raising standards of living. Thus all could have lived happily together as CITIZENS of one charming land.

But NO. The whtie Dutch had to be the MASTER race. They had to give the orders. The brown men of Indonesia had to TAKE the orders. There had to be the old but never happy relationship of master and men.

The price is now being paid.

THERE is trouble in India. There is trouble in Burma. There is trouble in the Balkans. There is trouble in China, where hundreds of millions live precariously on the borderland of starvation while a few at the top have too much.

THERE is trouble even here in America, where industry has grown so big that the old free relationship of free men living and working together in at atmosphere of mutual respect for each other's skills and qualities as human beings has been dulled and fogged, thus bringing about even here among us some semblance of the ages-old relationship of master and man.

Out of that unfortunate fact comes the bulk of our labor troubles. LAW can't cure these troubles. They can be cured only by a better relationship among men who work together.

OUR forefathers, who came here to find a way of life that was impossible in the Old World, had a vision of what MUST BE if men are to live and work together in happiness and contentment.

They found in time that their vision was rendered impossible of achievement by the attitude of the ruling classes of England, who used their power as RULERS of the new colonies to enforce in America the old relationship of master and men. So they came in time to the stern conviction that only by separation from the old country and going it on their own could what they sought be had.

They headed their Declaration of Independence with these words:

"We hold these truths to be self-evident: That all men are CREATED equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these rights are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness."

TO whatever extent we have strayed from that vision of the fundamental longings and RIGHTS of human belngs, we have failed to realize to the full the possibilities of our way of life.

Because of these strayings, CONFLICT is arising among us.

THE world is in turmoil and ferment. You need only to read and listen to know that. At the root of all the turmoil and the ferment lies the inborn desire to live together and work together as FREE COLLABORATORS rather than as masters and men.

COMMUNISM is hailed by many as the answer.

Is it?

Read this AP dispatch from Moscow:

"The newspaper Izvestia said today that a tremendous grain harvest is assured on "Gigantic," the (Communist) state farm in the Kuban, which covers an acreage larger than some European countries."

"GIGANTIC" is a COLLECTIVIST state farm. The Russian state is a Communist state.

If you will study the subject carefully, you will discover that these Russian state farms differ VERY SLIGHTLY from what we know in this country as "corporation" farms. The only difference is that the CORPORATION is the state.

On them, there is no tree association of free men working together.

SALVAGING FISH

By CHARLES V. STANTON

Thousands of steelhead and silverside salmon fingerlings were salvaged Wednesday from Willis Creek, through cooperation between Roseburg Boy Scouts, the Roseburg Rod and Gun Club and Game Commission biologists. Salvage is an important item in fish conservation and has been neglected all too long. It probably would be possible by thorough salvage operations to save as many fish as are produced annually by our expensive hatcheries.

Willis Creek is a beautiful tributary of the South Umpqua river near Dillard. During the steelhead and silverside spawning season it carries a large volume of water. It furnishes miles of ideal gravel riffles for spawning nests. But during summer months the water flow ceases and thousands of fingerlings are trapped in stagnant pools, where they soon die.

Last year the first salvage operation on this stream saved more than 15,000 fish. Fewer fingerlings were taken this year because the water remained comparatively high until later in the year, and a great number of minnows made their way down to the South Umpqua in natural migration before pools were closed off.

But there are many streams in Oregon like Willis Creek—fine spawning streams, except for extreme low water during the dry season.

The Game Commission is beginning to recognize the importance of salvage and has a limited number of men at work on a few tributary streams. The task, however, requires much manpower, and, as the work comes almost simultaneously and continues for only a brief time, the state cannot economically hire enough men to do all the work. Consequently volunteer local labor is necessary.

Roseburg Boy Scouts did a fine job Wednesday and are deserving of much credit. To produce in hatcheries the number of fish they saved from Willis Creek would cost the state many dollars.

Fish salvage should be extended to other streams. The work must be done largely by local volunteer labor. Sportsmen's groups and Boy Scouts make an excellent team, as shown in Wednesday's operation.

Unless we adopt a realistic program of water conservation, fish salvage will become increasingly important.

Many older residents will remember that until recent years Willis Creek seldom dried up during summer months. It maintained an all-year flow. At the same time the South Umpqua river abounded in salmon. It does not take a long memory to recall how Roseburg residents would walk out to the old dam and watch while hundreds of salmon tried to jump the barrier.

Today, however, the South Umpqua is a poor fishing stream, and the change is due in part to careless and even malicious destruction of forest cover, pollution, loss of beaver dams, and increased agriculture.

The Game Commission, in our opinion, should aggressively promote a state-wide program of water conservation. Summertime water flow can be returned to Willis Creek and the South Umpqua. It will not be an easy task nor a quick one. It will demand utmost cooperation. The task will be handicapped by continued timber removal. But it is not an impossible project. By restocking headwaters of tributaries with beaver, practicing water conservation in agricultural methods, protecting forest growth from fire and from destructive logging practices, we can within comparatively few years bring about vast improvement in the South Umpqua river and its numerous tributaries.

Until we have achieved that purpose, continuation and extension of fish salvage is increasingly important.

Douglas Posse Has Role in Pageant

Twenty-eight possemen of the Douglas County Sheriff's Posse, led by Sheriff O. T. Carter and Captain Si Dillard, rode in the authentic pioneer parade of the Oregon Trail Centennial at Eugene yesterday morning.

The mounted possemen also took part in the grand entry of the rodeo, staged during the afternoon at the Eugene civic stadium, and participated in the stake race, which was won by the Benton County Sheriff's Posse.

Since the arena was "too small," the posse did not present any of its drills, Deputy Sheriff Dick Baker reported.

A count of animals in the parade revealed there were 436 horses, nine burros, 10 head of oxen, four head of mules, and 35 head of steers, the later driven through the streets by the Christensen Brothers, rodeo stock contractors.

The parade, which also included floats in the pioneer motif and prairie schooners, lasted 1½ hours.

Douglas County also was represented in the industrial parade staged Wednesday morning. Roseburg's Paul Bunyans, in their red plaid shirts and tight blue jeans, publicized the Northwestern Turkey Show by releasing 12 live turkeys in the crowd.

Labor Law Study Will Embrace Business Firms

WASHINGTON, July 25.—(AP)—A Senate-House Committee decided today to choose 20 business concerns—10 with good and 10 with poor labor relations in the past—for intensive study as part of its general studies of the new Taft-Hartley labor law's operations.

The committee, headed by Senator Ball (R.-Minn.), is to make the studies after Congress adjourns "with a view of recommending promptly any changes found to be necessary or desirable" in the new law.

Ball announced the plan to study labor relations in specific firms as part of a five-point program approved by the committee.

He said the committee may begin hearings in late fall, but that much research will be done first.

Late Mrs. C. L. Morris Ex-Melrose Resident

Mrs. C. L. Morris, who died at Mercy Hospital Tuesday, had been living in San Diego, Calif., in recent years, but formerly was of Melrose. She was the former Emile Reed, and her brothers Donald Reed, George Reed, and Harvey Reed, and her mother, Mrs. William Fisher, Roseburg, survive. Three sons in San Diego also survive. Funeral services will be at 2 P. M. Saturday in the Chapel of the Long and Orr Mortuary.

$5,000 Offered For Beer Concession at State Fair

SALEM, Ore., July 25.—(AP)—State Fair officials said today that it had received a $5,000 offer for a concession to sell beer on the state fairgrounds during the week-long state fair which opens September 1.

The offer was for a small space in the grandstand during the horse races. Alcoholic beverages have not been sold on the grounds since 1915.

LABOR AIDE RESIGNS

WASHINGTON, July 25.—(AP)—Keen Johnson resigned today as under-secretary of labor, effective August 1.

He said in a letter to President Truman, dated today, that he was returning to private industry.

The word tornado originally was applied to a violent squall blowing out from the front of a thunderstorm on Africa's Gold Coast.

De Wayne's Circus Due in Roseburg For Two Shows

De Wayne Bros. Circus arrives here tomorrow and will erect its tents on the Rose School playground for two performances only. An evening show will be given at 8:15 P. M. Saturday and a matinee at 2:45 P. M. Sunday.

The sensational De Wayne troupe reached the height of acrobatic perfection while starred with "Tars and Spars" and with Rudy Valee's famous USO unit which entertained our troops on almost every American fighting front. The De Wayne brothers themselves are examples of paramount supremacy in acrobatics and before the war were featured with every major circus in America.

Glamour and grace are important to charming Velta and Beverly Carlisle of the famous Carlisle Sisters. Their work on the flying trapeze requires split-second timing, grace and know-how and they share honors with beautiful Jean Evans and the celebrated Flying Alexanders in a thrilling and sensational trapeze performance.

Included in the big two-hour, all-star circus program are the Clarkonians, jugglers supreme; Learmont's famous Hollywood chimpanzees featuring "Cheetah" of Tarzan of the Apes fame; the Haller Quintette, kings of the sommersaulting trampoline; Wildfire, the wonder horse recently starred in the movie of that name; the Tremaines, peers of the high horizontal bars; Shirley Temple, the loveable motion picture elephant; Captain William Detrick's Military ponies; Clara Bently, glamorous equestrienne with her beautiful Arabian resinback horse, Queenie; Koko and his congress of funny clowns and many other outstanding attractions of the circus world.

Everywhere this new postwar circus has appeared it has received the hearty approval of press and public. Prices have been placed within the reach of every family and doors will open at 1 and 7 P. M., to provide time to visit the sideshow annex and menagerie.

NOW SHE SHOPS "CASH AND CARRY"
Without Painful Backache

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.
