In the Day's News

could increase Russia's military strength. He makes the letter public in Washington this morning. In it, he says: "The people of my district (Multnomah County) are aroused over the program of the government to give aid to Russia through such shipments."

There can be no denying that people, not only in Multnomah County, Oregon, but generally over the country are becoming aroused over these shipments. That is a case of mass instinct of the public. There are times (usually times of stress and danger) when the mass instinct of the public is more dependable than the fine-spun reasoning of diplomats and others in official positions.

IN Washington the other day, there was a significant passage of verbal arms. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee is considering a bill to help China "to undertake a vigorous program of self-help."

Representative Marcantonio, of New York, (who follows the Communist line faithfully, whether or not he is a member of the party) jumped to his feet to attack the bill and Vorys' proposed amendment as a "program in defense of Wall Street."

Representative Cox, of Georgia, took one minute to deliver this reply to Marcantonio: "How long, I wonder, must members of this body sit here and hear assaulted from day to day the government we love, and by people who would rip from the wall that symbol of liberty that hangs above the speaker's rostrum, and who would run down the flag of the Stars and Stripes that proudly floats above the Capitol and run up in its stead the flag of the hammer and sickle."

ORATORICAL? A little bombastic? Certainly. But it shows the tension that is building up.

GOTTA CRYSTAL BALL?

By CHARLES V. STANTON

Roseburg school district officials admittedly are puzzled and undecided concerning operative, management and expansion plans. Existing school facilities are hopelessly inadequate. Voters last year refused approval of a budget sufficient to permit efficient operation.

Four years ago it was believed that a pay-as-you-go program would meet school needs and voters approved an annual levy of six mills for a period of five years. The levy raised $33,841.20 the first year, $37,672.98 in 1946, and $41,373.19 last year, and the anticipated return in current tax collections is $49,551.18.

But the pay-as-you-go program is not nearly ambitious enough to meet the rate of expansion. The district has been adding from 300 to 400 students annually. The Riverside school will barely handle next year's anticipated increase in elementary students, leaving conditions just as crowded as at present.

While the situation in the grade schools is bad, the high school problem is the major headache. The Senior High was surveyed recently by the office of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction. He found teacher stations and accommodations for only 420 students in line with standards set by the state office.

School district valuation, which stood at $5,210,000 in 1942, is expected to pass the $10 million mark this year. The last valuation was $8,258,530, and in 1947 it was $6,278,830. But demand for school accommodations comes two years ahead of tax collections.

School officials have been endeavoring to calculate future needs, with the view of submitting an expansion program to the voters. But who can forecast what future requirements will be? District officials are fairly well agreed among themselves that the district should bond itself to the legal limit, and thus let those who will be using the expanded school system help pay the cost of expansion over a long period of years.

Maybe someone has an answer. If so the school directors would like to hear it. Or they might be glad to settle for a dependable crystal ball.

Savings and Loan League Indicted Under Lobby Law

WASHINGTON, March 31.—(AP)—A Federal Grand Jury yesterday indicted the United States Savings and Loan League for failing to register with Congress as lobbyists.

The indictment was announced by Attorney General Clark. He contends that groups such as the Savings and Loan League are required to register as organizations and file regular statements of receipts and expenditures in connection with lobbying activities.

Three officials of the league are registered with Congress as lobbying representatives. The Justice Department has long contended that they do not fully comply with the act.

The indictment is the first to be returned under the lobbying act passed by Congress in August, 1946. It requires the registration of persons or groups attempting to influence the course of legislation, plus regular reports on financial transactions.

Failure to comply is punishable by fines as high as $5,000, plus a three-year ban on appearances before congressional committees, or other lobbying activities.

The United States Savings and Loan League has its principal office in Chicago and a branch office in Washington. Listed as a non-profit trade organization, it has a membership of about 3,600 savings and loan and building and loan associations throughout the country.

The Justice Department said the league's members "have total assets of about $9,000,000."

Technocracy Concepts Topic at Reservists' Meet

Umpqua Chapter of Reserve Officers at the monthly meeting Monday night in the Umpqua Hotel had as guest speaker Bob Ellis, who discussed the general concepts of Technocracy.

Speaker Ellis, Technocracy regional director who was formerly with the Los Angeles police but now a resident of Camas Valley since his retirement, pointed out that this country's general price structure shows evidence of breaking down, and described how this could be altered under the program of Technocracy.

There were 31 in attendance at the meeting, presided over by Major Clyde Adair.

Mystery Shrouds Shooting of Cop

FRESNO, Calif., March 31.—(AP)—A policeman was shot in the wrist yesterday as he approached a man seated in a car outside a tavern. A fellow policeman then shot and killed the man.

Now there's a mystery: Who shot the first policeman? A search of the slain man failed to produce any weapon.

The officers had been summoned by the wife of the tavern owner. She said the man had been in the tavern, kept his hand in a pocket as if holding a gun and she feared a holdup.

As Patrolman John Pavlovich approached the man in the car, shot rang out and Pavlovich shouted "I'm shot."

Patrolman Glenn Seaberry barked an order, then fired a shot into the man's chest. Papers found on the man gave the name of H. P. Nettleton, 32, a salesman for a San Francisco company.

"Indications are," said Police Lt. E. W. Ellis, "that Nettleton possibly struck Pavlovich, causing the officer's gun to be discharged, wounding him (Pavlovich)."

New Funds Voted For Atom Weapons

WASHINGTON, March 30.—(AP)—New funds for atomic weapons and research for military road work in Alaska, and for the word war with Russia were okayed today by the House appropriations committee.

It also approved new grants for relief work in Army-occupied countries and for Veterans' Administration personnel.

The total is $66,311,478 below the amount President Truman had asked. Most of the cuts were in funds sought for the Maritime Commission, the postoffice department and the Air Force clothing budget.

Not a penny was cut from the $150,000,000 asked by the Atomic Energy Commission, all of it in contract authority for which Congress will put up the actual cash later. The new authority boosts to $659,091,863 the amount the commission will have at its disposal this year.

The committee admonished the commission to "move forward with all possible speed in its research programs, both in the wartime and peacetime uses of the newly discovered secrets."
