International Press Freedom Proposal Offered

WASHINGTON, April 22. (UP) — Wilbur Forrest, president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, recommended Friday that the United States enter into two-sided or many-sided treaties guaranteeing international freedom of the press.

Forrest told the convention of the ASNE that he made the suggestion because of poor prospects that the United Nations will act to establish world-wide freedom of information.

He said that "international understanding and perhaps the peace of the world are menaced gravely by a veritable din-out of information" as an aftermath of the war.

In his annual report, Forrest, who is assistant editor of the New York Herald Tribune, submitted these additional proposals to the more than 400 editors attending:

1. Creation of a "small but active committee" to define the meaning of the term "freedom of the press," and to decide when and if the society should speak out on claims that press freedom is being violated in this country.

2. Appointment of a standing committee to advise the President on such matters as attacks by those who "seek some measure of control over newspapers."

3. Creation of a salaried secretariat for ASNE in Washington.

Forrest took issue with recent findings of the commission on freedom of the press headed by Dr. Robert Maynard Hutchins, chancellor of the University of Chicago. The commission suggested that newspaper reform is needed lest the press undermine its own freedom.

"If the American press loses its freedom," Forrest declared, "the action will not be based on a blanket indictment such as passed down by the Hutchins grand jury." It will be because there is a loss of interest or of faith on the part of the newspaper reader. We all know that.

"Today daily newspaper circulation in the United States and Canada is something over 53,000,000 copies every 24 hours—an all-time record. Evidently the newspaper as a medium of mass communication is still doing pretty well."

DAILY DEVOTIONAL DR. CHARLES A. EDWARDS

"Keep the heart with all diligence for out of it are the issues of life." The issues of life are of great concern, because they determine the plane on which one lives and the satisfaction one gets out of living.

The source from which life's issues flow, as suggested by the words of Solomon, is the heart. These issues of life that come from the heart are of such importance that we are advised to keep the heart as the word guard of the soul, protect, or keep watch over it might be better understood.

Guard or protect the heart from which the issues of life flow—the issues of life are of such value that perhaps that is what Jesus had in mind when He spoke of the pearl of great price—out of the body are the issues of health; out of the mind the issues of knowledge. We must guard both if we expect health and knowledge.

Out of the heart comes character, and the qualities of character are purity, virtue, godliness, righteousness, goodness and beauty. Is it not worth while to guard our hearts that we may have these things? Tennyson says: "My strength is as the strength of ten, because my heart is pure." That is what Solomon meant when he wrote some years ago, "Keep thy heart with all diligence for out of it are the issues of life." Amen.
