Foreign Schooling Of American Vets Not Smooth Task

By VERN HAUGLAND

WASHINGTON—The Veterans Administration (VA) is suffering a mild case of internal dissension over its overseas education program, but as long as Gen. Omar Bradley is in command the ex-GI who wishes to attend a foreign school probably will be able to study with VA assistance.

J. Glenn Corbitt, VA director of insular and foreign relations, quotes Bradley:

"I favor the exchange of students and am doing everything possible to expedite payment of subsistence allowances to veterans already attending schools abroad."

Some of Bradley's deputies have made no secret of their attitude that subsistence payments overseas lead only to inefficiency and confusion.

Supervision Difficult

"It just isn't possible to supervise the schools or the students adequately in foreign countries," says one. "If they want VA assistance, they ought to be required to attend schools in the United States."

The overseas schooling situation received an airing recently when veteran students at Oxford University in England complained that subsistence payments were slow and that in some cases tuition had not been paid for a year. The GI bill provides for payment of tuition and book costs up to $500 a year and subsistence allowances of $65 per month for students without dependents, and $90 a month for those with dependents. These benefits, depending upon the length of war service, are extended for up to 48 months.

Where Schools Slip Up

VA officials explain that tuition delays are sometimes caused by failures of colleges to fill out forms properly. Some forms have had to be mailed back and forth across the Atlantic four or five times.

Reasons were:

1. Failure of the European school to itemize the tuition bill. Some bills included board and lodging along with other expenses.

2. Failure to specify the time or school term involved.

3. Reluctance of non-English-speaking college officials to sign documents that had not been translated.

4. Sheer negligence. Some schools even forgot to include the most important fact of all—the name of the student for whom they sought tuition payment.

"As for the students themselves, we had to stop subsistence payments when we had reason to suspect that they had ceased attending school," Corbitt explained.

Cites an Example

Payments for one student at an English school were stopped when the veteran was discovered to be in the United States. Later, from London, the student protested the suspension and explained that he had merely gone home on vacation.

Some veterans abroad have been under the impression that all they needed to do upon release from the service was to enroll in a foreign school and that the VA benefits would automatically begin.

Corbitt explained: "No payments can be made until the veteran applies for them—and the payments can not cover school sessions which the veteran may have attended before the VA received and approved the application."

What Is Being Done
VA has taken action to expedite its payments—at least in England—and further long delays are unlikely. Gen. Bradley loaned one of his deputies, Eldon I. Bailey, to the State Department to administer veterans' affairs in the British Isles, and a staff of about 25 is being sent out to assist him.

State Department attaches have also established special VA offices in Rome, Paris and Mexico City. Others may be established in Ottawa, Sydney and elsewhere. VA has set up its own office at Panama City.

VA records listed 611 students receiving assistance at foreign schools at the start of 1947. VA said there probably were many others upon whom reports had not yet been received.

The official list included 330 students in Canada.

Reports for the other countries: England 30, Mexico 63, Canal Zone 39, Palestine 35, Switzerland 32, France 13, Scotland 22, Ireland nine, Cuba seven, Belgium and Chile four each, Sweden three, Italy, Argentina and Denmark two each, Dominican Republic, Colombia, Australia, Peru and Czechoslovakia one each.

Red Cross Spurns Movie Assn. Fund

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Despite a declaration of the American Red Cross that it would refuse the donation, the Permanent Charities Committee of the motion picture industry yesterday presented the Los Angeles Red Cross chapter with a $100,000 check, first installment of a $201,250 contribution.

The American Red Cross stated in full-page newspaper advertisements two days ago that it could not "participate in any joint fund raising campaigns," and that fundamental principles are involved. "The American Red Cross will not be party to any scheme that will lead to dictation by other groups with motives and interests that would undermine the Red Cross and all for which it stands," said the statement.

Edward Arnold, executive vice president of the Film Charities Committee, said in a letter to William T. Semon, Jr., chairman of the Los Angeles chapter:

"We are, as you know, committed by vote of the entire industry and by resolutions of all unions, guilds and other organizations to conduct only one or ganized charity solicitation annually."
