buffetings of life, we get harder and more realistic. We fall into the frame of thinking that ideals are beautiful things to look at but are hard to make work out.

HERE is one of the oldest unwritten rules of organized society: "Old men for council; young men for war."

There is another proverb (proverbs are supposed to be fundamental truths distilled out of thousands of centuries of human experience): "The proof of the pudding is in the eating thereof."

LOOKING at the world of today, with its hatreds and its suspicions, its unwillingness to cooperate toward bringing about a better world, its nations who insist upon retaining for themselves the law of the strong right arm and to hell with all this tommyrot about a world society devoted to the betterment of mankind, one wonders at times if the young people would have made any worse mess of it than the old people have.

IN a way, of course, the youngsters are PERFECTIONISTS. The road of the perfectionist is a long one, with many disappointments along the way. It is apt to end in disillusionment.

There is the Reno barber, for example, who crashes the news this week—Frenchy the Barber, the Reno newshound who dug up the story calls him Frenchy has just been divorced by wife No. 12, and in the backwash of that event he says: "All my weddings have been the result of my desire for a good, honest companion, and I hate to give up my search. But this has cured me. I can do better by myself."

THIS much is obvious—not merely from the fact that it takes time, no matter how fast a worker may be, to acquire 12 wives and divest oneself of them, but from the discouraged tone of his statement:

FRENCHY IS GETTING ALONG IN YEARS. If he were younger, he'd go out and try again. That is the way of youth.

If we're to get world peace, it will take a lot of trying. Maybe we'd better turn the job over to the younger generation.

Roseburg Life to Go Into Moviedom

Hundreds of Roseburg residents will have an opportunity this week to become movie actors. Bob Layne, representative of Robert Allen Productions, Hollywood, has arrived in Roseburg with a crew of assistants preparatory to photographing a feature length picture entitled "Life in Roseburg."

The picture, he reports, will include industrial plants, schools, churches, business houses, recreation service clubs, etc., and is designed to furnish a cross-section of business, industrial, social and economic life of the community.

The film will be shown at the Indian theater starting Nov. 3.

INTRODUCING AL FLEGL

By CHARLES V. STANTON

Al Flegel, the only regularly nominated candidate for the office of mayor of Roseburg, is under a handicap in that he is not as generally known to the city's populace as is usually the case with a candidate for this office.

Al is not a newcomer, but he was absent from the city for several years, while engaged in army service, and during that period we had a large influx of new population, to whom the candidate is a complete stranger.

Many persons are acquainted with the candidate only through his past work in civic clubs and in athletic promotion and do not know the more serious side of his personality.

We venture the prediction that Al Flegel, if elected mayor, will assume the duties of the office with a better knowledge of municipal administration than any predecessor in the position.

Educated in Willamette and University of Oregon law schools, Flegel, faced with the prospect of election to a job of which he at first had only general knowledge, has attacked the situation with the student's form of approach. He has contacted professors of the two schools he attended and has secured reading courses in municipal government. He is assiduously "craming" on subjects relating to the various problems of city management and service. He is gathering information concerning local municipal organizations, systems and practices. By the time he takes over the reins of city government, if his candidacy is approved, he will, we predict, have the theory of municipal administration well in mind.

He will, at least, have a working knowledge of the science of government, even though he may be lacking in familiarity with local procedure. The latter can come only through experience.

Baseball fans are acquainted with Flegel for his participation as a player, a sponsor, and an umpire. An umpire and a mayor have a lot in common.

We anticipate that Flegel, as mayor, will bring to the office the same qualities that make him a good baseball arbiter. He'll call them as he sees them. He probably will miss a few, just as he missed a few balls and strikes, but he'll be constantly striving for perfection. He'll be absolutely fair and impartial. He'll show no favoritism, and will demand that everything be in accordance with the rules. Baseball players learned that Flegel couldn't be bought nor bullied; that he was patient under criticism, but quick to resist any attempt to shove him around. He knew the rules and abided by them and no amount of argument could change his decision when he knew he was in the right.

These same qualities go into good statesmanship, whether it be as a city councilman or as President of the United States.

With his unflinching good humor, his conviviality, and love of sports, Al might give the impression to the person who knows him only slightly that he is not fundamentally serious-minded, and might enter as lightly into the field of municipal politics as he engages in entertainment and recreation.

But Al did not build the oil company distributor business he operated in Roseburg before the war, nor his present successful transfer business, upon frivolity. His success in the business field has been based upon good judgment and hard work.

Al Flegel is a man of deep convictions. One of those convictions is that a man who earns his living from a community owes some of his time and ability in the service of that community. To serve that principle he has been active in civic club work and now proposes to give of his time and energy to city government.

Al did not tell us these things about himself. They come from our own observations and inquiries. We have known him personally during the years of his residence here, and we believe we can safely assure our newer population that Al Flegel, if elected to the office of mayor, will give an excellent administration. If he should fail, it will not be because of any lack of sincere effort.

according to present plans. It is hoped to complete camera work during the early part of this week, Layne states.

The picture will be made in full color and sound will be added.

Four Saved After Boat Capsizes

REEDSPORT—A near-tragedy occurred near Echo Island in the Umpqua river, six miles east of Reedport, Saturday morning when a fishing skiff carrying Albert Hull and his twin sons, Donald and Ronald, 17, and Earl Baldwin, 11, of Cottage Grove, capsized and catapulted them into the river.

Fortunately they were near the island and the tide was out, and they landed in about four feet of water. But their boat floated away with all of their fishing tackle.

Mrs. Mary Boye, who resides on a river ranch near the point of the accident, saw the men in the river and called a neighbor, John Klute, who took a river boat and went to the rescue. Mrs. Boye also called the state police and the Umpqua River Coast Guard station.

Officer C. C. Johnson of the state police and Coast Guardsman Wilson were soon on their way to the scene of the accident. They were not needed, however, for they found the rescued men being well cared for, and who, despite their cold bath, wet clothes, and loss of fishing gear, were soon on their way home.

Lenora E. May Dies

Word has been received in Roseburg of the death at Ocean Beach, Calif., Thursday, Oct. 10, of Lenora Elizabeth May, former Douglas County resident. A daughter, Mrs. Jay Coleman, Ocean Beach, and a sister, Mrs. Eva T. Byers, Grangeville, Idaho, survive.

City Ticket Sale For Grid Tilt Set By Students Here

Junior High School students will canvass business and residential districts of Roseburg Tuesday in an advance ticket sales campaign for Thursday afternoon's game against the Grants Pass Juniors. The Roseburg Passages are expecting the Grants Pass game to be their toughest struggle for the season. Both teams are unbeaten.

Grants Pass has an exceptionally big team, averaging 165 pounds. Comparative scores in games against the Medford Juniors would indicate equal ability for Roseburg and Grants Pass, as the Junior Cavemen won from Medford 14 to 0 and Roseburg beat Medford 21 to 6.

Coach 'Hed' Turner reports that the Junior High students are endeavoring to secure a large turnout of fans for Thursday's game and will visit all parts of the city with their ticket sale.

The downtown section will be canvassed by Junior High boys wearing athletic sweaters for purposes of identification.

C. E. Shifflett Funeral To Be Held in Virginia

Funeral services for Charles E. Shifflett, 31, who was accidentally killed Friday night by a Southern Pacific train at the Musher street crossing, will be held in Greenlee, Va., November 4. The body is being shipped by the Roseburg Funeral Home to night to Lexington, Va.

Surviving are his mother, Mrs. Verbia Shifflett; two brothers, Robert and Ike, and two sisters, Avis and Gladys, all at Greenlee. Interment will be in the Greenlee cemetery.

River Change to Safeguard Sewage Plant Dike Planned

Plans for the diversion of water down the west channel of the South Umpqua River, below the Oak Street Bridge, to lessen the force of the water against the dike of the sewage disposal plant, are under consideration by the city council.

Mayor Charles W. Wharton said today. As soon as the Oak Street Bridge is again open to traffic and the detour route via the temporary Douglas Street bridge is abandoned, the city hopes to bulldoze a deeper channel on the west side of the island, which has been dry since last spring.

As soon as the heavier winter rains start, the level of the river is again expected to threaten the dikes of the city sewage disposal plant, just below the mouth of Deer Creek.

Late in the spring, the Lloyd M. Hill Company made a verbal agreement with the city to furnish rock to be used in the fill quarry on the Dixonville Road to reinforce the dike, Wharton said.

The Hill properties, however, were sold in August to J. C. Compton of McMinnville, who purchased the quarry primarily to fulfill a contract for spreading rock on the North Umpqua Road.

Hill said, at the time of the sale, that Compton would assume his contract with the city.

The city is again concerned with the possibility that flood conditions on the river this winter may wash out the dikes which protect the sewage plant. If rock for reinforcing the river bank cannot be obtained this year, the cutting of a new channel along the west bank and deepening the channel may save the city's investment.

No opposition is expected from property owners to the city's plan of bulldozing a deeper channel through the presently dry river bed on the west side, Wharton said.

Nifty Floor Show Entertains Crowd At Kennedy's Club

The first top-notch floor show open to the Roseburg public was presented last night at Kennedy's Dutch Mill, featuring a cast of specialty dances and comedy numbers, several big-name entertainers including Danny O'Neil, the Irish terror of radio and recording fame, and Broadway dancing star, and Judy Blake, who was starred in the New York musical production, "Early to Bed."

Titled "Laughs Incorporated," the touring troupe is presented by Jack Martin, who recently appeared in a series of Universal Motion picture dancing sequences and also has Broadway play experience.

The first of a series of show troupes and name-bands expected to be booked this winter by nightclub owner E. S. Kennedy, Martin's troupe is currently making one-night shows en route to Seattle. Kennedy announced they will return to Roseburg for a week's engagement November 18.

Especially outstanding to local fans at last night's show was comedian Eddie Trow, master of ceremonies, who sang numerous parodies, performed amusing pantomimes and did vocal work with the orchestra. O'Neil's rendition of popular ballads was also well received by local nightglubbers.

Other portions of the colorful 90-minute show were the Holly Sisters, Bobbie, Latin-American dancer, and Rich Turley and Jack Martin in dancing routines and comedy acts.

Kennedy reports a new steam heating system, the most modern type available, is being installed this week at his club.

This system of seven units was built by the Roseburg Plumbing Supply Company and is being installed under the direction of part owner of the plumbing concern, H. E. Guthrie.

Navy Day Given Observance Here

Navy Day was observed yesterday, October 27, in Roseburg by special religious services at various Roseburg churches and a general get-together of Roseburg ex-naval servicemen at the Roseburg Veterans Club for organizing a local chapter of the Navy League.

The day on which the Continental Congress received a bill providing for the establishment of a fleet to protect the lives and property of a young and struggling nation, and also the birthday of President Theodore Roosevelt, who is known as the Father of the modern United States Navy, was officially designated as Navy Day by the Navy League.

The Navy League of the United States, a civilian organization, is devoted to keeping Americans informed concerning the Navy and is the official sponsor of this day's observance.

Navy Day is an official annual occasion at which the Naval Veterans, including Waves, Spars, Marines and Coast Guard, are authorized to wear their uniforms. They may also wear their uniforms at any event celebrating Navy Day.

The official theme, as adopted by the Navy League, is "Your Navy, Victory in War—Guardian in Peace."

Many camps can carry a load of 400 pounds 25 to 30 miles a day for eight days without water.

National Week Set For Debut of Air Mail Rate Slash

National Air Mail Week, to be observed throughout the nation by United States postoffices in order to bring to the public's attention the new domestic air mail rates, is set for October 27 through November 2, Roseburg Postmaster Lester L. Wimberly stated Wednesday.

The new rate of five cents per full ounce applies to all United States possessions as well as here at home, regardless of where they are, and Mexico and Canada, Wimberly said. This rate also applies to all servicemen overseas in foreign non-United States possession countries.

The old rate for air mail was based on six cents per one-half ounce, while the new rate of five cents is for a full ounce. Wimberly said, all foreign air mail rates are to be drastically cut, reducing in many cases 50 per cent of their former rates. The maximum air mail postage rate in the world will be 25 cents.

European rates, 30 cents per one-half ounce, will be changed to 15 cents for the same weight. The Post Office Department, Wimberly said, is now experimenting with airplanes for air parcel postage some time in the future, with mail being sorted en route to its destination in special mail-car type planes.

Dance Scheduled Tonight At Veterans Hospital

The camp and hospital committee of the Douglas County Red Cross chapter is sponsoring a dance at the Veterans Hospital this evening at 7:30. The women and girls who have enjoyed dancing at the hospital in the past, as well as others who may care to attend, are all invited. Those who expect to attend are asked to call the Red Cross office in the Roseburg Armory before this evening.
