'Veter-Anns' Work Out Own Problems With Little Cash

By PATT WATTS
NEA Staff Correspondent
LOS ANGELES — It might have been any co-ed bull session except that the women gathered around the room were a little older than the average college girl.

There was another big difference. These co-eds were wearing service discharge buttons instead of sorority pins on their sweaters. The forgotten woman of World War II—the "Veter-Anns" and "GIettes"—were holding a meeting at UCLA.

Women veterans attending the university on the GI Bill have formed their own veterans' club for the same reason most campuses now have organized veteran groups of men students—to talk over common problems and old times.

Little Cash, Much Work
Ginnie Edington, a pretty brunette ex-Wave who heads the group, says women veterans' problems in school are about the same as men's. They are older than the average non-veteran student, more serious about their college work, and usually have to spend much of their spare time working to eke out the $65 government allowance. They have little time for college social activities.

Few of the women students are married. Most of them live with their families in Los Angeles or room with other women veterans. Several are living in a co-operative dormitory where they get room and board for less than $30 a month plus 16-hours dormitory work, such as washing dishes or cooking.

Like men veterans, they have found that their old uniforms are pretty adaptable for classroom wear. GI skirts and blouses are teamed with pastel sweaters. Service insignias come off and flowers or less military buttons replace them.

The "Veter-Anns" usually meet at night, in dormitory rooms or in someone's home. They've sponsored dances, get-acquainted teas, and taken trips to nearby military hospitals. They are currently organizing informal classes in art appreciation, clothing design and millinery for hospitalized women vets.

Founded as a branch of the Cal-Vets, the 6500-strong veterans group at UCLA, women now head both the social and publicity committees of the parent organization.

Four Do Farm Work
Meanwhile, four other California women veterans are taking advantage of loan provisions of the GI Bill and becoming farmers. So far, the farming is more hobby than work, but they intend to make it pay dividends.

Karl Maxie, Frances Dipola, Ginny Grooms and Annabelle Kulpinski served in the WAC together. When the war ended they came to California to live. One got a job as a doctor's receptionist, one as a bookkeeper, the other two with a motor company. On weekends, they plow and plant their 15 acres.

Loan payments cost them $52 a month, and they each assume responsibility for a fourth of it. They are using a neighbor's equipment and repaying him by helping with his crops in their "spare" time. Now they are looking forward to the day when the partnership is solvent enough to buy a horse and some dogs.

Of the 2,624 officers graduated from West Point during World War II, 825 were commissioned in the Army Air Forces.

AN INSPIRING PROGRAM YOU WILL NOT WANT TO MISS

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

Dr. N. P. Sconce, Pastor.

You're richer than you think—in household possessions. They grow on you.

They mount up on you in value week by week, year by year.

Have you recently—or ever—taken a pad and pencil and added up the value of your furniture and clothes and other things in your home—room by room, closet by closet—shelf by shelf?

Do it, and you'll get the shock of your life. It's usually staggering! All of us, who have houses or apartments, accumulate these things slowly—but we can lose them all mighty fast in a fire.

How much would it cost you to replace everything in your home—and start all over from scratch right now?

PROTECTION IS DIRT-CHEAP

Fire insurance on household possessions costs so little that we are foolish to go on as ludicrously uninsured as most of us are.

You read about plenty of fires these days. You, too, can have a pip of a fire any minute.

So make a list today of all your household possessions—and stop in or call this agency to get covered quickly and adequately.
