he should fire Byrnes and put Wallace in his place.

We can't ride two foreign policy horses going in opposite directions. If we try it, we'll wind up down in the dirt, bruised and bloody and discredited.

TODAY'S SCARCITY NOTE:

What hotel men call the worst crisis in their business in the city's history has hit New York. The Travelers Aid Society reports that the influx of visitors has "gone out of control," that large hotels are booked solid for a month and small ones for a week, that Turkish baths are being used heavily as lodging places (as they have been for a year or more) and that people are sleeping in subways and railroad stations.

ONE way to cure the trouble would be for the people to stay at home a little more and work a little harder. That would kill two birds with one stone. It would relieve the present load in more materials with which to build more hotels.

WE'VE been talking a lot about the high cost of living (for which scarcities are chiefly responsible). A story from Shanghai calls attention to the high cost of dying.

A month ago, Ben J. Giske, of Seattle, employed by the American-Hawaiian Steamship Company, was drowned while serving on an UNRRA fishing boat in China. The fee fixed by Shanghai undertakers for preparing the body for burial was $2500, and it cost his parents another $300 to transport his body home for interment.

IT costs a lot to be born, as young parents are learning when they get all the bills in and added up. It costs plenty to live. When it costs $2800 to die, the vicious circle is complete.

IT'S bad, but we ought to keep our thinking straight in regard to it.

High costs are based chiefly on SCARCITIES—on the fact that wherever you turn there are more buyers than sellers. Costs will remain high, and will GET HIGHER, as long as that condition exists.

The only thing that will cure it is production up to the point where there will be more sellers than buyers.

EVERYBODY is yowling (reasonably, on the surface) for MORE MONEY. The demagog politicians are bellowing that the way to fix it all up is to have the RIGHT PEOPLE have a hand.

All this is nonsense. Nothing but production (which is another word for work) will cure what ails us.

The Belated Lowdown

By JAMES THRASHER

An important revelation passed almost unnoticed in the realm of Labor Day oratory. It was made by A. F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, in a speech at Highland, Ind. And it concerned, if we read correctly, the real causes of the railroad strike last May.

Probably you thought that the strike arose from a dispute over wages and working conditions between the unions and the operators. So did we. So did President Truman, who spent a lot of time with operators and union officials trying to negotiate a settlement. Finally the government took over operations. Then two of the 20 unions involved, Mr. Whitney's and Alvaney Johnston's Brotherhood of Railway Engineers, struck. Then Mr. Truman got mad.

Mr. Whitney got mad, too. But he failed to explain what the strike was really all about. But now at last we have the lowdown. It seems the trouble was not with the railroad operators at all, or even with the President, Congress was to blame for the whole thing.

"Strikes," Mr. Whitney told his Labor Day audience, "are a signal of the failure of Congress to carry out the people's will and plan together."

Here's a quick reminder that Meet The Press will be heard at 6:30 tonight and it could be a red hot discussion. Saba Kasonovich, Minister to the U. S. from Yugoslavia, will be on the receiving end of the questions fired at him by John Hightower, A. P.; Ken Crawford, News Week; Arthur Hackton, I. N. S., and Lawrence Spivak. In case you haven't been following this program, we can tell you that no punches are pulled.

Cards, Dodgers May Tie in Flag Race

(By the Associated Press)

What was mere conjecture a week ago has taken on aspects of probability as National League President Ford Frick announced today that in the event the Brooklyn Dodgers and St. Louis Cardinals finish the regular season in a tie for first place, there will be a three-game post season playoff between the two contenders.

The Brooks today were only one game behind the Cards, confident that they can catch the Cardinals in the final post-playoff yesterday's playoff of the recent Dodgers-Reds 19-inning, scoreless tie, both clubs are even so far as the schedule is concerned. Each has only eight games left and each has five more at home.

With typical Dodger pluck, Brooklyn came from behind to defeat the Reds 5-3 yesterday. Trailing 2-0 in the last of the fifth, the Brooks garnered their first run off Vander Meer in 29 innings on Medwick's run-producing poke, and then Dixie Walker came through with a three-run homer to climax a four-run inning.

The Detroit Tigers took advantage of Cleveland's use of almost an entire relief squad, to scalp the Indians 15-1.

Torrid Mat Bouts On Tonight's Bill

Two battles sure to provide plenty of fireworks are set for tonight's wrestling show at the Roseburg armory. The first half of the double bill will start at 8:30 and will feature Billy Fox, Chicago drop-kicking sensation, against Mike Nazarian.

The main event will be anything but a friendly meeting between Pete Belcastro and Buck Davidson. Belcastro, who defeated Walter Achui in an individual match and then lost the team match by being disqualified, is mad at the world. He claims he was cheated out of the winner's purse last week and has vowed to take revenge on the next person he meets in the ring.

That person happens to be Davidson and the "Wallop" Wop from Weed" will have a terrific assignment on his hands. Davidson, a rugged Texan, is an excellent wrestler despite the fact that he doesn't need any provocation to resort to rough stuff.

Seals Within One Game of Pennant

(By the Associated Press) The San Francisco Seals today owned at least half of the Pacific Coast Baseball League pennant, with no chance for less than a tie, and had overwhelming odds to gain complete possession.

One more victory for the Seals or a defeat for the second-place Oakland A's in each club's remaining three games nabs the flag for San Francisco for the first time since 1935.

The Seals all but put the clincher on the pennant in a 5-2 triumph over the Portland Beavers last night, featuring the three-hit delivery of Harrell.

The Sacramento Sols virtually eliminated Oakland's slim pennant chances in a 16-hit assault for a 10-4 decision.

The fourth-ranking Los Angeles Angels squeaked by the San Diego Padres, 2-1, for heavy odds to wind up in the first division for a berth in the governor's cup playoff next week.

New Lobbying Act Holds Worry For Pressure Groups

(By PETER EDSON)

NEA Washington Correspondent WASHINGTON, D. C.—(NEA)—The high-pressure boys of Washington are worried. What bothers them is The Federal Regulation of Lobbying Act, which slipped through almost unchallenged in the new reorganization plan for Congress.

The act looks simple enough on paper. But when press agents, corporation lawyers, trade association representatives, and the paid agents of organized do-good societies try to fit their own operations into the bill, a hundred questions arise. Nobody today knows the answers—not even the people who wrote the thing. It will take time, and probably some court tests, to decide whom the law covers and how.

Section 307 of the act says that it applies to any person who in any way solicits or receives money to influence legislation or federal elections. Anyone making an open appearance before a congressional committee would be exempt if he confined his lobbying to that. Public officials acting in an official capacity would be exempt.

"Political committees," as defined by the act, are state or local political party committees. They are also exempt. But is the CIO Political Action Committee a Hatch Act political committee?

Must Register Regularly. The lobbying act provides that every person who gets money to influence elections or legislation must register every three months with the Secretary of the Senate and the Clerk of the House.

Furthermore, every such person must file a financial statement showing all receipts, with the name and address of every contributor of over $500.

But this is only the beginning. Every person seeking to influence legislation or elections must keep books showing all expenditures, itemizing every expense of over $10.

The final blow is that these financial statements are to be published in the Congressional Record every three months. Their new accounting to Congress must show even the names of any publication in which lobbyists have caused anything to be printed, and the legislation such publication sought to influence.

In an official statement on the lobbying act, Senator Robert M. LaFollette of Wisconsin declared, "It does not apply to organizations formed for other purposes, whose efforts to influence legislation are merely incidental to the purposes for which formed."

Can the Association of American Railroads, the American Federation of Labor and other such outfits win exemption on the grounds that their lobbying activities are merely incidental to their fundamental purposes? Maybe they can, but their congressional liaisons had better register.

It doesn't cost anything to register, but there's a maximum $5000 fine and one-year sentence on a first conviction for failure to do so. If the offense is repeated within three years, the penalty goes up to $10,000 and five years.

Oregon Vegetable, Fruit Prices Drop; Production Soars

By PAUL W. HARVEY, JR. SALEM, Sept. 21.—(P)—Oregon's vegetable and fruit harvest, now under way, will be so large that prices already are going down, the state department of agriculture and Oregon State College extension service said yesterday.

Despite light frosts and smaller acreage than last year, the state's potato harvest this year will total 11,730,000 bushels, or more than last year. Wholesale prices in Portland have dropped to $3.25 per 100-pound sack.

Ideal weather conditions prevail in the Marion and Malheur county onion areas, with greater-than-normal crops dropping wholesale prices to $1.15 per 50-pound sack, compared with $2 a year ago.

The cauliflower areas report much the same story, although heat injury has reduced the crop and made some replanting necessary. There also is considerable maggot damage.

Malheur county reports a big fall lettuce crop. Prices in Portland fell to $2.50 for packs of 4-dozen heads, about the same as charged for three dozen a year ago.

Prune Output Larger. Prospects for tree crops are good. The late pear crop is estimated at 3,300,000 bushels, slightly more than last year. The prune crop is maturing earlier than usual, but production is larger than last year.

Oregon's walnut crop is estimated at 8,500 tons, a 25 per cent gain over the 1945 total. The state's hop production estimate is 20,000,000 pounds, slightly below last year. About half the crop is harvested and quality is better than last year, but hop growers have a serious labor problem.

so that little honey is reaching the city markets. Honey production is far short of the demand, because of the scarcity of sugar.

The OSC extension service says the dairy outlook is more favorable for the next few months because of high consumer demand, more feed grains, smaller storage stocks, and smaller milk production.

DAILY DEVOTIONAL

DR. CHARLES A. EDWARDS

If we profit by the errors of yesterday, we may live victoriously today. One of the greatest things Peter ever did was to shed those bitter tears of repentance. Had he not done this, the early Church would never have experienced his powerful leadership. The course he took was not easy. He could have gone the way of Judas. He might easily have become an unbeliever. Those are the ways of a coward. But Peter walked from the courtyard the hard way. He faced the raging storms within with rare courage, in conquering them, he conquered himself. What the world needs is more men of heroic mold like Peter.

"Without the High Priests' Court with aching heart, His sturdy shoulders bent, eyes wet with tears, The man whom once his Lord had called a rock, Is seen alone in prayer, as daylight nears.

And with the rising sun and kindling hopes, In his repenting heart a fairer morn, Unseen by human eyes, steals o'er his soul, And in its blaze of light a Saint is born." Amen.
