appoint a REPUBLICAN secretary of state (next in the line of succession) and then resign as President.

IT is true that the European system gets quick action when a landslide change of public opinion occurs, whereas our system tends to move more slowly, but when we compare the two systems over a century or more and judge them by RESULTS ours certainly stands up rather well.

That is to say, we wouldn't be willing to trade what our system has produced for us for what the European parliamentary system has produced for the people of Europe. "The proof of the pudding is the eating thereof," and this writer flatly prefers the American pudding.

ONE trouble with our system is that it has been PERVERTED from the ideal of the Founding Fathers, who were seeking an arrangement of checks and balances that would protect the people from the dangers that arise when too much power remains in too few hands too long.

The Founding Fathers wanted a congress to MAKE the laws, a President to see that the laws were carried out and courts to interpret the laws when differences as to their meaning arose. Their idea was that each would be a check on the other so that too much power would NOT remain in one set of hands too long.

It was a wise idea, but its purpose can be more or less defeated by the idea of a STRONG President. A "strong" President is one who enforces his ideas on congress, so that the executive really makes the laws as well as administering them. We have had instances (one of them very recent) when a "strong" President has succeeded in dominating the courts, as well as congress.

When that happens, too much power gets into one set of hands (the very thing the Founding Fathers sought to prevent) and when too much power gets into one set of hands the historical temptation is to KEEP IT THERE as long as possible.

That is the historical way in which dictatorship has overthrown democracy.

IT seems to this writer (who is hopelessly old-fashioned in some of his beliefs) that it will be far better for us in the long run if instead of tossing our system into the ashcan and adopting the European parliamentary system in its place we GO BACK to the checks and balances idea of the Founding Fathers—which works surprisingly well until somebody throws the STRONG PRESIDENT monkey wrench into its wheels.

If we get GOOD men into congress who will make good laws, if we get GOOD men as Presidents who will confine their efforts to administering the laws wisely, if we get good men on the supreme court who will be content to interpret and clarify the constitution and the laws, instead of trying to say WHAT THE LAWS SHALL BE AND WHAT THEY SHALL ACCOMPLISH, our sysem will work out quite well indeed.

After all, there are few of us who would be willing to swap what our system has brought us for what the European system has brought to the people of Europe.

An Easy Kill

MT. OLIVE, Ill., Dec. 16 —(AP)— Joseph Woltering, truck driver of Effingham, Ill., bagged a 275-pound, four-point deer without firing a shot.

The animal was killed when it ran into the side of his truck as he drove down a highway.

TURKEY SHOW NEEDS

By CHARLES V. STANTON

It would appear that local sentiment is virtually unanimous for continuance of the Northwest Turkey Show in Roseburg. Efforts are being made by Willamette Valley breeders to remove the show to Salem and numerous arguments have been advanced in support of a change in location. The fact remains, however, that the Northwest show, originated at Oakland, has become established in Douglas County and belongs here.

It may be true that Douglas County no longer is the turkey center of the state. But interest in turkey breeding in the Willamette Valley developed from the annual show previously held in Oakland and now transferred to Roseburg. It was through education, competition and inspiration occasioned by the Northwest Turkey Show that the broad-breast turkey, now predominant in Oregon, Washington and California, became the nation's premium fowl. To discontinue an event which has the prestige of the Northwest Turkey Show and which has such a remarkable record of accomplishment would be a calamity.

However, if we are to maintain the show at Roseburg it is our responsibility to see that suitable facilities are provided.

There is much complaint because exhibitors cannot find hotel rooms. This condition results from rapid population expansion and doubtless is of temporary nature, as the natural progress of business will result in construction of more hotel rooms when building restrictions are lifted and materials and labor become available. We doubt if any Western Oregon city at present has space to house any appreciable number of temporary visitors, as the shortage of rooms is a common condition throughout the state. It is a condition which will be remedied through natural process and in due time.

Provision for properly staging the show, however, is an entirely different matter. Display of turkeys requires a large amount of floor space. One fault of the Northwest Turkey Show since its inception has been that of overcrowding. Coops must be jammed together. Aisleways are too narrow. Judging tables are too small and crowded. No provision is made for seating spectators. Refrigeration, for rooms where dressed birds are displayed, is of improvised character. No facilities are provided for conferences, classes, business meetings, etc.

Sig Fett, member of the County Fair Board, has proposed construction of rooms to house the Turkey Show under the spacious grandstand at the county fairgrounds. With only minor alterations it would be possible to build several large rooms, thus utilizing space now entirely idle.

Eventually, we hope, we will have needed pavilions for county fair purposes, with one or more buildings designed to meet Turkey Show needs.

Another solution is to be found in the current campaign for construction of a swimming pool, civic center and civic auditorium. The auditorium could be planned to house the annual event.

There are many possible solutions to the problem. It is to be hoped that the necessary leadership will be forthcoming at once and that something constructive will be undertaken prior to next year's show.

"COLD BUG" got your child?

Get MENTHOLATUM quick!
Poor little chest muscles all sore and "achey" from hard coughing? Quick, Mentholatum! Rub it on back, chest, neck. Your child will like that warm, gently stimulating action! Mentholatum helps lessen congestion without irritating child's delicate normal skin. At same time comforting vapors get down into irritated bronchial tubes, loosen coughing.
