Indian Tribe in California Comes To Miserable End

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — This play ground of the wealthy is also a cemetery of the vanishing Redskin. It is the racial graveyard of southern California's first real estate promoters and climate boosters.

More Noise Than Music. Two centuries later when settlement by the Spaniards began in earnest, the Catalinos still glad to find someone new to brag about the California climate.

The missionaries at once set about converting the happy heathen, and put them to work tending the fields, learning handicrafts and herding cattle.

Bad Habits Adopted. They took slowly to the strange new God, the missionaries, but quickly adopted the bad habits of the Spanish soldiers — and their diseases.

Drivers Urged to Heed Period For License Renewal. "When do I renew my driver's license?" is still the leader in an avalanche of questions pouring into the Driver's License Division in Salem, according to Secretary of State Farrell.

Jerry Ambler Wins Top Honors of Salinas Rodeo. SALINAS, Calif., June 23. — (AP) The best buckaroo in the Salinas rodeo today was hard riding Jerry Ambler of Klamath Falls, Ore.

OLYMPIC SITES FIXED. STOCKHOLM, June 21. — (AP) Avery Brundage, head of the American delegation to the International Olympic Committee meeting here, announced today that the committee had selected Helsinki, Finland, and Oslo, Norway, as the sites for the 1952 Olympic games.

RECESSION RESPONSIBILITY

By CHARLES V. STANTON

Union leaders, polled by the Taft committee on economic trends, complain about lack of public purchasing power. Lack of purchasing power is an obstacle, it is charged, to maintenance of business and industry at present high levels.

The Taft committee, seeking to learn opinion with reference to anticipated future trends of business and industry, polled 600 leading businessmen, farmers, industrialists, labor leaders and others. Replies quite generally voiced expectation of a general business decline during the last half of the year, but, for the most part, it was felt the decline would be slight in overall percentage — no big drops in prices, little unemployment, minor cuts in profits, etc.

If predictions of these leaders are accurate, we are due to experience a slow and orderly return to more normal conditions, a progressive retreat from danger of inflation, a general easing of abnormally high prices, but still above the average in employment, wages, profits and prices.

Replies to the congressional poll point out resistance to high prices, particularly in the building field, where prospective builders, anticipating reduced construction costs, are delaying start of planned projects.

Complaint also is made that the high cost of food leaves the public with too little to spend for other merchandise.

The labor leaders, however, place their finger directly on the sore spot, in emphasizing reduced purchasing power.

And who is largely responsible for shrinkage of our national reserve of buying power? When the war ended the people of this nation had accumulated huge sums in savings. Folks at that time indicated billions of dollars available to build homes and buy durable goods.

But immediately we were plunged into a cycle of labor unrest. First one industry and then another went on strike. Because of interdependence between industries our production was slowed to a walk. Millions of workers, many of whom were not involved in the then current disputes, were kept in idleness.

During the months that have elapsed since the war our working population has lost millions of man-hours in which they could have been producing goods to relieve shortages and at the same time been procuring earnings. Instead, because of idleness, they were forced to draw upon their accumulated wartime savings to sustain themselves and their families during strikes or because of shutdowns due to material shortages.

The blame, of course, must be shared by management. It cannot all be charged to labor. But many of our important strikes could have been averted had there been more willingness to prolong negotiations, rather than invoking strikes and work stoppages at the slightest provocation. Too many union leaders used the radical approach.

Now, as a result of our failure to maintain capacity production — because of our postwar spree — we have "wasted our substance."

With our surplus buying power materially depleted, we must settle down to work in order and harmony if we are to prevent a serious recession.

If management and labor will accept responsibility toward the general public and attempt to compose their differences without cessation of production, we doubtless can escape a major depression. We can hold a high wage level, and, through volume production, force gradual, orderly price declines. The process, however, requires conservative rather than radical treatment of disputed points between management and labor, and insistence upon the part of the working forces of organized labor that their leaders shall exhaust all possible channels of peaceful settlement before being armed with authority to enforce demands through use of the strike.

Drivers Urged to Heed Period For License Renewal

The 1947 Oregon legislature changed the renewal law, so that licenses now expire by serial number, lowest numbers first. The date printed on the permit is in most cases no longer correct. Drivers can tell when their licenses expire by consulting a renewal schedule.

Application for renewals in Roseburg should be made at City Hall between the hours of 8 A. M. and 5 P. M. on Monday through Friday. No examination is necessary.

Besides the "when to renew" question, three others were listed with their answers: 1. Can I come in ahead of schedule to get my new license? — No, it keeps others from getting quick service in their proper turns. 2. Can I mail in my application for a new license? — Please don't; only certain forms and fees are acceptable. Mail applications are often defective. 3. Won't I get an individual notice when my license expires? — No; no one will be told individually when to come in. Follow the schedule.

Jerry Ambler Wins Top Honors of Salinas Rodeo

AMBLER lived up to his reputation as one of the nation's top hands by taking first money in bronco riding in the four-day show.

Buster Ivory of Hayward, Calif., all-around world champion cowboy, who took second.

Mickey McCloy of Reno, Nev., was first in steer wrestling. Asbury Schell and John Rhode, both of Tucson, Ariz., shared the team roping and Munroe Harmon of Riverdale the wild cow milking.

It is estimated that there will be at least 20 million passengers for American airlines in 1947, almost a third more than the 1946 total.

Communists Obstruct U. N. Progress, Charge

FOREST GROVE, June 23. — (AP) — The Northwest Institute of International Relations closed its 13th session with Admiral Richmond K. Turner, naval observer at the United Nations assembly, blaming a Communist designed chaos obstructing U. N. progress. "The Communist group, while professing idealistic international intentions, is engaged in an ideological and economic warfare designed for the deliberate destruction of the stability of the governments and social structures of nations not already under Communist domination. World security is at stake," he told the group.
