

Timber Cutting Limit is Needed, Forester Warns

PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 13.—The Western Forestry and Conservation Association went into the second day of its annual meeting today with a warning that the United States must limit itself to 44 or 45 billion board feet of timber a year and extend sustained yield programs.

Col. W. B. Greeley, vice-president of the American Forestry Association, told delegates yesterday that new trees were growing only two-thirds as fast as old ones are being cut or burned.

He said the present annual cut is 54 billion feet, while annual growth is 36 billion, and added that the A. F. A. could be expected to sponsor more sustained yield programs.

Oregon and Washington state foresters told delegates of forest law amendments they have submitted to state legislatures.

Oregon proposals: A state harvesting law to prevent over-cutting and control fire damage; a boost in the rehabilitation fee from $5 to $8 an acre; control of second-growth cutting.

Washington proposals: Extension of the re-stocking period from two to five years; regulations extended to state-owned timber; enable operators to sign for compliance with forest regulations, if owners do not.

New trustees elected include: Corydon Wagner, Tacoma; G. F. Jewett, Spokane; Walter Neils, Libby, Mont.; C. D. Orchard, Victoria, B. C.; E. C. Rettig, Lewiston, Idaho; P. D. Edgell, Seattle; Roy Morse, Longview, Wash.

Mr. Rainier Holds Secret Of Missing Air Transport

SEATTLE, Dec. 19. — (AP) — Army, Navy and Coast Guard officers were to gather at Sand Point naval air field here today to develop new strategies in the continuing hunt for the Marine corps transport which disappeared in the Mount Rainier vicinity with 32 passengers while en route from San Diego to Seattle nine days ago.

Officials conducting the search agree that the lofty Mount Rainier undoubtedly holds the secret of the search.

Approximately 10 feet of snow have fallen at the Paradise level since the plane disappeared and the consensus is that if the plane hit the mountain, it may not be found until the snow melts next spring.
