speech in which Bevin had accused left-wing (communist-leaning) labor members of parliament of "stabbing him in the back while he was engaged in important discussions with the United States government."

WHAT is happening in Britain is this:

Communists are trying to infiltrate the British labor party. These infiltrating communists are seeking to pry Britain loose from the United States and push her over toward the side of Russia.

If they should succeed, a situation would be created that would be embarrassing to us, to put it as mildly as it can be put, and certainly DANGEROUS to us in view of the commitments we are taking on throughout the world.

TWICE, during this all-important annual conference of the British labor party, these left-wingers have been voted down—both times decisively. That is encouraging—so far. If Britain should go communist, it would multiply our problems immensely.

Don't overlook the significance of this British labor party conference—to which, you will note, questions of the utmost importance to the future of Britain are being submitted.

Normally in Britain a vote of confidence on matters affecting policies of the government is taken in the HOUSE OF COMMONS. The fact that a confidence vote is asked from the conference of the LABOR PARTY indicates the strength of the trend toward ONE-PARTY government in Britain.

One-party government is the first step toward TOTALITARIAN government. The fact that this trend is showing up in Britain can't help but be interesting—and not too reassuring—to us.

IN Washington, senate and house conferees agree on final terms of an income tax cut of four billion dollars a year. The tax reduction bill, as agreed to in conference, will now go back to both houses for final action by them.

It will then go to the President, who must either sign it, veto it or permit it to become a law without his signature. It will be interesting to see what he does.

KEEP this in mind:

A reduction in taxes will be equivalent to an increase in wages UNLESS CONGRESS GOES AHEAD AND SPENDS MORE MONEY THAN CAN BE RAISED BY TAXES UNDER THE NEW BILL.

In that event, we will continue to go into debt.

Soil Conservation Cut Would Affect Oregon

WASHINGTON, May 31.—(AP)—The Agriculture Department is notifying the states how much payments to farmers under the AAA soil conservation program will be cut in each if the House-approved departmental appropriation bill becomes law.

The House measure cut total payments from $267,000,000 recommended by President Truman and authorized by Congress a year ago to $150,000,000 for the 1947 crop year.

Payments are made to those farmers who carry out government-recommended farming practices designed to improve the soil and reduce erosion.

The amounts of payments planned by states, based upon the $267,000,000 Presidential recommendation and those now figured if the House bill's $150,000,000 is enacted, include:

Oregon, $3,139,000 and $1,771,000.

PRESERVE "GUNG HO"

By CHARLES V. STANTON

Death has claimed Brigadier General Evans F. Carlson, one of the most colorful personalities of the late war. Carlson, whose health was wrecked by the rigors to which he subjected himself in executing one of the most arduous military achievements of the war, had been in retirement at Brightwood, Ore., where he collapsed from the heart ailment resulting from his strenuous service.

Carlson was a "thorn in the flesh" to the "old-line" militarists.

He had served in the first World war and, after seven years in the Army, joined the Marine Corps in 1919, being commissioned a second lieutenant at the age of 26, despite an age limit of 27, which was waived because of his exceptional ability.

Sent on a mission to China, Carlson's criticism of military methods aroused widespread friction with senior officers. He became an authority on China and after failing to secure improvements he desired in military relations with that country, he resigned to become a civilian aide to the Chinese government.

At the outset of the second World war he was given an opportunity to put into execution some of the reforms for which he had been working.

He outlined a plan for a fast-moving, hard-striking Marine force, composed of physically perfect men, trained to the limit of human endurance. Commissioned to organize and lead such an organization, he brought into existence "Carlson's Raiders," whose achievements in the blackest hours of the Pacific war set new traditions for bravery and military genius.

Carlson, then a major in the Marines, acted on the theory that every man in his command was equal to every other man. No commissioned officer ranked above the lowest private except in organizational position. Carlson's Raiders were a particular force for a particular job. They went through a nightmare of training. Day after day they were driven to the point of physical exhaustion. They learned to live in the most primitive way. They went for days on a minimum of food while subjected to long marches. This training had its payoff in their raids far behind enemy lines, in which they annihilated one command station after another while travelling hundreds of miles on foot, carrying on their backs their supplies, equipment, and their wounded.

They were a team and to exemplify their teamwork they adopted the motto, watchword and battle cry "Gung Ho."

"Gung Ho" is a combination of Chinese words which baffle translation. It is the superlative of cooperation. It is the "One for all, or all for one," device of the Three Musketeers. But it has a deeper significance of blood brotherhood and a pledge of working and being together. Its true translation can be found only in demonstration as furnished by Carlson's Raiders and their traditions in which each man was the equal of any other, including the commander, in which each man had the right and opportunity to voice his opinions, in which each man was kept fully informed on every detail of each operation, but in which authority and discipline found perfect exemplification.

Carlson was a non-conformist to military methods. He proved his theories would work with a group of hand-picked men. Military leaders still debate whether his theories will work with the average soldier and officer.

But his slogan, "Gung Ho," should not be allowed to die with the man who brought it into practical application.

We need "Gung Ho" in our national life. We need it in our every day relations, one with another. We need it in administration from the lowest to the highest level. That spirit of cooperation, working together, comradeship, self sacrifice, determined endeavor, expressed in those two Chinese words is a crying need today. And with it we need the self-discipline which characterized Carlson's Raiders.

Wives of Former Nazi Leaders to Be Placed on Trial

MUNICH, Germany, May 31—(AP)—Dr. Alfred Loritz, Bavarian denazification minister, said yesterday he would demand maximum penalties—10 years imprisonment—for at least six mates of Adolf Hitler's ex-henchmen, four of whom met their death at Nuernberg prison.

Loritz, who announced the arrest Thursday of 53-year-old Emmy Goering, widow of Hermann, on charges that the former actress was a member of the Nazi party, said orders also had gone out for the arrest of Mrs. Fritz Sauckel, widow of the Nazi labor boss; Mrs. Hans Frank, widow of the Nazi governor general of Poland, and Mrs. Wilhelm Frick, widow of the "protector" of Bohemia and Moravia.

The Bavarian official said he also planned the arrest and prosecution of Mrs. Labdur von Schirach, attractive wife of the former Hitler youth leader, who is serving 20 years in prison for war crimes and the 69-year-old widow of Field Marshal Erich von Ludendorff.

Loritz asserted he had had "many difficulties" in bringing Mrs. Goering to trial as a Nazi. He added that the difficulties were raised "not only by Germans, but by others as well." He declined to elaborate.

Mrs. Goering became a member of the Nazi party in 1935.

She told a reporter recently that her membership was conferred on her by Hitler without her knowledge.

Mrs. Goering has been living with her child, Edda, about 12 miles from Nuernberg. Loritz said he ordered denazification officials to put her in jail and prepare her denazification trial some weeks ago.

As Emmy Sonnemann, Mrs. Goering was a favorite German actress before her marriage to the reichmarshal in 1935. Adolf Hitler was best man and up to 25,000 Germans paid admission to see the services. She received a vast pile of wedding presents including a diadem from her husband, then second in power only to Hitler.

Registration of Motor Cars Points to New High

SALEM, Ore., May 31.—(AP)—More than 470,000 motor vehicles have been registered in Oregon so far this year, larger than during all of last year, Secretary of State Farrell reports.

He said the total registration this year should exceed 500,000 for the first time in history. About 360,000 private passenger cars have been registered this year.

Farrell said automobile travel in April was the highest for any April on record, gasoline sales having been 35,000,000 gallons during the month.

Gasoline tax receipts for the first four months this year totaled $5,400,000, or $1,000,000 more than in the similar period of 1946.

Junior Registration For Summer School Set

Registration will be held Monday, from 2 to 4 P. M., for Junior High School students who wish to attend summer school to make up homework, it was announced today by R. R. Brand, principal. The school will be in session from June 9 through June 18. Pupils through the 9th grade will be accepted.

CLERKS PICKET GROCERY

PORTLAND, May 30.—(AP)—AFL retail grocery clerks began picketing a grocery here yesterday, contending it did not employ union help.

The Independent Retail Grocers Association said the store, owned by Israel Hasson, was operated by a single family and did not employ anyone.

Thousands of Jobs Periled by Planned Farm Budget Slash

WASHINGTON, May 30.—(AP)—Several thousand Agriculture Department employes in Washington and in the field received notices yesterday that they will lose their jobs July 1 if the House approved department appropriation bill is accepted by the Senate.

The House cut the department's appropriation 28 per cent below President Truman's budget recommendations.

Officials told reporters they do not have figures on the total number of employes given severance notices but in some branches the percentage was estimated as high as 50 per cent.

The department had 64,413 full time employes on April 30. Of this number, 11,589 were employed in Washington.

Perhaps hardest hit is the far-flung Production and Marketing Administration Agency, which administers the AAA soil conservation program, marketing quota programs, farm price support operations and crop insurance.

These programs took the brunt of the $341,000,000 House reduction from Mr. Truman's recommendation.

The Production and Marketing administration has 13,631 full time employes here and in the field.

FHA Also Affected

Another agency which would be forced to cut its staff heavily, perhaps an estimated 45 per cent, is the Farmers Home Administration. It provides financial assistance to low income farmers and veterans seeking farms.

The FHA has 8,741 employes here and in the field, with offices in most of the nation's important agriculture counties. They said more than a third of these offices would have to be closed.

Officials said some employes who have been given discharge notices perhaps will be retained. They explained the department wanted to be on the safe side in case the final appropriation measure should be reduced further before it finally passes Congress. Civil Service rules require that employes who lose their jobs because of reduction in force must be given at least 30 days notice.

County Units to Suffer

Likely to suffer the largest total reduction in employes rolls are the county agriculture adjustment agency offices.

They are not classed as a part of the department. Instead they are operated and administered by county farmer committees from cash grants supplied by the department from funds appropriated for administration of the soil program.

These committeees, which have been informed on the prospective reduction in their expenditure grants, will have the responsibility of adjusting expenses to the new grants.

The funds available for state PMA offices this year and those indicated for the next fiscal year and the grants for county committee expenses this year and those indicated for the coming year, respectively, by states include:

Oregon—$95,483 and $27,614; $244,997 and $156,421.

Masons Nearly Trapped In $300,000 Elgin Fire

ELGIN, Ore., May 30.—(AP)—Fire leveled a half city block and nearly trapped 30 Masonic lodge members meeting in their second-floor rooms in this Northeastern Oregon town Wednesday night.

Some of the men were rescued from windows by firemen's ladders and others made their way to the stairs through a smoke-filled hall. None was injured.

Businessmen's estimates of loss totaled approximately $300,000.

The fire started apparently in a shed adjacent to the Masonic hall.

Housed in the destroyed brick-veneer structure were a pool hall, dance hall, dry goods store, radio store, cannery office, three apartments and the Masonic lodge.

U. S. National Adds Vale Bank to Oregon Chain

PORTLAND, Ore., May 30.—(AP)—The First National Bank of Vale, Ore., will be taken over Saturday by the U. S. National Bank of Portland.

The bank here said it was purchasing the institution, which has more than $2,800,000 in deposits, from W. E. Cosgriff and associates, Salt Lake City. It will become the U. S. National's 33d Oregon branch.

D. E. Masterson, now vice-president at Vale, will become manager.

Newberg Driver Found Pinned Under His Auto

PENDLETON, Ore., May 30.—(AP)—Tommy Bond, 53, of Newberg, was injured seriously near here early today when he was pinned under his car which left the highway and overturned.

Bond, a former Pendleton resident, was discovered by passing motorists. He sustained back injuries, extent of which still was undetermined. State police suggested he may have gone to sleep at the wheel.

Van Zandt to Aid G. O. P. Nominee in Washington

WASHINGTON, May 30.—(AP)—Rep. Van Zandt (R-Pa.) announced today he was leaving immediately for the Third Congressional District of Washington to campaign for Russell V. Mack, Republican nominee in a special congressional election.

Mack, Van Zandt said, is an old friend. The congressman, former national commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, said he had worked with Mack through the last 12 years.

The election June 7 is to fill the seat made vacant by the death of Rep. Norman (R-Wash.). The Democratic nominee is former Congressman Charles R. Savage.

Erasure of Expensive Potato Surplus Sought

WASHINGTON, May 30.—(AP)—The House authorized its Agriculture Committee yesterday to investigate the possibility of wiping out a potato surplus, which cost taxpayers $80,000,000 in subsidies last year.

Rep. Shafer (R.-Mich.), author of the resolution to authorize the investigation, told the House last year's surplus of 100,000,000 bushels could be wiped out if bakers would use 4 per cent potato flour in making bread.

Shafer said the flavor of bread would be improved and perhaps the price of wheat could be brought "more in line with that of other commodities."

Cantaloupes are really muskmelons, but are so called because Italian fruit dealers in this country thought they resembled an Italion melon grown near Castle Cantaloupo.

Atomic Control Veto Issue Nears U. N. Showdown

LAKE SUCCESS, May 30—(AP)—The United States and Russia headed today toward a showdown on the question of the veto in atomic control.

The controversial issue is whether all functions in the atomic field will be subject to the major-power veto of the United Nations Security Council.

The pattern for the fight was set yesterday when Russia gained a minor decision in the U. N. Atomic Energy Commission.

The Soviet edge came when the commission's working committee adopted unanimously a Russian-sponsored resolution reaffirming a general assembly decision that any international system of atomic control should operate within the framework of the security council.

Although U. S. Deputy Delegate Frederick H. Osborn voted for the resolution, he had repeatedly insisted its adoption left the way open for the Russians to claim that all functions in the atomic field should be made subject to the veto.

Osborn tried unsuccessfully to insert an amendment specifying that the resolution "in no way modifies the commission's first report." This report recommended an international atomic control agency free of big power veto.

But Osborn's fear that the Soviet resolution would place atomic matters within reach of the security council veto was not shared by many of the other delegates.

They agreed with Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Gromyko that the committee could ill afford to refuse to pass something already approved by the 55-national general assembly.

Federal-Owned Floating Cannery Target of Attack

WASHINGTON, May 30. —(AP)—Chairman John D. Goodloe of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation promised yesterday that corrective action will be taken, if warranted, to stop competition of the government-owned and privately leased floating cannery "Pacific Explorer" with private fishermen.

"We don't have to be forced to do it," Goodloe testified to the House Banking committee.

Rep. Fletcher (R.-Calif.) had just told him:

"If you want to be forewarned, you'd better work out some corrective action."

The Pacific Explorer is operated by Nick Bez under a contract that pays the government a rental of $50,000 a year or 55 per cent of the profits, whichever is greater.

Fletcher said it is supposed to foster scientific research and exploration for the fishing industry but is operating in the "lush" fishing grounds off Costa Rica and driving fishermen out of business.

After complaints by the Southern California Tuna industry, a House Fisheries Subcommittee held an extensive hearing on the Pacific Explorer. On Tuesday, Chairman Tollefson (R.-Wash.) of that committee sent the record of its hearing to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation without recommendation. It asked the agency to report whether any changes should be made in the arrangement for operation of the ship.

Goodloe said the question is being studied and if action is warranted, it will be taken.
