Naval Reservists May Enter Academy

Entrance to the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., is now possible without a congressional appointment, it was announced by Commander Walter Mallory of the Naval Reserve unit in Roseburg.

Legislation recently enacted authorizes the Secretary of the Navy to appoint 160 qualified youths annually to the Naval Academy from the active members of the Naval Reserve.

Members of Volunteer Composite Division 13-1, and of Electronics Warfare Company 13-16 both of Roseburg, are eligible to take the competitive examination for entrance to the Naval Academy next year.

This new program makes appointments available to youths who, normally, might not be successful in securing senatorial approval. It provides an opportunity for an excellent education and an assured future at no expense to the candidate or his family, Comm. Mallory said.

Candidates must be graduates
