In the Day's News

(Continued from page 1) the fact. The proof of the pudding is the eating thereof. If the "ins" fail to provide a pudding that is palatable, they must expect dissatisfied customers.

A WORD of caution, however, is in order. Don't believe any politician too implicitly. Use your own judgment. Seek the TRUTH. They aren't easy to find, but FACTS are worth more than the wind.

AROLD STASSEN, of Minnesota, who at the moment is the only OPEN contender for the Republican nomination for President in 1948, is slowly unfolding a labor policy which he thinks the Republican party should endorse.

In a speech in Seattle last night (the latest of a series he has delivered in the Pacific Northwest) he says:

"The Republican party must adopt a new labor policy which must not be ANTI-labor, but must spring genuinely from safeguarding and developing the rights of individual workmen in the factory and the shop."

He advocates specifically "a negotiating period fixed by government during which either strike or lockout would be unlawful."

THIS insignificant writer, while agreeing generally with these views, has a notion that they fall short of the ideal we must strive for if we are to get as far as we want to go.

It is true that we must "safeguard and develop the rights of individual workmen in the factory and the shop." But we shouldn't stop there. We must safeguard and develop the rights of ALL who work—on the farms, in the service industries, in distribution, etc.

We must ALSO safeguard and develop the rights of EMPLOYERS. American industry, if it is to work, must operate as a TEAM.

Mayor Candidate Active in Various Civic Movements

Solo candidate for the office of mayor of Roseburg in the November elections, Albert G. Flegel modestly boasts no spectacular background life, although he has had considerable travel experience, and asserts he at first had no intention of running for mayor, even though he was "interested in trying for councilman."

THE PUBLIC VOICE

By CHARLES V. STANTON

The United States mainland is not the only place where public discontent with shortages is in evidence. Mayor Charles W. Wharton has presented us with a copy of an editorial from the Honolulu Advertiser, listing shortages of rice, sugar, flour, potatoes, housing, appliances, and numerous other commodities.

Following its list of shortages, the Advertiser says: The foregoing is only a sketchy outline of what is happening to Hawaii today, a faint shadow of the calamity that lies directly ahead. Hawaii's producers, employers in every field, large and small, are faced today with the decision as to whether they shall retain the right to manage the enterprises they have created through their own energy and initiative or shall have the control of their properties taken away from them for all time.

The Advertiser reports that the "Territorial treasury faces a deficit of $9,000,000." Incidentally, we heard Joe Dunne, ex-senator from Multnomah County, accepted spokesman for the Old-Age and Disability Pension Fund Bill, read a letter Wednesday night from the chief finance officer of the Territory, telling the wonders of the Hawaiian gross income tax law, which is totally unlike the 3 per cent gross income tax the Townsends would saddle on Oregon to produce pensions. But the tone of the letter does not seem to click with the current treasury deficit reported by the Advertiser.

But that is beside the point. The point is that our states and territories are becoming dissatisfied with continuing shortage, planned economy, left-wing pampering, radical labor leadership, strikes, greed for power, etc.

The protest is mounting. Indications are to be seen everywhere. Grants Pass is in revolt against the CPA and has received ample sympathy if not active support. Pendleton OPA board members submitted simultaneous resignations. War Stabilization Board members, their agency made ineffectual by presidential interferences, are walking off the job. OPA is booming prices in every line to the great dissatisfaction of the public. Meat is scarce while the ranges abound in cattle. Northwestern poultrymen slaughtered their flocks a few weeks ago, only to read of the glut of corn and wheat so great that grain had to be piled on the ground, resulting in heavy loss. Housewives are unable to get soap because of unrealistic handling of the meat situation. The lack of hides is contributing to a shortage of shoes. Responsible labor leaders have been trying to reduce work stoppages, aware of the growing hostility against strikes and labor disorder. The public is becoming cognizant of the fact that an organized, communist-inspired effort is being made to spread confusion, so anti-communist feeling is gathering.

These various factors of public disquietude cannot long be ignored by the powers that be.

We venture the prediction that Nov. 5 will be a turning point in our domestic situation. Our congressmen are now in their respective districts. They are learning first-hand of the deep public resentment. Those who go back into office will realize they must do something and do it promptly. There is good reason to believe that the resentment has reached the point where enough New Dealers will be booted out of office to give Republicans control of the House, while it is entirely possible the Republicans also will seize control in the Senate, although the situation there is more favorable to the administration.

The new Congress will meet in January. If the Republicans are successful in organizing a majority in the House, the administration knows that one of the first things Congress will do will be to declare an end to the period of emergency and wrest emergency powers from the administration. Consequently, the administration will be forced to act before Congress convenes, as it would not do to let the Republicans get credit for reforms.

Even New Deal congressmen will be less apt to go along with the regimentation program after having learned the temper of the people at home.

We predict, therefore, that soon after the November election there will be a gradual easing of controls. OPA will decentralize nearly all commodities, wage controls will be relaxed, building restrictions will be eased.

It would be too much to expect any bureaus or agencies to be abandoned. The personnel is needed for a voting machine at the next presidential election. But every effort, we expect, will be made to make control agencies less conspicuous and obnoxious, giving freer rein to production and competition.

The public voice cannot be ignored forever.

6 Grapplers to be On Tonight's Bill

Douglas County wrestling fans might well get a look-see at the next Pacific Coast light-heavyweight champion at the Roseburg Armory tonight. The new titlist could be one of the six grapplers appearing here in the first of two elimination tournaments to replace Bruno Angelo, world champion who has relinquished the coast crown. Winner Saturday night will meet the winner in another six-man elimination affair next week in a tilt here October 26—a one-hour regulation championship affair.
