

Winter Carrots, Beets Will Slash Living Expenses

In many sections along the Pacific Coast beets and carrots thrive as a fall vegetable crop. These varieties have ornamental as well as utilitarian value, their foliage being most attractive. Consequently they may be spotted here and there throughout your garden. Also a row of carrots placed to act as a small hedge will prove a most interesting gardening adventure. If possible, of course, all the seed should not be sown at once or the entire crop may have to be harvested in a relatively short period of time.

Beets and carrots both are quite rich in vitamins. Carrots are believed to aid in seeing at night. Although many orange-colored vegetables are assumed to have this quality nevertheless carrots rank first as an aid to better eye sight.

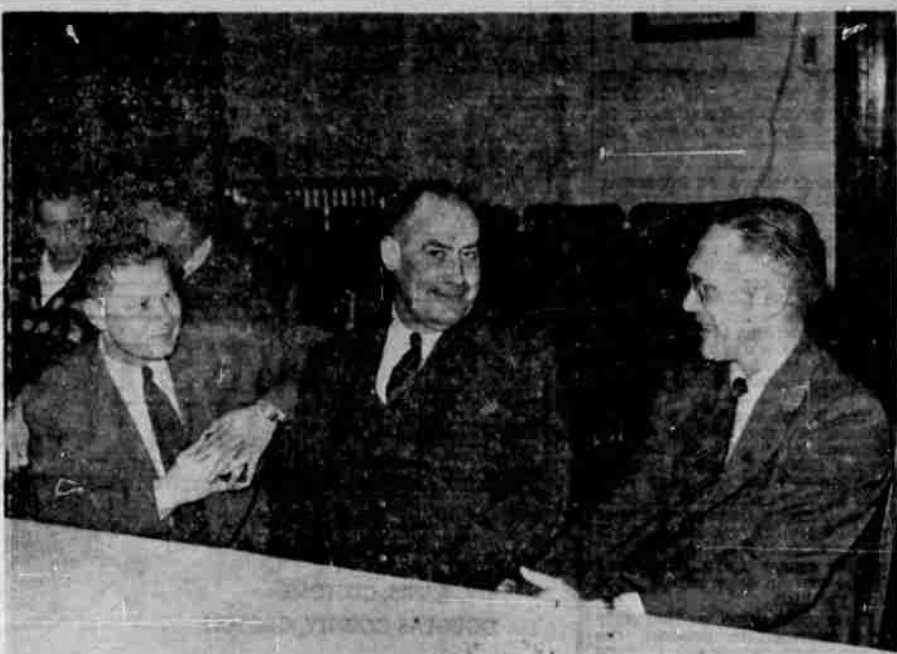

Constant Moisture Needed
In many areas carrots may be planted throughout every month of the year. A sandy loam seems to suit them most advantageously. Sow the seed at a depth varying from one-eighth to one-half inch deep. The rows may be spaced approximately ten inches apart on raised beds. The crop must not be allowed to dry out at any time during the growing season. Constant moisture is essential and this is especially true during warm weather.

The French Forcing carrot is one of the earliest sorts to mature. Crops grown under ideal conditions should be ready for harvesting in just about sixty days. The French Forcing carrot is reddish-orange in color and globe-shaped. The Chantenay matures about ten days later, attaining a length of close to six inches. The flesh is sweet and extremely tender.

Another excellent carrot for the home garden is the Danvers Half Long. It grows to about two inches across and seven inches long. The Imperator resembles the Danvers somewhat except it has rounded shoulders and the core is rather difficult to see.

Beets Mature Faster
Beets are also another year-around crop. Beets as a general class mature somewhat faster than the carrot. The seed is quite light due to the spongy covering around the actual seed. It is interesting to note that this shell absorbs a great deal of moisture and consequently the soil in which beet seed is sown should be fairly moist. A scarcity of water may never get to the seed germ, being completely absorbed by the spongy shell. Too light a soil will not prove a congenial environment for a beet crop.

Sow the seed in moist earth at a depth of about one-half an inch. Mulching with dry soil after the seed has been planted helps to conserve the moisture. Space the rows from ten to fifteen inches apart and make certain that the seed is not planted too deeply in heavy land.

Perhaps the earliest maturing beet is the Extra Early Egyptian which should yield a crop in close to fifty days. The roots are dark red in color and of a medium size. The Detroit Dark Red beet, a main crop variety, is quite round in shape and somewhat larger than the early types. Two other favorable varieties for home growers are the Crosby Egyptian and Early Wonder.

Cold Wave Extends Into Southern States

(By the Associated Press)
Autumn's first cold snap chilled a wide section of the country today.

Temperatures ranged from zero in North Dakota to around the freezing mark in most parts of the South and were generally below the 32 mark from the Rockies to Central Pennsylvania. The mercury dropped to 32 in Nashville, Tenn., this morning and temperatures in the 30's were reported in Georgia, Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas.

Grand Forks, N. D., was the coldest spot today, with a mark of zero, and the mercury was near that figure in other North Dakota cities. Temperatures were near normal along the Pacific Coast.

In ancient Babylon letters were written on tile tablets and enclosed in baked clay envelopes.

Trapping Season To Open Nov. 15

Trapping season for mink, muskrat, otter and raccoon opens November 15, it is announced by the Oregon State Game Commission, and will extend to February 15. There will be no open season on marten, fisher, beaver and ringtail cats.

Trapping license fee is $3 and trappers are required to mark their traps with a brand registered with the Commission. Landowners, who are not required to buy a license, must, however, register the location of their land with the Commission each season they trap. All persons are required to file within 30 days after the close of the season a report on the number of animals taken. State refuges will be open to the trapping of furbearing animals with the exception of the following which remain closed: Summer Lake Management Area, Lake Oswego game refuge, Sturgeon Lake game refuge, White-tail Deer refuge and all city and municipal watersheds now in refuges.

The last legislature passed a law abolishing the sale of trapping licenses to non-residents.

DeGaulle Urges Alliance To Resist Communism

PARIS, Nov. 13. — (AP) — Gen. Charles de Gaulle urged France yesterday to take the lead in forming alliances with the United States, Great Britain and other countries "who feel themselves similarly menaced" by communism.

"France must take the initiative because she is the most menaced," the leader of the French people told a news conference. "France is the most menaced externally by this enormous power—the most formidable she has ever faced—and internally because, independent of her own force, this power has assistance within France," de Gaulle declared.

This case has been battling around before the public too long," Carmell declared. Petrillo, he said, has "saved the music culture of the nation. Without him, the country would be platter-happy."
Carmell was referring to the current rage for record-playing programs on the radio.

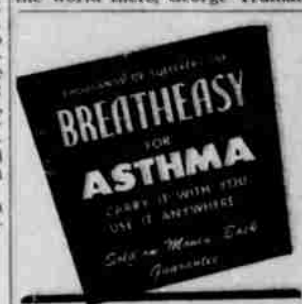

The government's charges were filed Oct. 15. Judge LaBuy held a similar complaint unconstitutional but the supreme court reversed him and ordered another trial.

World Fliers Forced Back in Alaskan Region

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Nov. 12. — (AP) — The way home finally lay south again today for the round the world fliers, George Truman and Clifford Evans, and their tiny planes "the City of Washington."

With their hops always northward since touching Calcutta and Bangkok in late September, the two former Army pilots reached Big Delta, Alaska highway point 90 miles southeast of here, late yesterday on a hard five-hour flight from Anchorage. They planned to resume their trip today.

On yesterday's hop, they crossed the Alaska coastal mountain range in which Mount McKinley towers 20,300 feet and after reaching the interior encountered strong head winds. The winds

Lea Act Violation Denied by Petrillo

CHICAGO, Nov. 13. — (AP) — President James C. Petrillo of the AFL musicians union pleaded innocent yesterday to a charge of violating the Lea act, passed by congress to curb his powers.
The musicians' chief is accused in a criminal information filed in federal court of compelling radio station WAAF, Chicago, to employ three musicians which the station contends are not needed.

In response to the request of Petrillo's attorney, Daniel Carmell, for an early trial, Judge Walter J. LaBuy set the case for Dec. 15.

"This case has been battling around before the public too long," Carmell declared. Petrillo, he said, has "saved the music culture of the nation. Without him, the country would be platter-happy."

Carmell was referring to the current rage for record-playing programs on the radio.
