apparently was agreed upon at Yalta as payment to Russia for staying in the war.

From behind this line she will attempt to keep Western Europe hungry and in turmoil, knowing that out of long-continued hunger, turmoil and hopelessness COMMUNISM EMERGES.

WITH the situation thus made perfectly clear, our job, as the champion of free enterprise in a world that apparently must choose between the individual as a free agent and the individual as a VASSAL OF THE STATE, is to keep ourselves invincibly strong.

If we don't, freedom of the individual may VANISH — as it has vanished before in the long career of mankind on this planet.

FORTUNATELY there are signs in the sky that we are beginning to realize this fact and that the necessary tolerance of each other's rights may be forthcoming.

Up in three counties of northern Washington (Skagit, Whatcom and San Juan) AFL carpenters have WAIVED a 13-cents-per-hour pay raise to which they were entitled under their contracts.

E. M. Weston, president of the Washington state Federation of Labor, says this morning: "The workers evidently believe it is better to have a job at which they can work every day at a rate people CAN AFFORD TO PAY."

Harry Carr, president of the Seattle Building Trades Council, says: "It took a lot of nerve to do a thing like that in times like these. It might turn out to be the right thing."

IT does take nerve. It also takes patriotism. In times like these, we're all scared. We don't know where prices are going, and we all feel instinctively that we've got to get ours while the getting is good. But getting ours while the getting is good is what leads to inflation like the Chinese have.

THERE is another straw in the wind.

A Washington dispatch of the same day says that "powerful soft coal operators are predicting today that an agreement will be reached with John L. Lewis in time to avert an all-out strike next Tuesday in the coal industry."

These operators (who ask to remain anonymous) assert that Lewis already has been assured by influential industrialists that his soft coal diggers in northern and western pits will get their full 35 cents an hour wage hike demands.

HIKING coal wages 35c an hour may hike the price of coal. Coal is a primary raw material in the making of steel. If coal prices are upped, steel prices may be upped. Steel is the primary raw material of most of the things we need worst. If everything goes up again, inflation will bite harder still. The coal operators know that.

But they know also that we have a new labor law that gives more power to employers than they have had in the recent past. It has been dubbed (erroneously, this writer thinks) a SLAVE labor law.

It seems probable that the coal mine owners may be saying that they want to do their part to make the new law WORK FAIRLY, and are therefore going the whole road and meeting Lewis' wage demands. If they DON'T RAISE PRICES, it will be reasonably certain that this is what they are trying to do.

ANYWAY, these signs in the sky are interesting. So far, they are reassuring. The only way to stop inflation is to STOP IT. These are moves in that direction. They come from both sides of the fence.

Let's hope they are the beginning of what we need most.

IT CAN'T HAPPEN HERE

By CHARLES V. STANTON

At last we begin to have hope of improvement in the (that word) newsprint shortage.

The House appropriations committee has informed Congress, according to the Associated Press, that the Government Printing Office has barely enough paper to print the Congressional Record and that it is advisable for Congress to "trim" speeches and proceedings.

Can you imagine a Congressman abbreviating a speech? Can you visualize a Congressman hesitating to spread upon the "record" material which he thinks might influence votes in his district? No, no, a thousand times no! An abridged Congressional Record? Positively no!

The announcement, coming immediately following Senator Wayne Morse's 10-hour filibuster, sounds suspiciously as if the Oregon senator had utilized more than his quota. We have been anticipating a truck delivery of the speech in full, as our mail usually brings us copies of all the senator's utterances; but so far we have been disappointed (?). Knowing something, however, of the time required to set type and print 100,000 or more words, we can appreciate the delay.

Fewer speeches, Congressmen were told, "would save money," which is very understandable in view of the fact that it costs an average of $71 per page to print the record.

However, we have difficulty in anticipating that Congress will be influenced either by the plea to shorten speeches or reduce printing costs. The alternative, therefore, is to increase the supply of newsprint. That's why we have hope the (that word) newsprint shortage may be solved.

Of course, Congress has had a committee working on the problem for several months. Publishers and manufacturers have produced voluminous testimony as to the whys and wherefores of the paper shortage. Opinions regarding solution to the problem have been as numerous as the witnesses. Some want a return to government regulation. That's fine for papers who play along with the administration, but tough on those who hold contrary views. Experience, since federal controls were lifted, show paper manufacturers to be more hard-boiled concerning quotas than were the government bureaucrats, but distribution has been more equitable and not based on political favoritism.

But, with abridgement of the Congressional Record threatened by shortage of paper supply, we should be getting immediate action rather than hearings.

According to some information, entirely hearsay, of course, tons of pulp have been burned in European countries for firewood simply because ship cargo space was not available to get the material to this country. It may be possible that Congress will direct the use of a few idle, surplus ships to move stores of Swedish and Russian pulp to the United States to supply the Congressional Record and perhaps—just perhaps—give some relief to the nation's press.

Maybe, instead of GIVING our dollars away to European countries for relief, currency stabilization and trade restoration, we might BUY pulp and newsprint, now that Congress realizes the critical status of the shortage.

Certainly, in this land of free speech, we should not permit abridgement of the Congressional Record simply because of the (that word) newsprint shortage.

The Federal Rent Office will continue to administer rent controls in all areas where regulations now exist and will answer questions of landlords and tenants concerning the Housing and Rent Act of 1947, which became effective July 1, it was announced today by Clyde Henninger, rental officer for Douglas County.

The local office, located in the Douglas County State Bank Building, Henninger said, will be glad to give every possible assistance in answering questions and aiding in needed adjustments.

Henninger reports receipt of rules and interpretations of the new act from E. Daryl Mabee, district director, who makes explanations as follows:

"It is important to remember that maximum rents remain just where they are under the old law. There is no provision in the new act that changes rents automatically. A tenant pays the same rent in July that he did in June, unless there has been an order issued subsequently, or he has voluntarily entered into a lease with the landlord as provided by the Housing and Rent Act of 1947. This act provides that when a landlord and tenant voluntarily enter into a valid written lease on or before December 31, 1947, and expiring on or after December 31, 1948, an increase of up to but not more than 15 per cent of the maximum rent in effect immediately before the effective date of the new lease is permissible.

Lease Must Be Honest

"Before any rent increase becomes effective under such a new lease," the rent director continued, "a copy of the lease must be filed with the rent office within fifteen days of its signing, together with a simple registration or lease form which landlords can obtain at the rent office. It will be the duty of the rent office to examine the lease carefully to determine whether it is valid. The lease cannot contain any trick termination and penalty clauses. It cannot decrease the essential services, furniture, furnishings and equipment. The rent office will forward copies of the registration of lease form both to the landlord and tenant for their records.

"It is up to the tenant to decide whether he wishes to sign such a lease. If a tenant does not wish to enter into such a lease, refusal does not constitute grounds of eviction.

"There are specific protections against evictions under the new law," Mr. Mabee said. "In general, the tenant who continues to pay the rent to which the landlord is entitled has no more reason to fear eviction than before. Eviction controls of the act will be enforced by the local courts. The previous waiting period of three months before tenants can be evicted when a house is sold will now be determined by local courts. Evictions to allow occupancy by others are limited to immediate, personal occupancy by the buyer or the landlord himself. Other conditions under which evictions may be made are very specific in the law."

Advisory Boards Provided

"The new law also provides for a local advisory board of representative citizens which will be appointed by the National Housing Expediter on the recommendation of the governor of the state," the rent director added. "When this board is appointed, its duty will be to make recommendations to the housing expediter concerning decontrol of the area, the adequacy of the general rent level in the area, and the operation of the local rent office, with special reference to hardship cases. The board may consider adjustment cases coming before it and make recommendations to the rent director. All recommendations must be consistent with the Act and the Rent Regulations."

Late Breaking Potato Disease Given New Name

The disease that appeared in certified seed potato fields late last year after the first two inspections were completed in most places, is now conceded to be a separate virus disease and not a late type of common leaf roll as was first believed. Such was the announcement of Dr. John Milbrath, plant pathologist at the O. S. C. experiment station to growers and agricutural officials attending the annual potato disease field day at the station late in June.

First called "late breaking leaf roll," the malady is now termed merely "late breaking virus," Dr. Milbrath explained. While more has been learned about the disease, which is apparently well distributed throughout the west, it is still a baffling malady that is characterized mostly by utter inconsistancy, growers and specialists agreed.

At first many growers thought the disease was a form of rhizoctonia, because it frequently produces aerial tubers along the stem, but such is not the case, Dr. Milbrath and his associate, Dr. Harley English agreed. A distinct difference between it and leaf roll is that the latter is worst at the bottom of the stalk where leaves are usually badly curled and brown, while with the late breaking virus the curling seems to start at the top causing badly curled leaves there while bottom leaves are still nearly normal.

DDT Plus Sulphur Used

The officials also reported on experiments with using insectides in disease control by means of killing the insect carriers, particulary aphids. DDT is the most commonly used material, but it is much more effective when mixed with sulfur and when a little oil is added, the reports showed.

While results with dusts on certified seed potato fields are not yet consistent, many growers are using them commercially as another aid in a program that also includes careful roguing of diseased plants, it was reported at the meeting. Thorough dusting, preferably on a community basis, was recommended if any is done, as one or two applications to a single field might do more harm than good by killing off aphis enemy insects while not thoroughly controlling the aphis themselves.

R.H.S. Annuals Ready for Delivery This Week

Joyce Bartley, editor of the Roseburg High School annual, announced that the annuals will be ready for distribution July 9 and 10 at the Roseburg Junior High School from 10 A. M. to 4 P. M. Students unable to call for their annuals are requested to send a post card with their address and the book will be mailed to them.

LEGAL NOTICE

CASE NO. 10700
IN THE CIRCUIT COURT FOR THE STATE OF OREGON FOR DOUGLAS COUNTY
SUMMONS

ELIZABETH L. GLOSS, Plaintiff, vs.
The Unknown heirs of J. W. BROWN, Deceased, sometimes known as J. W. BROWNE, JOHN R. HAMLIN and LELA HAMLIN, his wife, CHARLES LIESER and MARTHA LIESER, his wife, JOHN HOSKIN, sometimes known as JOHN HASKIN, and all other persons and parties unknown claiming an interest in the real property described in plaintiff's complaint, Defendants.

TO: The unknown heirs of J. W. Brown, deceased, sometimes known as J. W. Browne, and all other persons and parties unknown claiming an interest in the real property hereinafter described, defendants.

IN THE NAME OF THE STATE OF OREGON, you and each of you are hereby required to appear and answer the complaint filed against you in the above entitled suit within four weeks from the first date of publication of this summons, and if you fail so to answer said complaint for want thereof, the plaintiff will apply to the court for the relief prayed for in her complaint, a short statement of which is as follows: That the defendants be required to appear and set forth the nature and character of any adverse claims to the following described real property, to-wit:

Beginning at a point on the North line of the Jackson Reynolds Donation Land Claim No. 38 in Section 27, Township 30 South, Range 5 West, W. M. in Douglas County, Oregon, 8.48 chains east of the N.
