Take it Easy On July 4th, Advice Given Motorists

"Make your July Fourth an easy one," Secretary of State Farrel is urging Oregon motorists. "Plan for the most enjoyment rather than the most mileage."

Traffic volumes on Oregon highways this month are unprecedented. July Fourth crowds are expected to swell the volumes sharply, hence safety men are stressing the danger of hurrying. Records show unnecessary hurry to have killed more Oregonians than any other traffic factor.

Everywhere this year the vogue is toward planning shorter, easier trips. Seasoned travelers have learned that trying to see and do too much frequently results in an expensive failure to enjoy a brief vacation.

"An hour's early start in the morning prevents the need to hurry all day," Farrel said. "Plan an easy trip and start early, and you'll find driving holds a new treat."
