Lady Elks Lead
Off in Funds for
March of Dimes

Launching the 1947 March of Dimes annual fund-raising drive of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, within Roseburg today were the Roseburg Lady Elks of Roseburg Lodge, 326, who through President Mrs. Harold Haaklin, presented City Chairman Del McKay with $15.

An appeal to the community to double contributions this year in order to attain the $24,000,000 national goal, was made today by McKay.

McKay pledged the local committee to redoubled efforts following receipt of a letter from Basil O'Connor, president of the National Foundation, stressing the crucial importance of the 1947 campaign. The need to replenish funds drained in fighting last summer's epidemic which affected more than 25,000 persons and was the worst in the Foundation's history is more urgent than ever before, according to O'Connor.

To assure continuing care of patients and build up adequate chapter reserves for future epidemics, $12,000,000 is needed, O'Connor said. The other half of the $24,000,000 minimum is required on the national level as follows:

Epidemic aid reserve $5,000,000
Research and education $3,000,000
General working fund $2,000,000
Reserve fund exhausted

"During the 1946 epidemic," McKay said, "the $4,000,000 epidemic reserve fund of the National Foundation, previously considered adequate, was wiped out completely by November in adding chapters. By the end of the year approximately an additional $1,500,000 earmarked for research had to be diverted for emergency aid to fulfill the demand that 'no one stricken by polio need go without care for lack of funds.'"

Pointing out that this community as every other in the nation must be adequately prepared for any emergency the future may bring, McKay concluded:

"Let us double our contributions now so we can be prepared. We cannot gamble with the safety of our children. By giving generously now we will avoid future self-reproach that we gave too little and too late when next summer's epidemics strike."

A basketball benefit contest tonight at Roseburg Senior High will officially open the general public contributions to the fund. Friday morning, the Roseburg Lions Club will set off a door-to-door canvassing of the business houses, and Saturday night match-maker Elton Owen will donate proceeds of the wrestling matches to the fund.

Contributors to
Swimming Pool
Fund Are Listed

More than 200 individual contributions have been made toward the swimming pool fund in the current campaign, according to W. J. Mess, chairman of the fund solicitation.

Total amount collected thus far this winter is $11,543.95, Mess said. Together with the collections of previous years, the figure increases the total fund to close to $45,000.

Most today named the first 33 contributors to the swimming pool fund. The list will be continued daily in the News-Review as space permits:

THE MARCH OF DIMES

By CHARLES V. STANTON

An estimated half-million volunteer workers are campaigning today in one of the world's most humanitarian projects. Throughout the entire United States these workers, directed by 6,917 campaign chairmen, opened today the annual March of Dimes, a nation-wide solicitation for funds with which to combat infantile paralysis, provide treatment for victims of the dread disease and furnish continuing relief, appliances and treatment.

The Infantile Paralysis Foundation is unique in the fact that its resources are available to rich and poor alike. It makes no distinction of class, color or creed. Every man, woman and child has available at a moment's notice the best of medical care, hospitalization, and scientific treatment, without thought of expense.

The appealing little girl who appears upon the 1947 campaign posters provides a perfect example of the Infantile Paralysis Foundation at work.

The Polio Poster Girl is four-year-old Nancy Drury of Louisville, Ky.

She was stricken with polio in July, 1944. She was severely crippled. Her back, abdominal muscles and lower right leg were affected. Her parents wanted the best of medical care, but the wages of her father, Frank Drury, a machine operator in a printing plant, were too limited to cover the expense of Nancy's illness and provide as well for his four other children.

But the Kentucky Chapter of the National Foundation stepped into the picture.

Nancy's hospital bills were paid by the Chapter. The best doctors were made available. Miss Irene W. Schaper, a physical therapist, trained by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, nursed the child through the acute stages of the disease at the Louisville General Hospital. Although Nancy now romps and plays like any other healthy, normal child, she still receives weekly check-ups and continued muscle re-education, to strengthen a weak muscle in her right foot, at the Chapter's physical therapy clinic.

The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis recognizes polio as one of the most expensive diseases on the medical books. Few families, even with substantial income can, unaided, meet the full cost of first treatment and the many months of continued care. Polio is a disease which strikes anywhere and everywhere without warning. A case may materialize in a remote, isolated region or in a crowded city. Polio is a constant threat to every child and even affects some adults. Because of the public danger, the National Foundation holds to the theory that the expense of treatment and continued care is a public charge and consequently, pledges that no one stricken with polio shall go untreated for lack of funds, regardless of age, race, creed or color.

The Foundation is divided into local chapters, state chapters, and the national unit. Each local chapter retains one-half the funds raised in its area. The other half goes to the National Foundation. Each local chapter pays the cost of cases within its own jurisdiction as long as money is available from its treasury. If it does not have sufficient funds to meet demands, the National Foundation provides additional money. The Douglas County Chapter in 1945 secured aid from the National Foundation when local funds were exhausted. During 1946 the National Foundation sent out more than $5,500,000 to local chapters. This system permits money to be marshalled for aid in epidemic areas.

The campaign to support this worthy project starts today in every city, town and hamlet throughout the nation. The money raising effort will continue through Jan. 30, the anniversary of Franklin D. Roosevelt's birthday.

The week of Jan. 24-30 has been designated as "Theater Week" with collections to be taken between performances in motion picture and legitimate theaters. Benefit performances, sports events, and other gatherings will supplement direct solicitation, and thousands of special entertainments, balls and parties will conclude the campaign Jan. 30.

The March of Dimes is an event in which every American should join, not only for the good he may do others, but as an insurance policy from which he, too, may benefit should the disease, which is no respecter of persons, strike at himself or his loved ones.

Mrs. Audrey B. Endicott
Passes Away in Eugene

Mrs. Audrey B. Endicott, wife of Dr. S. C. Endicott, prominent Eugene dentist, died at her home in that city last Sunday at the age of 57. In early womanhood she lived in Roseburg while her late father, Joseph T. Bridges, was register of the U. S. land office. She was born in Drain and was married to Dr. Endicott at Myrtle Point in 1907.

Besides her widower she is survived by two daughters, Dorothy Belle Spreckels, Eugene, and Deborah Kallman, Buenos Aires; two grandchildren; and one brother, Ralston D. Bridges, Oakland, Ore.

Drunkennes Charges
Bring Fines in City Court

Fines amounting to $75 were imposed on four persons charged with drunkennes or disorderly conduct, City Recorder A. J. Geddes reported yesterday. The offenders were:

Alton J. Courtright, 21, Coquille, disorderly conduct, $20; O. W. Miller, Roseburg, drunk, $25, committed to city jail in lieu of fine; Robert Evans, 48, Roseburg, drunkennes on public street, $15; James G. Sewer, Coos Bay, drunkennes, $15.

Darrel Cordon, Roseburg, forfeited $20 bail on an intoxication charge, Geddes said.

Lawyers Clash in Arguing Appeal of
Lewis, Mine Union

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(AP)—

In a class in the Supreme Court, government attorneys yesterday termed John L. Lewis' action in last fall's coal strike "an insult to the United States." Lewis' attorneys countered that such remarks belong "in a political forum."

The high court heard arguments on appeals by Lewis and the United Mine Workers from the $3,510,000 in fines imposed on them in U. S. District Court here for disregarding a court order against last fall's coal strike. District Judge Goldsborough found the disregard was "contempt."

Attorney General Tom C. Clark used the term "insult" in a prepared argument asking the high tribunal to uphold the fines.

Clark contended the government had only followed proper and legal procedure when it went to the courts in an effort to forestall the strike.

When Clark took the first speaker, sat down, Wally R. Hopkins, general counsel for the UMW, took over.

Hopkins began by saying Clark's statement "had better been said in a political forum than in a court of law." Then he hammered at the government's court moves as illegal and at Goldsborough's rulings as lacking authority.

For the most part, the justices listened in silence.

Justice Asks Questions

At one point, Justice Frankfurter stopped Hopkins with a question as to whether the court below on the absence of a clear cut statement on which charge—criminal or civil contempt—was being lodged.

Hopkins replied that the point had been raised consistently but that it was not until the judgment and fines were imposed, "that we knew we had been tried on both civil and criminal contempt."

Hopkins termed the fine "excessive" and urged the court to reverse the contempt conviction of Lewis and the union on the basis of the fines alone.

Clark had argued the fines were not excessive in view of the "injury" to the government and the country from a coal strike, and that Goldsborough's order was legal.

'Mob Rule' Invited

When Lewis disregarded that order, he said, it was a "contempt" that was an "insult" to the country and that "compromises all law and invites mob rule."

"Surely," Clark said, "government has the authority and the power to defend itself against destruction from within—as it has the duty to defend the country from without."

"When that issue is involved no one is immunized—no person or group is beyond the reach of the arm of the law. No person is above the law—and this is a country of law and government of laws."

Clark led off for the government in a case expected to set far-reaching precedents in interpretations of laws applying to organized labor. One is whether the Norris-La Guardia act, which has been on the statute books for many years, bars the government from seeking an injunction against a union.

The law outlaws injunctions "orders to do or not to do" that against unions in labor disputes with private employers.

Court's Order Assailed

Lewis' attorneys contend the law applies also to the government and that hence the miners' union chief was within his legal rights when he ignored an order by Judge Goldsborough against a strike. They said Goldsborough had no right to issue the order.

Goldsborough ruled the disregard for his order was "contempt" and levied the fines. To speed a final ruling, the case was taken directly from his court to the Supreme Court.

Lewis then called off the strike until the Supreme Court could act. His mines are under orders to continue working until March 31.

Clark told the justices of the higher court that in this case the government is not seeking "to infringe in the slightest" on any rights of labor or on the free, dues guaranteed to all citizens by the Constitution.

But it does seek, he said, "to uphold its rights and authority to operate the coal mines which it seized last May 'for war purposes and under a temporary wartime' statute."

To "vindicate the power" of the federal courts to prevent irreparable injury to the people of the United States.

To prohibit "interference with the sovereign functions of the United States."

"One of the most striking things in this case," Clark declared, "is the continued defiance of the defendants (Lewis and the UMW) toward the law, the

"UNBLOCK" your
DIGESTIVE TRACT

And Stop Doing Your Stomach
With Soda and Alkalizers

Don't expect to get real relief from headache, sour stomach, gas, constipation, indigestion, and other ailments if the true cause of your trouble is constipation.

In this case, you not only feel bad, but in the stomach at all. But in the intestinal tract where 80% of your food is digested, and which the lower part gets blocked, food may fail to digest properly.

What you want for real relief is something to "unblock" your intestinal tract, something to clean it out effectively—help Nature get back on her feet.

Get "Laxo" a full 24 hours. Take as directed. This gently and effectively "unblocks" your digestive tract. This gives you a real feeling of relief. You get constant relief from indigestion, gas, sour stomach, constipation, and other ailments. Buy Carter's "Laxo" 24—Laxo—your friend, at least for real relief from indigestion.

courts, and the rights of the people of the United States."

Replying to the argument from union men that the government should not have turned to the courts, Clark asserted that it is "where every American should go for a determination of his rights."

As for the size of the fine, which Lewis contends is "excessive," Clark said it was based on the injury resulting from the union's action as well as on its ability to pay.

The testimony before Judge Goldsborough, he asserted, showed that the government would lose some $280,000,000 a month in taxes from a coal strike while industry and labor would lose billions of dollars.

Fire-Prevention
Measures Listed
In Assn. Pamphlet

A pamphlet recently received by the Roseburg Fire Department from the National Fire Protection Association may well serve as a precautionary guide for all persons of Roseburg to heed, Chief Glen Taylor said today.

Titled "13 Ways Not to Burn Your Home," the booklet is devoted to the reduction of loss of life and property by fire, and points out the causes of fires that destroy homes by the thousands and result in thousands of deaths from burns and smoke suffocation every year.

Taylor stated that these and other fire causes can all be avoided by forethought and simple precautions. The illustrated pamphlet lists the following precautionary measures:

1. Send clothes to the cleaners or use non-explosive cleaning fluids.
2. Burn oily rags in the incinerator at once, or keep them in covered metal cans.
3. Have your smoke (cigarette) BEFORE you go to bed.
4. Use only fire-safe roofing.
5. Keep matches away from small children.
6. Replace frayed electric cords and repair defective electrical equipment.
7. Keep a screen in front of your fireplace and watch the fire.
8. Use only metal barrels for ashes and rubbish.
9. Use paper and kindling—never kerosene.
10. An approved fire extinguisher will provide a "knock-out" blow for small fires.
11. Keep stoves, furnaces and smokepipes in good repair.
12. Keep portable stoves clean and set them well away from combustibles.
13. Burn rubbish only in an incinerator.

Oregon GOP Leaders
Plan Drive for Funds

PORTLAND, Jan. 15.—(AP)—The state Republican committee has announced a fund raising campaign to be headed by Ted R. Gamble, war-time assistant secretary of the treasury in charge of U. S. bond sales.

State Chairman James R. Royce said the money was needed for 1947 activity and to boost the state's party contribution to the national GOP treasury.
