they can eat or peddle in the black markets. Therefore the grim spectre of hunger stalks the streets of the cities and towns.

Then goes to the root of the matter in these words: "The remedy lies in breaking the vicious circle and RESTORING THE CONFIDENCE of the European people in the economic future of their own countries and of Europe as a whole."

It will cost money. Plenty of it. Ten to fifteen billions is the current estimate of informed Americans — including former President Hoover.

But don't get scared. It's GOOD BUSINESS. If we go through with it intelligently. If you had a store in an area where everybody was broke and hungry, you couldn't do much business.

You don't like the idea, of course. This writer doesn't like it. Your impulse is to say: "Let the rest of the world look out for itself. They made this broth. Let 'em stew in it. We'll look out for OURSELVES."

Switzerland is the shining example of isolationism in the modern world. Switzerland has been untouched by two wars. Her industrial plant is unscathed. Her people are hard workers. Her present level of production is HIGH.

LITTLE Switzerland is too small to do much about it. If her customers go broke, she'll just have to go broke with them. BIG America isn't too small. She CAN do something about it.

HE has something else in the back of his mind. He says: "Our policy is directed not against any country or doctrine, but against hunger, poverty, desperation and chaos."

HE is looking communism, which breeds in the soil of despair, squarely in the eye, and saying to it: "We'll take you on in a fair contest. We'll show the world that OUR WAY IS BETTER THAN YOURS."

NORTHWEST IN PICTURES

By CHARLES V. STANTON

During the past seven months, the Oregon State Highway Commission's Travel and Information Department has received 90,000 individual inquiries concerning Oregon.

In addition to inquiries received by the state publicity department, chambers of commerce throughout the state announce a record number from prospective vacationists and would-be settlers.

The coming tourist season is expected to see our highways, our resorts and vacation spots crowded as never before. It is freely predicted that income from the tourist industry will reach an all-time high.

The Travel and Information Department has been publishing attractive colored advertisements in the nation's leading magazines. It has joined in a cooperative advertising effort with the State of Washington and Province of British Columbia in a series of advertisements promoting the "Evergreen Empire."

The Standard Oil Company is distributing free photographs at all of its Standard and Chevron service stations. These picture subjects, chosen from among hundreds submitted by the West's best photographers, create a desire to travel and see the gorgeous scenic spots so beautifully portrayed and described.

A campaign of this nature cannot help but be effective. It will serve to stimulate tourist travel into the state. How well is Oregon prepared to accommodate its expected guests? We fear that many of our visitors will be greatly disappointed.

Their first bad impression of Oregon will come when they travel our highways. While sections of the Pacific highway, the Oregon Coast highway, and the Central Oregon highway are in good condition, we have innumerable bottle-necks, such as the section from Wolf Creek to Eugene, precluding any enjoyment of the scenic beauties of the route.

After a day of exhausting driving, with nerves frayed by narrow escapes, he may have to sleep in his car, or put up with entirely unsatisfactory accommodations, because Oregon has too few hotels, camp grounds, motels, tourist cabins, etc., to care properly for the people who will be filling our highways.

Much emphasis has been placed upon the need for more and better tourist accommodations. While we recognize the obvious need, we believe this condition will remedy itself. So long as we have free enterprise and competition, private capital will build motels and tourist cabins while opportunity exists for profit.

But the highway problem is a different matter. If we continue our present policies, our highways will forever be far behind requirements. For years our highway construction has become obsolete before the building job was finished.

There is considerable opinion that the state should issue highway bonds sufficient to construct modern thoroughways on all principal routes—highways built for the future and not for the present. Should we adopt such policy, and at the same time impose a sales tax, allowing the tourist to help pay the cost, the problem of accommodations would dissipate quickly and we would then be in a position where our tourist advertising would produce far greater benefits.

LETTERS to the Editor

Double Benefit From Military Training Seen

I heard over the radio Frank Hemingway's quote of the statement about military training made by War Correspondent Kenneth L. Dixon. No doubt many others heard the same broadcast June 4.

Mr. Dixon is right in many of his statements, but there is one thing he overlooked, namely, the benefit the young men would get out of that training. It would also take a lot of boys off the streets or out of the strip-down cars tearing around through the streets all hours of the night.

That is the reason so many of our boys had to be sent to prison camps during this last war. But as far as President Truman's statement that we must have compulsory military training to combat the A-bomb, that is far-fetched.

Cop's Bullet Halts Flight Of Suspected Burglar

PORTLAND, June 6.—(AP)—A policeman's bullet critically wounded Charles Melvin Taylor, 36, as he fled from arrest on a burglary charge here last night.

Detective George Caywood said he fired the shot when Taylor broke away and tried to run in to his rooming house. The bullet struck Taylor in the head.

Caywood said Taylor and his wife had been arrested on a burglary warrant and were waiting in front of the rooming house for the patrol wagon at the time he added that records showed Taylor had served terms for theft in the Kentucky and Wyoming state prisons.

Publicity to Be Given Roseburg at B. P. W. C. Assembly

Roseburg will be well publicized at the 1947 annual regional meeting of the Business and Professional Women's Club of America at Sun Valley, Idaho, July 9, 10, and 11.

The local chapter has arranged to mail to the conclave headquarters more than 150 pencil and stamped and printed with unique forms of advertising telling briefly of Roseburg's many resources and its opportunities for a livelihood.

Pencils, donated by the Saar Pencil Factory of Roseburg, and pads, now being bound and printed by local print shops, are to be sent to Sun Valley for distribution to representatives of the national organization from throughout the country, and delegates from 11 western states.

A novel lyric has been written by Mrs. Alvie Weather which is to be printed on the outside cover of the pads and "Roseburg, Oregon," is being printed on the pencils.

The poem, titled "Roseburg, Oregon," reads: Where the roses bloom all winter, And the fish bite in the spring, Where cooling summer breezes, Bring health and vigor bring, Where the valleys are an Eden, Luscious fruits and gardens grow, We have world's admiration acclaim.

For our Northwest Turkey Show, Where forests clothe the mountains, With a lush and verdant robe, And lumber mills hum busily, While their products span the globe, We can't send you a ship's mast, Or a cabin by the sea, But please accept this pencil, From Roseburg's B. P. W. C.

Grange Demands Referendum on New Utility Law

BEND, June 4.—(AP)—Oregon State Grange delegates were en route home today after demanding a referendum on a recently enacted state law to encourage the Idaho Power Company to build a $10,000,000 dam on the Snake River.

The measure, passed by the last legislature, took away the state's right to acquire private power projects after two years' notice. Acquisition may be had only by condemnation.

The 600 delegates in their final session of the annual convention also condemned the "poor quality" of fruit jar tops and rubbers, and urged action against low-flying planes which frighten poultry.

Earlier delegates voted to increase the state grant to $4,200 annually. They rejected a proposal to limit the tenure of the state master and executive committee to three years.

Resolutions were passed for higher wool tariffs and for U. S. support of agricultural rehabilitation in war-ravaged nations.

Scofflaw Hunters Will Be Closely Watched This Fall

SANTE FE, N. M., June 7.—(AP)—Hunters in 11 Western states this fall generally will find improved conditions except for waterfowl. Fees will cost more and the competition will be keen.

Hunting probably will be under the closest scrutiny in history as most Western states crack down against an "unprecedented let down in respect for game laws and the rights of private property."

This general picture emerged today from the 27th annual conference of Western States Game and Fish Commissioners, which in closing yesterday, pointed up contention between the livestock industry and the hunting and fishing fraternity over western lands.

By resolution, the commissioners "unanimously" opposed sale of Taylor grazing lands or other public domain to individuals for "special interests."

The resolutions singled out U. S. Senate Bill 33, it provides for acquisition by stockmen of property rights in grazing leases and sets up an advisory board of stockmen in grazing areas with power to make decisions binding on the U. S. Forest Service.
