Marry at Presbyterian Church

Mr. and Mrs. William Edward Bales

Large floor baskets of pink and deep-rose snapdragons with a background of candelabra holding tall white tapers formed the decorations for the wedding of Miss Rebecca Ruth Bovingdon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James C. Bovingdon of Oakland, Ore., and William Edward Bales, son of Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Bales of Bakersfield, Calif., Saturday, February 14, at the First Presbyterian Church. Decorations were in charge of Mrs. J. E. Johnson, assisted by Mrs. Donald Morgan, Dr. Morris H. Rouch performed the impressive ceremony at four o'clock in the afternoon in the presence of 100 relatives and friends.

Mrs. Homer Grow played softly on the pipe organ as the guests assembled and accompanied Mrs. T. B. Garrison, who sang "O Promise Me" and "The Lord's Prayer." Mrs. Grow also played the traditional wedding marches.

Miss Molly Booth, in a pale blue formal, and Miss Pauline Bovingdon, in pastel pink, with matching headbands of satin and wristlets of carnations, lighted the candles.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a gown of white slipper satin fashioned with a full train. The form-fitting bodice was trimmed with lace appliques. Her finger-tip veil was held in place by a Mary Stuart cap. She carried a nosegay of white blossoms centered with a white orchid.

Mrs. Adeline L. Fields of Portland was matron of honor and wore a gown of self blue with a tiny cap of gold braid. She carried an arm bouquet of yellow rosebuds. Bridesmaids were Miss Joan Bovingdon and Miss Mary Lou Hopper, who wore gowns of yellow and pink chiffon and carried nosegays of white flowers centered with rosebuds.

Terry Hercher was best man and Donald Morgan, Donald Casey and Robert Stearns were ushers.

The bride's mother wore an aqua crepe gown with a yellow rosebud corsage. The bridegroom's mother wore an ensemble of black faille with a pink feather hat and a corsage
