Lewis Again Wins In Contract For Hard Coal Miners

WASHINGTON, July 11—(AP)—John L. Lewis gleefully tucked another fat contract in his pocket today giving 75,000 hard coal miners the same $1.20-a-day pay boost he had wangled for 400,000 soft coal diggers.

Disclosure of the agreement came with surprising suddenness last night after only a few hours of negotiations between the United Mine Workers' chief and representatives of the anthracite industry.

Lewis obtained a 44-cent hourly wage increase for soft coal miners and a 17.1-cent raise for anthracite miners.

The difference comes from a reduction in the soft coal miner's working day from nine to eight hours and absorption in his basic hourly rate of daily work for which he formerly received premium pay.

Actually, both the bituminous and anthracite miners got an increase in the daily wages they will take home of $1.20 a day. On the soft coal eight-hour day this amounts to exactly 15 cents an hour, or the same amount CIO unions won in steel and other industries.

For the seven-hour day worked by the hard coal miner the $1.20 pay increase is 17.1 cents an hour.

But Lewis succeeded also in boosting his union's health and welfare fund "take" in both bituminous and anthracite from a nickel a ton of coal produced to a dime a ton.

Law Circumvented
And as in negotiating his soft coal contract a few days earlier, he seemingly got around portions of the new Taft-Hartley labor law in the anthracite pact.

That new labor law provides for equal labor-management administration of union welfare funds except those set up in contracts already in effect when the law was enacted.

Lewis had the anthracite operators simply amend their long-existing contract, leaving unchanged its provisions allowing him to name two out of three of the trustees of the anthracite welfare fund.

America Pictured As 48-Ring Circus Without Tents

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK — (AP)—If you aren't taking a vacation in America this year you're missing the biggest sideshow in the world. It's a 48-ring show without tents.

For eight months I've been going around the country with rod and reel and a two-fingered typewriter, and had more fun than a duck in a cloudburst. I've come across about everything but a "for rent" sign.

You don't have to leave America to see the world. It's got all the postcard material the rest of the countries have put together—all the languages, all the landscapes. And the tourist enjoys one pleasure he won't get abroad—if he's gyped, it's in his own slang. It's more fun to know how it happened.

The mountains, the deserts, the plains of this vast country may wear you down—but you never can get tired of the people. Not if you keep moving anyway. There's always a different breed with a fresh accent and view.

If you've never eaten a dish of French-fried prawns, you've missed one of the finer things of life. Here's a good way to fix 'em:

Peel shell and legs off prawns. Split down the back (use a knife). Wash thoroughly... Mix regular hotcake batter, using 1 cup flour and adding an extra heaping teaspoonful baking powder... Dip prawns in batter and drop in deep fat... When golden brown take out and drain on absorbent paper to remove excess grease... Serve with a good cocktail sauce.

point down the road a piece. Things One Learns
And you learn all manner of odd things, whether you hitchhike or go by your own airplane. For example:

There are better yodelers in Wisconsin than Switzerland. (The Swiss in Switzerland are going in for dance bands.)

You can get a "Kansas City steak" easier in New York or San Diego than you can in Kansas City.

"If you ask for orange juice in St. Louis, they squeeze it out of the orange. But if you ask for it in Florida or California, where oranges grow, they are more likely to pour it out of a can."

The best way to tell a good hotel is to ask: "Do you have one-day laundry service?"

Long distance bus drivers are pretty courteous to women passengers, but have few kind words for men riders.

The things a Pullman conductor hates worst for you to ask are: (1) "What town is this," and (2) "Are we on time?"

Mockingbirds stay up later than the millionaires in Santa Barbara, sing better, too.

No 'Perfect' Climate
There is no such thing as a perfect climate. The best place for all-around living is where you find the most friends.

The people love to eat in North Carolina, but so do the plants. It is the habitat of the Venus fly catcher, nature's own DDT against insects.

Kansas is exporting her sons as well as her wheat to other states. The governor wants to keep the sons at home.

The most helpful taxicab drivers are in Los Angeles, where they earn their tips by service. The least helpful to a customer with baggage are Manhattan cabbies. They think their conversation is worth a tip. Often it is.

The most genteel agriculturalists are the movie producers in San Fernando Valley. "Tomatoes cost us a buck apiece to grow," one told me proudly.

Endless Incongruity
But what interests you most about travel in America, a pattern in perpetual flux, is the endless incongruity you meet.

Let me give you one example. If England, Germany or Russia passed a prohibition law, a certain percentage of people still would drink, whether or not heads rolled in penalty and prisons filled. But I doubt if they'd get around the statute this way: In dry Oklahoma I saw a prominent host whose supply of liquid refreshment for a party was running low go to the phone and call up the chief of police. "Chief," he said, "where's the best place in town to buy a quart?"
