TWO WORLDS—the world of communism and the world of freedom of the individual.

* * *

IN Washington State Secretary Marshall informs the leaders of the house of representatives and the senate that "it will be necessary to make an additional 275 million dollars available to keep the pipelines to Greece and Turkey FULL OF MILITARY SUPPLIES after April 1."

The dispatches add:

"Marshall's request for the new aid program was his first major action in the 'cold war' with Russia SINCE THE COMMUNISTS SEIZED POWER IN CZECHOSLOVAKIA."

* * *

GLANCE again at your map. It will tell you that Greece and Turkey ALSO lie east of the Stettin-Adriatic line.

* * *

FROM Seoul (Korea) the U. S. army reports that 19 Koreans have been killed in attacks on police boxes (presumably police sentry boxes) in SOUTH Korea. Our army authorities describe these attacks as "communist inspired."

WE occupy South Korea. The Russians occupy North Korea. The Russians are using their communist friends in South Korea to stir up trouble.

* * *

NOTE the pattern:

Stir up a ruckus. Use the ruckus as an excuse to bring in plug-uglies. Then, when the TIME COMES, use your plug-uglies to take over by force.

We've seen that pattern in Romania. We've seen it in Bulgaria. Within the past week we've seen it in Czechoslovakia. We're seeing its faint outlines in Finland.

Everywhere (so far) it has worked.

* * *

RUSSIA is celebrating the hundredth anniversary of the communist manifesto. The communist manifesto was written in Germany, a century ago, by Karl Marx and Friedrich Engels, both Germans. It preaches the doctrine of the class war.

* * *

MOSCOW newspapers devote most of their front pages to the celebration.

One of them says: "The power and vitality of the ideas of the manifesto are shown in the fact that 100 years ago there were not more than 300 communists in the world. TODAY there are 20 million people in the ranks of the communist party."

Another (the Russian army's Red Star) says: "Communism has broken through into the wide open spaces. Forward!"

* * *

MARX and Engels were dreamers who apparently REALLY WANTED more rights and better conditions for the common man. For a while Lenin had the same vision.

NOW communism is a racket—a device to get vast power into FEW hands.

* * *

WHAT an opportunity Lenin, and after him Stalin, had! They MUFFED it. The old itch for POWER FOR THEMSELVES supplanted in their minds the ideal of service to the downtrodden Russian people.

What we're seeing now followed.

LEAP YEAR BABY

One leap year baby put in his appearance at Mercy hospital in Roseburg Sunday, beginning life with the fate of having birthdays only once every four years.

The baby, a 6-pound 10-ounce boy, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Durwood Taylor of Sandy, Ore., at 11:50 a. m. The child's father is a logger.

NO MORE PEASANT ECONOMY

By CHARLES V. STANTON

The story of how Oregon is breaking down its "peasant economy" by manufacturing its raw materials into finished products was most interestingly told by Richard Jones, advertising manager of The Oregonian, at a Chamber of Commerce forum luncheon last Friday. Mr. Jones spoke as a part of the Salute to Roseburg sponsored by The Oregonian.

He recounted how the industrialized East has looked upon the Northwest as its province; how we have been shipping our raw materials to the East and buying back the finished product, but how, in recent years we have started construction of factories to process our own materials and are rapidly expanding our manufacturing industries.

A sawmill at Baker, Ore., he reported will not sell a customer rough lumber. The mill cuts pine and every board is "custom tailored" to the buyer's needs.

Another mill in Oregon furnished employment to 25 people by installing equipment to cut materials it had previously sent to the refuse burner into blocks for use by toy factories and into slats for venetian blinds. One mill added 33 new jobs by erecting a factory which cuts waste material into tops for ironing boards.

Mr. Jones pointed out that it takes three men to process 1,000 board feet of rough lumber from the tree to the dried stage, but that it takes from 7 to 8 men to process the same 1,000 board feet from the tree to a finished product in a sash and door factory and 16 men to manufacture the material into cabinets. How many jobs would be created, he asked, if one-half the lumber we now ship in the rough green stage from Oregon could be sent out as products of factories engaged in specialized manufacture?

He listed some of the developments in the use of wood in production of chemicals, plastics, alcohol, briquets and even the use of bark as a highly valuable product.

Naturally, we were greatly interested in this presentation, because this major topic is one with which we have bored readers of this column for years. We were delighted to hear the views of someone else speaking from the same soap box.

Any person interested in the lumber industry deplores the reckless waste of the timber resource, but we are frequently asked, how we can finance full utilization. It is our belief that the problem of financing largely will solve itself if we can but place a major part of our timber resource under sustained yield with long-time contracts, for only then will an operator have the security needed to promote investment of capital in a long-range utilization program. Until assured of a continuing source of supply he can maintain only a hand-to-mouth existence, taking advantage of the current economies to seize such profits as are immediately available, while wasting material of even greater potential value than the product he is selling.

One of the best presentations coming into our hands from the opposition to the present sustained yield policy was printed in the News-Review recently in a letter from R. A. Derrig of Azalea. His argument was so well founded that we waived our usual rule on length of communications to present his letter in full.

Our disagreement with his argument has been offered on numerous previous occasions and need not be repeated. But we do desire to point out that had he been a constant reader of this column over a period of years he would have known that we have been urging one of the very things he offers as a solution.

He proposed consideration of central utilization plants to process waste from small mills.

We have from time to time urged small mills to consolidate their assets, form timber holding corporations authorized to enter into sustained yield operator contracts with the Bureau of Land Management, apportioning from the sustained yield unit assigned to the cooperative the timber needed for each member operator on an annual basis. The cooperative then would be in a position to finance its central utilization units. We have been assured by Bureau of Land Management officials that they would be delighted to negotiate with small mills set up as cooperatives.

Under such plan no small mill in the Umpqua Basin need fear a 100-year sustained yield contract. Our cutting today is only slightly in excess of the sustained yield allowable cut. In fact, by selective logging in areas where clear cutting is to be postponed, we can provide a supply for the full capacity of all existing mills for many years to come. The cooperative set-up is particularly well adapted to the general topography and location of our timber resource in the Umpqua Basin. If small mills would act promptly on cooperative organization, we would have few, if any, future closures. But if such action is not taken in the near future, larger concerns, in better position to finance sustained yield contractual requirements, will soon be in control of the marketing units as projected and small mills will be definitely limited in years of continued operation.

The trend away from peasant economy cannot, and should not, be halted. Utilization and specialized manufacture must be encouraged. Small mills in the Umpqua Basin are fortunately situated if they will take the initiative in protecting their interests, but, otherwise, they will soon be facing the freeze-out now so evident in Lane County where cutting capacity is from three to four times more than the rate of allowable cut.

3 Teams Bunched For North Zone Basketball Title

SEATTLE, March 1.—(AP)—Three teams remained in the running today for the Pacific Coast Conference's Northern Division basketball title.

But the fourth place Oregon Ducks will determine the winner.

As the circuit enters its final week, the defending champion Oregon State Beavers hold a game and one-half margin. Washington State and Washington are deadlocked for second.

Oregon State clinched at least a tie for the title by twice striking down the Washington State Cougars in weekend games. But the Beavers, who have lost two of three games with Oregon this season, meet the Ducks in a single tilt on the Oregon floor Saturday night.

Washington State opens a two-game set with Oregon in Eugene tonight. Washington has a pair billed with Idaho in Seattle this weekend.

An Oregon State triumph over Oregon would clinch the title regardless of the outcome of the other series. An Oregon win, however, would (1) bring a two-way deadlock if WSC sweeps its Oregon frays or Washington its Idaho set, or (2) a three-way tie if both Washington and Washington State mark up double victories.

A loss for either Washington or Washington State would eliminate that club from further consideration.

Oregon State moved into its title-tying position Saturday with a 58-52 win over Washington State. The Beavers trailed only once—at 4-3. A roaring rally sent OSC out in front, 21-7, and they maintained a 34-26 halftime margin. WSC drew within three points twice in the second period but couldn't maintain the pace. WSC's Hanson sparked the Cougar threats with 19 points with Crandall leading OSC with 14, all but one tallied in the first half.

Weaver, Dusette Win Match From Cohen, Dorsetti

Sinewy Sammy Cohen, teamed with Joe Dorsetti against Buck Weaver and Georges Dusette in the wrestling headliner at the Armory Saturday night, pinned Weaver with his surfboard hold for two of the three scheduled falls, but failed to register the victory. Dorsetti's repeated disregard of Referee Elton Owen's warnings to remain in his corner unless tagged by his partner caused the official to nullify the second fall gained by Cohen and opened the way for the triumph of the opposing grapplers.

While Cohen, his back toward his foes, was delivering an oral barrage at Dorsetti for his misbehavior, Dusette, tagged by Weaver, slipped through the ropes and finished Cohen with a full nelson hold that ended the bout, while 600 fans roared their satisfaction. Caustic words between Cohen and Dorsetti led to blows, and Owen was obliged to separate them three times before order was restored. The middle fall of the wrestling bout was obtained by Weaver over Dorsetti with his combination backward flip and neck twist.

Curtis Beats Tarzan

George Curtis, the elongated Mississippian, posted his second successive victory on the local canvas, when he defeated Tarzan Zimba two out of three falls in the opener. He got the first and third falls of a tough argument with surfboard holds, the first one preceded by a Dutch windmill. Tarzan tallied the middle fall with a backward body slam and press.

Fred Hutchinson Puts Name on Tiger Contract

DETROIT, Mar. 1.—(AP)—The signature of righthander Fred Hutchinson was affixed Saturday to a Detroit Tiger 1948 contract, giving the Bengals a fully registered pitching department.

The hard working hurler took off by plane Sunday for the Tiger training camp at Lakeland, Fla.

Hutchinson, who was bedeviled by injuries early in the '47 season, won 18 and lost 10.

Prep Titles Still To Be Decided In Eight Districts

By the Associated Press

High school teams in eight Class A districts face the home stretch today in the race for remaining berths in the state championship tournament.

An equal number of district titlists already hold tickets for the championship meet set for McArthur Court in Eugene March 16-20.

Weekend play saw Prineville's Cowboys upset Redmond, 50 to 45, to capture the 3-A berth and the Pendleton Buckaroos move into 2-A finals against The Dalles Indians. Pendleton won a sub-district 2-A title by downing Milton-Freewater, 49 to 35.

Playoffs are now under way in district 8-A and 12-A. The others open throughout the week, one tonight.

Willamina, Dallas and McMinnville posted victories at Salem as the district 8-A playoff opened Saturday. Newberg, favored to win, goes into action Tuesday night for the second round at McMinnville. The state berth winner will be settled in the finals Friday night.

In district 12-A, Milwaukie and West Linn clash tonight in what may settle the title.

Corvallis and Albany, deadlocked on district 7-A Eastern Division, will meet tonight in a one game playoff for the right to meet Newport, Western Division leader. The two teams have split in two earlier games.

Salem will see district 8-A play get under way Tuesday night. By Thursday the race will be in full swing as teams in three other districts line up for the umpire's whistle. Hill Military Academy will be host for 13-A playoff and Hillsboro for 9-A while the same night Baker and Vale start their 2-in-3 game series for the 1-A berth.

Among the eight district titlists already decided, pre-tournament interest will center Tuesday night on a clash between St. Helens, district 14-A winner, and Astoria of district 10-A.

Saturday night games saw the Klamath Falls Pelicans, runners up last year for the state championship, close out their season with their 12th win and a clean district 4 slate. Ashland was the loser, 55-30.

Grants Pass trimmed Medford, 45-29.

The other district berth holders include Marshfield of Coos Bay, district 5 and defending state champion; Springfield of district 6; Jefferson of Portland, district 15 and city title holder, and Washington of Portland, district 16.
