Martin provided a strong hint that he still feels universal training should be sidetracked in his speech last Friday formally accepting the House speakership.

U. N. Capital Site Scene of Bloody, Historical Events

By CARLE HODGE AP Newsfeatures Writer NEW YORK—The 17 acres of slaughter houses and other drab structures where the United Nations will build their world capital has figured in the making of history many times since the Dutch bought that land from the Indians.

Known as Turtle Bay, from a lost inlet of the East River, the section lies between Kips Bay on the south, where Peter Stuyvesant farmed his famous Bow-wasant farm on the north, site of a Colonial home-stead and now a fashionable residential neighborhood.

Nathan Hale Hanged There In the very heart of the six blocks given to the United Nations by John D. Rockefeller, a famed American spy was executed by the British.

As he stood before their hangman, he shouted, "I only regret that I have but one life to lose for my country."

A fading plaque imbedded in a dingy slaughter house wall now marks the spot where Nathan Hale died.

Immigrants knew the Turtle Bay section well. In the early 1900s they crowded by the thousands around its abattoir gates to pay a nickel a glass for animal blood, which they regarded highly as medicine.

Guerrillas, British Clash History first exploded in Turtle Bay during the Revolution. Daring American guerrillas who named themselves the Liberty Boys blew up a British arms dump there. They hastily piled up breastworks but they were broken by broadsides from His Majesty's men-of-war bobbing at anchor out in the river.

After the bloody Battle of Long Island, bedraggled Continental soldiers retreated through Turtle Bay. Gen. Washington attempted to end the rout across mid-Manhattan. By the time the retreat reached the present site of the New York Public Library at Fifth Ave. and 42nd St. Washington tamed the mob by caning some of the officers. The army then retired to Harlem Heights, where Columbia University now stands, and on the following day decisively turned back the British.

Becomes Slum Early in the last century when New York still centered farther down the island, Turtle Bay was split into the sprawling country estates of the local gentry, among them Horace Greeley, who edited the Tribune and admonished young men to "go West."

But by 1850 the neighborhood had become an industrial slum. A map that year showed a "manure plant" on the ground—at the foot of today's East 45th Street—where a British munitions warehouse had stood hemmed in by woodlands.

In July, 1863, the city's disastrous Civil War draft riots first flared two blocks away when an angry mob set afire a draft board office.

But after that final spurt of rowdiness, Turtle Bay lapsed into the struggle to earn daily bread. Abattoir Operated The immigrants came with their glasses and nickels, and the curious to the abattoirs to watch bellwether sheep lead other sheep, Judas-like, from pens into the slaughter rooms.

Costly apartment houses sprang up on the south and to the north—but Turtle Bay went poor and unkept, its only distinguishing landmark a great green dome, like that of a southern courthouse, atop a building in Abattoir Row.

The fate of the drab little neighborhood which has rested with the Dutch, the English and the Americans now rests with the world itself.

wing was torn off and the nose crumpled in the crash. The young couple killed in the Virginia crash left the Mt. Pleasant airport Saturday morning on an air tour sponsored by the Gulf Oil Company. They were en route to the Miami air show.

U. S.-Developed Plastic Eye Hits German Product WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(AP)—The war and the plastic industry have given the German glass optic a black eye in the American market. The Army said today that the plastic artificial eye, developed in 1943, has been used by more than 7,500 former soldiers, been adopted by the Veterans Administration and has "almost completely replaced glass eyes" which until the war were largely of German manufacture.

The Army Medical Corps listed among other advantages of the plastic eye its ability to withstand breakage, resistance against corrosion and close simulation of the human eye. The plastic eye was developed by a former major in the dental corps, Stanley F. Erpt of San Francisco.

A Brand New Year. How many times the past week have you written 1946, when you wanted to write 1947? It's bad enough when we start a new month, but after writing 1946 for a whole year, it takes a lot of remembering to change what has become a habit. Then there's the habit we have of making New Year's Resolutions. How many have you made, and how many have you broken already? Don't answer that. We used to make 'em and break 'em regularly. Now we just don't bother making 'em. We all made mistakes in 1946, and probably those of us who really accomplish anything worth while will make some in this brand new year. But we hope we won't make the same ones twice. And we most fervently hope that what mistakes we do make in 1947 will be greatly offset and outnumbered by correct decisions and acts. A brand New Year. Let's take better care of it than we did of its predecessor. When this year of 1947 joins the long procession of years that make up History, let's be honestly able to say: "This is the best year we have ever seen. We helped make it that way." Home Again. Vance Cox, our genial book-keeper is back on the job after a visit to Nebraska to spend Christmas with his parents. Vance says that the Middle West has harvested an enormous crop of wheat and corn. Unfortunately, "one man's meat is another man's poison." So while the huge crop looked good to them, and to us, the prices the midwestern farmers receive will be reduced according to the size of the crop. They don't like to sell at these lower prices, but eventually will do so, and the lower prices they will receive will be reflected in the lower prices Oregon farmers will have to pay. During the course of the year, we look for feed prices to decline gradually all along the line. IN FACT... UMPQUA SCRATCH IS DOWN A DIME TO $3.75, and WHOLE CORN IS NOW AT THE BARGAIN PRICE OF $3.50 per hundred. Cracked corn $3.60, represents a drop of 25c a sack. livability, is their freedom from pullorum. In Douglas County we have nearly conquered this disease, which takes such heavy toll in most other places. Among the thousands of birds we have tested this season, we have not found a SINGLE INFECTED BIRD, among those hatched in the two local hatcheries, Lookingglass Hatchery, managed by Ray Carr, about six miles out on the Lookingglass Road, in partnership with Grant Phillips of the Umpqua Produce Co., and the Ponton Hatchery, in West Roseburg, on the main road out of town towards Melrose and Lookingglass, the exact address being 1434 Harvard Ave. In view of these facts, we feel that we are doing you a favor by advising you to either buy your baby chicks from one of these hatcheries, or in having one of them do your custom hatching. The market for Douglas County Hatching eggs will be better when we can guarantee that no eggs from this section will carry pullorum germs. Let's all co-operate! These Modern Days. He: "How do you spend your income?" Him: "About 30% for shelter, 30% for clothes, 40% for food, and 20% for other incidentals." He: "But that adds up to 120%?" Him: "Are you telling me?" "Did any one in your family make a brilliant marriage?" "Well, my wife did pretty well." $5 Horse, $50 Saddle. Nobody can please everybody. Some turkey growers run short of green feed late in summer, and ask us to increase the alfalfa. We are glad to do so. Then again, we get a complaint like this: "We hate to pay $4.50 a sack for turkey feed that has so much forty dollar alfalfa hay in it." Well, our alfalfa greens costs well over $60.00 a ton. But for some strange reason, the guy who hates to "pay $50 a ton for $40 hay" doesn't stop to realize that he also buys for that same $90 fishmeal at $145.00 and Vitamin D at $1380.00 a ton. Well, anyway, we have to live, your turkeys like the feed and thrive on it, and everybody else sells it for a darn sight more.
