Koreans Noisy to Russian, Silent to American Speaker

SEOUL, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Shouts of "anti-trusteeship!" and "immediate independence!" from a crowd of 80,000 Koreans observing the second anniversary of their liberation from the Japanese repeatedly interrupted an address by Russian Gen. T. F. Shtikov yesterday.

Shtikov's voice boomed louder over the public address system at Seoul stadium as the crowd roared its slogans.

The Koreans listened silently to American Maj. Gen. Albert E. Brown and then cheered loudly.

Shtikov is the chief Russian delegate to the joint U. S.-Soviet commission which has attempted to set up a provisional government for all of Korea. Brown is the chief American delegate.

Commission sessions have been stalled on the question of what Korean groups are to be consulted on the form of the government, with the Russians insisting right wing parties which opposed the trusteeship set up by the foreign ministers at Moscow be barred from consultation.

U. S. Secretary of State Marshall has suggested to Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov that the commission report on the status of its deliberations by Aug. 21 so each government may consider what further steps may be taken to achieve Korean independence.

Shtikov said in his address that the Soviet army "landed in Korea in August, 1945, and defeated the Japanese army in a fierce battle" to release Koreans from "Japanese colonial oppression."

Columbia Dams Fail to Change Salmon's Habits

WASHINGTON — (AP)—The habits of the salmon are dependable. And as a result the federal government's gigantic fish experiment on the Columbia appears to be proving a major success. That's the report from the Fish and Wildlife Service, which has been working on the project for seven years.

One expert in the nation's capital says it appears that man-made ponds and streams below Grand Coulee dam have been substituted successfully for historic spawning sites on Columbia tributaries above the dam.

The bureau reports that chinook and blueback salmon are swarming up the river in record numbers, even though access to old spawning grounds has been been cut off by the huge dam.

And this—in the opinion of the bureau—definitely ends a threat to the Columbia River canning industry which arose when development of the river began in the 1930's.

In 1939 the Fish and Wildlife service caught hundreds of salmon at the foot of Grand Coulee dam. They were taken to ponds to spawn, and the eggs then transferred to hatcheries. The fingerlings from these were planted in streams below the dam. The guess was right and salmon banded and marked were found at the end of their life cycle in the streams in which they had been planted.
