Rampant Pacific Ocean Ends Missionary Trip

BELLINGHAM, Wash., Dec. 12.—(AP)—Two former G.I.'s who set out in a small sloop two weeks ago to carry Bibles and religious "help" to Gilbert Island natives were back home today after drifting and tossing for nearly a week off the Washington coast.

The two 25-year-old youths, Marvin Norstedt and Jack Maler, both of Bellingham, left Seattle Nov. 28 for a coral atoll in the Southern Gilbert Islands to repay natives there who had aided Maler and other seamen when their freighter was shipwrecked during the war.

Their storm-battered 35-foot sloop, the Despy, was picked up by a trawler off Tatoosh Island last Saturday and towed into Neah Bay where they made repairs.

"We ran into some waves 50 feet high, which was too much for us," Norstedt said. "We lost our life raft and drifted about a week."

"Apparently this is the end of our missionary trip."

Magellan claimed the Philippine Islands for Spain in 1521 but colonization did not begin until 1565.
