THE CALL OF DISTRESS

By CHARLES V. STANTON

A few days ago, being in a hurry for lunch, we dropped into a small restaurant just off the main business district in Portland. It was a tiny place—the type of eating house specializing in quick service, which was what we wanted.

While we waited, a girl entered and asked to see the manager, who also was proprietor and cook, and who, at the time, was very busy in the kitchen.

The girl wanted a job. She needed work "desperately." She had waitress experience but would do any kind of work.

The busy manager, with his mind on delayed orders, nevertheless was polite. He asked the applicant if she had her union card. When she replied in the negative, he explained that he could employ only union help, and suggested she contact the union office around the corner.

The girl, plainly on the verge of tears, said she had no objection to joining the union, but had not understood the necessity for membership, and would go to the headquarters immediately.

As she left, the manager started back to the kitchen, then stopped suddenly, a sober expression on his face.

"I wish I could think faster," he said to us. "You know, I believe that girl was hungry. I was too busy to think about that. Now I'll worry about her all day. I wouldn't have let her go out of here hungry. I should have had my wits about me."

It was plain that the kind-hearted restaurant owner actually was disturbed. It showed in his work after he had returned to the kitchen, as, despite accumulating orders, he stopped occasionally to gaze off into space, envisioning what might happen to a hungry girl in a busy city.

We couldn't help, as we watched the man's perturbation, thinking of the inherent compassion of the American people; how we pour out lavish gifts to feed those who only a few months ago waged war against us; how we fill friendship trains and ships; how we contribute millions of dollars annually to community chests and Red Cross, buy Christmas seals, support charities, and engage in many activities aimed at relieving human suffering.

Perhaps nothing illustrates the American capacity for compassion better than the annual March of Dimes, which opens its formal campaign in Douglas County today.

Infantile paralysis is not the greatest killer among juvenile diseases. But the after effects of infantile paralysis are terrifying and heart rending. The sight of children, and occasionally an adult, with twisted, helpless limbs—crippled for life unless given treatment which few can afford—is indeed pitiful. We have an overpowering dread of the disease which strikes so suddenly and viciously into all classes and walks of life and leaves human misery and suffering in its wake.

In our compassion we combat the disease through mobilization of forces. We contribute to a financial campaign which makes possible the employment of researchers to study methods of prevention and control, the training of doctors, nurses and technicians in treatment and care of patients and permits certain and prompt action in any areas where epidemics may strike.

Implementing the service are hundreds of thousands of volunteer workers who aid in the financial campaign, set up plans for combatting the disease in their own communities and who supervise the continued aid and treatment of victims.

We had sympathy for the Portland restaurant owner who was slow to realize the possible presence of distress, for we, too, failed to think that the girl's desperate need for work might be sharpened by hunger. Most of us are too busy to see opportunities to help the unfortunate. We are too concerned with our own problems. So we have created organizations which conduct our charities for us. We rely upon them as agents. We express our compassion and our generosity in the contributions we make that our agents may, on our behalf, give the aid and comfort we are too busy to think about.

Who is there who would refuse to sacrifice everything he possesses if he could but restore life to paralyzed limbs of a little child? The dimes and dollars we give to the infantile paralysis drive will accomplish just that thing. We may be too busy to follow up and see each individual case in which we cooperatively give the aid that means the difference between hopeless deformity and a return to normal, or nearly normal, bodily function, but case histories are available to those who might be interested.

If we give generously and compassionately we need not experience the fear that we have failed to heed the call of distress.

U. S. Air Force Only for Defense, Forrestal Says

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Secretary of Defense Forrestal said yesterday the United States does not seek to build an aggressive air force but only one for defense.

He made that statement when questioned regarding the expanded air force recommended by President Truman's air policy commission.

The commission's report, made public yesterday, recommended among other things that the United States double its present total of 2,500 first line combat aircraft by the end of 1949.

A reporter asked Forrestal if he believes the United States should have "an aggressive air force."

"I don't consider that we are going to have an air force that is aggressive," Forrestal said. "I'm for an air force of sufficient power to give us a force capable of defending the United States."

Woman Driver Loses Ring Giving Signal

PORTLAND, Jan. 15.—(AP)—It's things like this that discourage women drivers.

Blanche E. Johns, Portland, wanted to stop her car; she thrust her arm out the window, signalled properly. And what happened?

A $1,250 diamond ring slipped from her finger into the street, she told police, and was gone when she went back to hunt it.

City's Donation To "Christmas Ship" Amounts to $750

Roseburg's donation to the "Northwestern Christmas Ship" amounted to $750, which has been forwarded to the committee at Portland for the purchase of food for European relief, said V. V. Harpham, chairman of the local committee.

Roseburg has done "more than its share" in the drive, Harpham was informed by letter this week by Roy Smith, state chairman. "We appreciate how much time and effort it has taken on the part of the committee to make (the drive) a success," Smith wrote.

In addition to the cash contributions, donations of used clothing amounting to 385 pounds were received, as well as 400 pounds of canned food. This has been shipped directly to the dock at Portland for loading aboard the "Christmas Ship."

The Elks and the Eagles lodges and the First Christian Church were "very heavy contributors" to the fund, Harpham said. The schools also contributed "very liberally," with more than 10 per cent of the total being given by Roseburg school children.

A project of the Junior High School was the packaging of used clothing, which included both men's and women's garments and shoes.

The "Christmas Ship" is expected to sail from Portland this month for Europe, as part of the voluntary American relief program which started with the recent trip of the "Friendship Train" across the nation and the sailing of the "Friend Ship" from Philadelphia.

Buckhorn Road Request Not Committee Matter

A petition requesting that the proposed improvement of the Buckhorn Road, from Dixonville Junction to Little River, be placed before the legislative interim committee on highways at its hearing Jan. 22, has been received by the County Court, County Judge D. N. Busenbark said.

The petition cannot be presented to the interim committee, because the requested improvement of the road is not in line with the requests to be presented by the county for the committee's consideration, Judge Busenbark said.

Improvement of the Buckhorn Road would be "strictly County work," he added.

Petitioners who reside on the Buckhorn and Little River Roads stated in the petition that the road is an "important market road" and would aid traffic conditions in a fast-developing area.

Planes Rising 25,000 Feet a Minute Predicted

PORTLAND, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Maj. Marion E. Carl, the former Hubbard boy who holds the world's speed record of 650 miles an hour, says that within a few years planes will be able to climb 25,000 feet a minute.

Carl told the Portland Organized Marine Reserves he has already flown planes which climb more than 10,000 feet a minute.

He described the refrigerator, installed in the cockpit of the "Skystreak," the Douglas craft in which he made his record-breaking flight. The refrigerator, needed to keep the temperature down, worked so well "it threw out snow occasionally," Carl said.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Accused of violating federal law in connection with attempted shipments of explosives to Palestine, five men were free on bail of $1,000 each today and FBI agents pressed search for five other suspects.

The five defendants are awaiting federal grand jury action on charges of making false export declarations. The maximum penalty is 10 years imprisonment and $1,000 fine.

The charges are based on 30 crates of TNT listed with U. S. Customs as containing "used industrial machinery and parts" which were seized at a Jersey City pier Jan. 8.

Lutheran Church Notes "Good Year"

Review of the year's activities at Eden Lutheran Church were given at the church's annual meeting Tuesday.

Extensive renovation of the church during 1947 included shingling of the roof, painting of the interior, installation of a new furnace, building of kitchen cabinets, construction of outhouses, graveling of the grounds. The work cost approximately $1,000.

A branch of the Ladies Aid Society was organized in Roseburg with a view toward organization of a church.

A "good year," financially and otherwise, was experienced, said the Rev. Enoch Sanden, pastor.

Business before the annual meeting included approval of a $1,500 budget for the coming year as well as approval for the employment of a salaried janitor. Formerly this work was performed by volunteers.

E. A. Bloomquist was elected secretary; Henrietta Johnson, organist; Dick Holmquist, delegate to Emanuel hospital charity bazaar in Portland; Carl Emil Johnson, deacon; Dick Holmquist, trustee; Sarah Holmquist, financial secretary; Frank Johnson, treasurer.

Presidential Campaign Funds Set at Legal Limit

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Republican and Democratic National Committees are preparing to pour the maximum legal limit, a combined total of $6,000,000, into this year's presidential campaign.

The Republican committee, meeting here next Monday, is expected to approve formally a campaign goal of $5,000,000.

Senator McGrath of Rhode Island, chairman of the Democratic committee, said his group expects to raise, and spend, a similar amount.

While McGrath did not say so, the Democrats are reported to be planning to spend some of their funds to finance a cross-country swing by President Truman during the campaign.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh
Who Are We, Anyway?
Subject came up at Bill Webster's, the other day, as we were chatting over beer and pretzels. Just who are the folks who make up our town? Where'd they come from? Well, Doc Hollister's Scotch-English ancestry; Will Dudley's folks were mining stock from Pennsylvania; Skip Powell's family were brewers back in Holland. Guess our bloodstream's got a bit of every country of the globe—and every section of America. We've still got differences in taste and background—whether they apply to music, history, or beer. Only those differences don't matter—because we're self-respecting people, in a free, united land. And from where I sit, that's what makes our towns and cities—our America—so strong, progressive, tolerant. Our championship of individual liberties has brought us people from all faiths, all lands—to prove that respect for one another's rights is the greatest bond humanity can know! Joe Marsh faith in the sincerity and the unselfish purity of purpose of one leader, Hindu India and Moslem Pakistan should cease their communal warfare and go to work to build a brighter future for all their people, it would be a modern miracle.

We need such miracles of leadership.

In the little town of Selinsgrove, in Pennsylvania, a Susquehanna university freshman, who as a high school senior had been voted by his classmates as "most likely to succeed," is charged with twice setting fire to the college administration building to avoid attending classes. He pleads guilty to the charge.

Well, he succeeded in raising a lot of hell, didn't he? "Success" depends on your definition of it.

In Detroit the authorities pick up an army photographer who confesses that he deserted last May because he was home-weary of the "utter monotony of taking pictures and working with cameras day after day." When he was arrested, he was WORKING AS A PHOTOGRAPHER'S ASSISTANT!

Screwball? Not necessarily. The army just failed to make his work interesting.

INTEREST in one's work is one of the mainstays of human happiness and efficiency, and the employer (even the army) who fails to make the job as interesting as possible for all workers is missing a bet.

In Athens (Greek capital) Dwight P. Griswold, who is chief of the American mission to aid Greece (with 300 million U. S. dollars) reports that the Greeks have agreed to impose governmental controls on bank credit and to take other action to "help themselves."

That is encouraging. It's pretty hard to help anybody who isn't willing to do something to help himself.

THE same dispatch reports other and less hopeful developments in Greece. An "authoritative source" in Athens says large sums of money have been loaned by banks (what banks not state!) to Greek industrialists for productive purposes, but the loans, instead of being repaid, are being used for SPECULATIVE purposes.

In Greece, as elsewhere, the lure of quick and easy money often outshines the safer progress that is achieved by hard, PRODUCTIVE work.

Roseburg Elks Visit Lodge at Marshfield

Officers of the Roseburg Elks Lodge, accompanied by almost 20 local members, made an official visitation last night to the Marshfield Elks Lodge at Coos Bay.

The Roseburg delegation was entertained at a seafood dinner attended by approximately 200 Elks from the Coos Bay area.

The business session of the Marshfield Lodge was conducted by the Roseburg Elks.

TRAFFIC FINES LEVIED

Seven persons paid $70 in traffic fines in the Justice Court Wednesday. Justice of the Peace Hartfield reported. He said they included:

Hansen, no tail light, $10; Robert G. Hansen, failure to stop at through highway, $10; Vernon W. Moore, no tail light, $10.
