

4-H Stock Auction At State Fair Put Under Better Plan

A new plan for the 4-H state fair stock auction has been announced by L. J. Allen, state club leader, following completion of arrangements with Leo Spitzbart, manager of the state fair September 1 to 6.

Under the plan agreed upon, each exhibitor will be limited to one sale until all with stock in the auction have made one sale. After that the remaining animals will be sold singly or in groups. This plan was devised to give all exhibitors an equal opportunity to market to advantage their fat lambs, hogs and steers exhibited at the fair. The auction is scheduled to start at 10 o'clock, September 5.

With at least 1500 boys and girls from every county scheduled to take part in the fair this year, as contestants and livestock exhibitors, arrangements have also been made to "stagger" reservations at the 4-H Club dormitory so as to accommodate the largest number possible. Contests have been scheduled throughout the week, and each contestant, other than those with livestock exhibited also, will stay only two days in the dormitory.

Winning entries in local or community 4-H fairs go to the state fair. With the program throughout the state expanded since the war, a record number of exhibits are expected this fall, says Allen. Four booths have been constructed for junior and senior "dollar dinner" contests and for demonstrations. These will be in use constantly throughout the week, so large is the entry list. The top demonstration teams at the state fair—one in agriculture and one in home economics—will represent Oregon later at the Pacific International Livestock exposition in Portland October 3 to 11.

LIONS TO REPORT

All members of the Roseburg Lions Club are requested to attend tonight's dinner meeting at the Umpqua Hotel at 6:30, to hear the report of Forrest Losee and Dr. L. M. Leimbach, who attended the Lions International convention at San Francisco recently as delegates of the local club.

Operating Costs, Paper Lack Suspend Star at Seattle

SEATTLE, Aug. 13.—(AP)—The Seattle Star, founded in 1899, announced it was suspending publication after today's editions because of rising costs of operation combined with the world-wide newsprint shortage.

In a formal, front page statement, the Star said "The Seattle Star is suspending publication following today's editions."

"The management of the Star came to this decision only after a long and careful study of the problems which confront the property."

"Terrific increases in publishing item that goes into the every item of a newspaper, chiefly labor and newsprint, have brought this industry to a point where only those with heavy volume could survive.

"And thru the period where volume could have been attained this newspaper found itself facing newsprint shortages which prevented that goal being reached."

"As a result it came into the postwar period with handicaps which have proved too serious to be overcome."

Announcement was made last March that the Star had been sold to Sheldon Sackett, Coos Bay, Ore., publisher, but the option was allowed to lapse July 31. During the past two weeks of Sackett's option, David Stern III, former publisher of the Camden, N. J., Courier and Post, negotiated for the possible purchase of the Star, but returned East without buying the paper.
