Livestock Tour Made by 4-H Unit

Fourteen 4-H Club members and three parents attended the Melrose and Elgarose 4-H Livestock tour last Monday evening. Club members visited various projects in the two communities, starting at the home of Leonard Warren, where his poultry project was inspected.

From there they went to Michael Wooten's home, where club members had the opportunity of looking over his turkey project. Glenn and Donald Hansen's place was visited next, where some new Hampshire Red poultry was viewed by the club members.

From there, they continued to Donna and Donald Sundberg's project, which consisted of a Hereford steer and fat lambs. Returning to the Melrose district, the club members had the opportunity of seeing the sheep project of Merle Sanders.

The final stop of the evening was at the project of Gayle Craft, which consists of Rhode Island Red poultry, rabbits and sheep. Following the tour the group returned to the home of Verney Sanders, leader of the Melrose Club, where club members held their meeting and completed the evening's activities with refreshments.

Those in attendance on the tour were Donna and Donald Sundberg, Sally Brown, Leonard Warren, Charles Fiel, Don Hansen, Dick Brown, Michael Wooten, Dick and Dale Bonebrake, Gayle Craft, Lyle Bursik, Merle Sanders and Duane Conn; club leaders, Verney Sanders of the Melrose Club and George Sundberg of the Elgarose Club. A. M. Hansen also accompanied the group with Kenneth Minnick, county club agent.
