Business Magazine Joins Wallace Plan To Purchase Peace

By PETER EDSON

NEA Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON, D. C.—Everybody haw-hawed when Henry Wallace in a barnstorming speech at Chicago several weeks ago proposed a positive peace program. It involved American investments and exports of $150 billion over a period of years to raise the standards of living in Europe and Asia. The general verdict was that this was just another of Henry's hybrid, cracked-corny ideas in a milk bottle.

But in the June issue of Fortune—self-styled magazine of business—there is a lead editorial three pages long which proposes an idea so similar to Henry's it will make your eyes pop.

It would be wrong to believe that this editorial was inspired by Henry Wallace. Fortune goes to press weeks in advance, and this editorial was probably in type before Henry Wallace got to Chicago. As a matter of fact, Fortune rejects Wallace's general philosophy with this comment:

"Neville Chamberlain believed in 1937 that the world could 'do business' with Hitler. Henry Wallace believes in 1947 that the world can 'do business' with Stalin. We believe both proposals to be identical fallacies."

Despite this, the fact that Wallace and Fortune could come up with similar proposals should be significant of something, and the casual bystander is entitled to ask that old rhetorical bromide, "Who's Looney Now?"

The Fortune proposal is too long to quote in full here. Also it is tough going and should be read a couple of times by every businessman to get its full meaning. It is addressed "To the Boards of Directors of American Business." Its high spots go something like this:

Fortune's Proposal
It begins with a proposal that a 50-year lease on peace would be worth $100 billion to American business. That's $50 billion less than Wallace proposes, but it's $2 billion a year for 50 years.
This is considered cheap when compared to the $100 billion a year for three years which the last war cost.

Wars, it says, are caused by the fact that there is not enough food, shelter or goods to go around. The only way nations have tried to get enough in the past has been to go out and take it from each other by force.

The U. S. is the only country on the globe with an organized capacity to produce and re-produce. The idea is to put that production to the service of the world—not for altruism, but for world policy and for profit.

"We believe," say the anonymous editors of Fortune, "that $100 billion invested in peace now would begin returning net profits long before the first 50 years of our leasehold had run its course." Four-Point Formula

There are four steps which Fortune says U. S. business should take to make this policy stick.
Remember as you read them that this is Big Business talking, not Henry Wallace:

1. A 15 to 20 per cent reduction in the U. S. internal price level.
This reduction would be made "in the beginning" at the expense of profits. The cost would be $750 million a month. But as prices declined, purchasing power would rise and the volume of business with it. This 15 to 20 per cent price reduction would make it possible for foreign consumers to buy on U. S. markets.

2. A series of massive U. S. loans or grants abroad. Some of this would come out of the hides of Americans in the form of taxes. But Big Businessman Borah (R-I) is quoted to the effect that nine-tenths of this money would be spent in the U. S. because "It has no place else to go."

3. The U. S. should encourage imports. U. S. businessmen will have to reject utterly the philosophy of that wing of the Republican party which would return to the days of high protective tariff.

4. Wherever U. S. money goes there should go U. S. engineers to help spend the money loaned.
This is not to control foreign industry, but to make it productive.

TWO-CAR TROUBLES

SEATTLE, June 18. (AP)— When a car is parked too long or in a restricted zone the city impounds it and the driver must call to get it back.

When Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Godfrey, Jr., met at the impound window in the city traffic bureau they stared at each other and chortled.

"What? you, too?" The Godfreys are a two-car family.

Ellsworth Raps Farm Department

WASHINGTON, June 17. (AP)— Rep. Harris Ellsworth of Oregon asserted today that members of Congress, including himself, "have lost confidence in the efficiency, ability, and yes, even the integrity, of many of our government departments."

He said in a statement that the last straw was the handling of the sugar situation by the Agriculture Department.

Recalling that a year ago many Oregon poultry producers liquidated their flocks because of a feed shortage, he said the government later found no shipping was available to take the grain to Europe and the freeze order on wheat was lifted—but not until farmers in the northwest had lost heavily.

"The erratic action of the Department of Agriculture regarding wheat was brought to mind by the fact that similar unexplainable antics have been going on lately with respect to sugar," Ellsworth said. "On June 7, for example, Secretary Anderson testified before the House committee on Banking that removal of sugar controls at this time was not considered possible. Four days later, he removed the controls."

"The wheat and sugar illustrations are but samples of administration blunders with which we are confronted constantly."
