"saving" area and want to use the planes, you'll have to look at the clock, discount it an hour, and plan to be at the airport at the right time by SOMEBODY ELSE'S clock.

THE daylight saving area is concentrated largely in the northeastern part of our country, which is older and whose cities are larger.

Which means that Southerners, Westerners and Midwesterners who want to talk business by telephone with people in New York, Philadelphia, Boston, etc., must remember that time is an hour earlier there, and so must discount their clocks or the man they want to talk to may have gone home by the time the call gets through.

Thus we are reminded again that it takes all kinds of people to make a world.

STATE SECRETARY MARSHALL'S plane, which left Moscow Friday, arrives in Washington Saturday morning. It is met by President Truman, who greets Marshall and says for the benefit of the newsreel cameramen (who are there in force):

"I am most happy to receive you back with us. I am very well pleased with what you have been doing. I know when you make your report to the country the people will also be pleased."

THE Secretary barely paused in Washington, then left by plane for Pinehurst, North Carolina, to greet Mrs. Marshall. He returned to Washington some time Sunday, and on Sunday night he was to meet at the White House with President Truman and congressional leaders.

At this meeting he was scheduled to give a first-hand account "of the big four foreign ministers council and PERHAPS a report on what he and Premier Stalin discussed IN PRIVATE at their meeting at the Kremlin."

AS a common, ordinary citizen of this republic, you may at first thought be a little peeved because you aren't told the whole story in plain, simple words.

Wait a minute. You aren't taking HUMAN NATURE into consideration.

YOU yourself often follow this same procedure. In private, you may express some pretty blunt opinions about your neighbors, your friends and your associates. When you speak IN PUBLIC, you are much more diplomatic. You then follow instinctively the rule that "the least said, the soonest mended."

POLITICS and diplomacy have to take human nature into account. Otherwise, there can be bad trouble. So let's not be too critical of these off-the-record sessions where the low-down comes out.

The whole situation emphasizes the supreme importance of having GOOD men, WISE men, at the head of our government. It is at sessions like these that shallow-pated demagogues can get us into a lot of hot water.

ANTICIPATORY WORRIES

By CHARLES V. STANTON

If for the next few weeks some News-Review employee, with whom you are well acquainted, should pass you by without sign of recognition, please don't be offended. If you catch members of the News-Review staff in spells of absent-mindedness, or see them exhibiting a deeply thoughtful mien, when they should be vivacious, think nothing of it. If News-Review personnel should wear frowns of concentration and evidences of worry, don't be alarmed.

Really there's nothing to worry about. We know everything will be okay when the time comes. We are fully aware that at the crucial moment everything will work out according to plan, but, nevertheless, worry in anticipation is inevitable.

All this worry, abstraction, jittery nerves, and sinking feeling at the pit of the stomach is because we have word from the factory that our uni-tubular press at last is in process of construction and will be on its way in another few weeks.

As long as we simply had the press on order—and we ordered it more than a year ago—it was something to be considered "sometime." Now that we know it is being built, it becomes a reality and needs some definite planning.

For instance, to install the new press, it will be necessary to move and raise our 8-ton flatbed, now in use. We must arrange to keep the present press operating while the new machine is assembled, and yet have it out of the way of press erectors, but still handy for daily operation. That takes some figuring. Then there is the job of completely rearranging and remodeling our mechanical department. We must find room for mat roller, oven, stereo pot, caster, trimmer, router, and other equipment, as well as enlarging make-up space and ad alley.

We have charts, lay-outs, blueprints, etc., and know full well that when time comes to move the present press and set up the new one, with its stereotyping equipment, everything will go smoothly and with few difficulties. Nevertheless, we find mechanical department employees drawing new charts, measuring with yardsticks, planning and calculating, and apparently enjoying anticipatory worry.

The new press is the latest word in equipment for a small daily. It consists of four units, each printing four pages, giving 16-page capacity. Our present press has 8-page capacity, forcing a double run when we exceed eight pages in an edition. Instead of printing direct from page forms, as at present, we will roll mats, and cast a cylindrical plate. The press will have a speed of 20,000 to 30,000 papers per hour, as compared to 3,500 maximum speed of our present press. We will be able to print two or more colors. Additional 4-page units can be added as needed, and, in keeping with presently indicated trends, provision is made whereby attachments can be installed to print color on each page.

But the task of installing this piece of machinery is not all of our worry. We will have a 16-page press and an 8-page supply of newsprint, according to present outlook. We had hoped, when we ordered the new press, that we would have ample paper by the time we installed the machine, but, from all indications, we must limp along for many more months on about one-half the newsprint quota we actually need. Of course, we can print any even number of pages from 4 to 16 on our new press when we get it in operation, but we expect to feel rather unhappy, just as we do at present, when we see an edition utilizing only a part of press capacity when available business would permit almost full use if we could only get sufficient paper.

There we go, worrying again! But we can't help it. Don't come to the News-Review expecting to see the new press in operation for a while yet. You understand it is still in the process of manufacture back in Chicago. Presses are built individually, not by assembly line methods. After construction, they are set up and thoroughly tested. Then they are torn down, all parts cleaned and coated with a protective grease, packed and shipped. Press erectors are dispatched by the factory to reassemble the machine in the purchaser's plant, all of which takes a good many weeks.

It probably will be late June, early July, or maybe as late as August before we get the press in operation, which gives us plenty of time for worrying.

BUYER'S MARKET CHICAGO, April 29.—(AP)—A new price cut was announced today, but it wasn't likely to benefit many households. Director Robert Bean of the Brookfield zoo said the price of live snakes had dropped from 30 to 17 cents a pound because of a price war between two reptile dealers competing for the zoo's business.

Paul Morgan Takes New Police Post At Medford May 15

Transfer of Paul E. Morgan, Oregon State Police sergeant of the Roseburg sub-division office, to Medford and promotion to rank of lieutenant, was announced this week.

To be second in command of the Southern Oregon District headquarters under Captain Paul Parsons, formerly of the Roseburg station, Morgan will assume his duties at Medford May 15. The Roseburg position will be filled by Sergeant Lyle H. Harrell.

Morgan, a member of the Oregon State Police since organization in 1931, took his post in the Roseburg office, replacing Parsons, July 28, 1939 as sergeant, following duty as patrolman at Eugene, Salem and Grants Pass.

Born at Taino, Kans., October 12, 1906, Morgan ultimately moved to Cottage Grove, Oregon, and was married in June of 1926, to Miss Nina Lindamood.

Following successive jobs with the city of Cottage Grove as water department collector, fire chief and motorcycle police officer, he accepted appointment as a member of the State Traffic Division in 1929 which was then under the Secretary of State. He was transferred into the Oregon State Police upon its organization in 1931 and began patrol duty in Salem.

Upon transfer to the Roseburg office as sergeant, Morgan had three men under him handling calls ranging from major and minor traffic accidents and violations to two murders and suicides and directing several dragnets for nationally sought criminals. The present station force numbers eight policemen.

At Medford he will serve, directly under Captain Parsons, in charge of the Southern Oregon Division headquarters, which commands police operations in Douglas, Coos, Curry, Josephine, Jackson, Klamath and Lake counties.

Morgan is a member of Roseburg's Elk Lodge 328, and the Roseburg Country Club, and has played an active part in promotion of sports and recreational activities here during the past seven years. He served as manager of the Umpqua Chiefs semi-pro baseball club one year and participated as player-manager of last year's city softball champions.

His wife and 20-year-old daughter, Elva Jean, will leave with him for Medford next week.

Naval Reserve Training Offered to Reservists Openings for reservists on continuous active duty with the United States Naval Reserve Training Unit was announced today by V. C. Hays, Naval Reserve recruiter at Eugene.

On this duty the trainees will draw pay and allowances of regular Navy men, except the trainees may resign at any time, and may not be transferred except at personal request.

Today personnel are being trained directly from civilian life Hays said, receiving basic and advanced training in specialized phases which will qualify them for Naval aviation rates.

Persons interested in this "vital training" are urged to contact Captain Greber at the recruiting office in Eugene's post office building, or the Air Training Unit, Seattle 5, Wash., by phone, mail, telegram or in person.

Runaway Autos Evoked Warning From Police Two runaway autos brought calls by city police during the past weekend, Police O. A. Kennerly said today. He issued a warning to motorists to secure their brakes before leaving parked automobiles.

A 1937 Plymouth, identified as the property of Quaker Industries, freshly soiled two full blocks from its parked spot in front of the Brookway Apartments Saturday afternoon, finally coming to rest against the parked car of A. S. Coen on a service station lot on South Stephens street, causing considerable body damage to both autos.

The auto of Jack Jusse collided with Marion B. Emmert's parked car in front of the City Hall Sunday morning, rolling driverless a half a block.

College Cast to Present 'Ah, Wilderness' Here Eugene O'Neill's well-known play, "Ah, Wilderness," will be presented at Roseburg Junior High School by the Southern Oregon College Players Wednesday, May 12, at 8 P. M.

The three-act, three-scene play is directed by Angus L. Bowmar of the SOC dramatics class and the presentation has a cast of 15 actors.

R. R. Brand, Roseburg principal, stated that this company of actors have presented "Ah, Wilderness" at the union, Portland in Portland, Grants Pass and Medford and urges the public to attend.

Officers Re-Elected by Christian Endeavors PENDINGTON, Ore., April 28.—(AP)—Delegates to the annual state convention of the Oregon Christian Endeavor Association were heard today after re-electing Walter Frutiger of Portland president and Dorothy Howes, also of Portland, secretary.

Choice of a 1947 convention city was postponed until August. The coveted Paul Brown cup for outstanding work was awarded to Klamath Lake union, Portland union placed second and Wild wood union third.

LETTERS to the Editor

Appreciates Mayor With Humor Streak I've heard several people criticize Mayor Al Flegel for his slightly shady advertisement in the Roseburg News-Review concerning his transfer company, "DON'T WIGGLE TILL YOU SEE FLIGGLE." But what the heck, it made people laugh, didn't it? If every town could be run by men who could make people laugh, the whole world would be better off today.

Roseburg is lucky to have a mayor who can laugh, as well as a turkey show manager who can talk turkey. When Flegel began talking about yawns and stretching, I wondered what he was up to. But now that I'm beginning to do a little of that yawning and stretching myself, I see what he means.

Budget Question In regard to the proposed city budget, as you published it: I thought a city manager was supposed to save the taxpayers money through efficiency. The salary of the governor has been less than the appropriation for the city manager. Where will we home owners be if this budget is passed?

Does Wonders For CONSTIPATED MAN Famous cereal keeps him "regular" without drugs Discouraged about your constipation? Then read this sincere, unsolicited letter:

"I tried so many kinds of laxatives for constipation, but after a while they all failed to do their work. I started to eat KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN some time ago and was surprised to find this wonderful product helped me so many laxatives had failed to do. I eat it every day now and am happy to say I feel like a new man!" Mr. B. Lee Ward, 115 Park Avenue, Edgewood 3, B. I.

Yes, eating ALL-BRAN regularly often brings lasting relief from constipation due to lack of bulk in the diet. For best results, eat it for breakfast every day—and drink plenty of water. Try it for ten days! If by that time you are not completely satisfied with KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN, send the empty carton to the Kellogg Company, Battle Creek, Michigan, and get double your money back.

ALL-BRAN is not a purgative but a wholesome food made from the vital outer layers of whole wheat. Eat daily either as a cereal, or in muffins. Ask your grocer for KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN.

Oregon's Traffic Flow Crest Expected in May Oregon's record traffic flow is expected to reach flood stage in May, it has been revealed by Secretary of State Farrell. The average may top 15,000,000 miles a day from May through August.

"The biggest part of the increase will probably come on the main highways," Farrell said. "Inter-city travel is always at the top during vacation months."

He placed great emphasis on the danger of too much speed on the crowded highways. The latest 1947 summary showed four out of five deaths taking place in rural locations, mostly on main arteries. This trend has been growing markedly over a period of years.

"No sensible person will ignore four-to-one odds," Farrell said. "City driving may seem more nerve-racking, but the real danger hides the open road. Death certificates don't lie."

People expecting to drive on their vacations are being asked to check their cars over carefully. The most recent wide-scale inspection showed probably 100,000 faulty cars operating in this state. Brakes and lights topped the hazard list.
