

Responsibility Of Farmer in Land Program Stressed

It's not the planning but the actual carrying out of practices that gets the conservation job done, J. F. Bonebrake, chairman of the Douglas County Agricultural Conservation Committee, reminded farmers this week. He said that now that most farmers have made their plans for the season it's time to start putting the plans into practice.

He pointed out that every year there are some excellent conservation plans made that would save millions of tons of soil and thousands of acres of cropland, but for one reason or another the plans are not carried out and the land loses top soil and fertility. With an increasing population and a limited cropland we can't maintain our present standard of living and continue this loss.

Everything that every farmer can do—with or without assistance of the Agricultural Conservation Program or other conservation programs—will not be too much. Although people in the United States are eating better now than they have in the past, it is not impossible that we may be at the turning point where production cannot keep up with population increases.

Certainly we are speeding up the day when we will come to that turning point if we allow our land to get away from us, the county chairman said. Every farmer has a responsibility to the country to do his part in saving the soil. Because this problem is so serious, the Agricultural Conservation Program has been provided to help farmers get this job done. Farmers using this assistance are cooperating in a national fight to save the land and to keep our soil producing the abundance needed to keep the nation well-fed.

That's why it's so important that farmers who have made plans for carrying out conservation practices follow through on those plans and actually carry out the conservation practices.

Farm price supports are intended to stabilize the farmer's market, not "hike" it, J. F. Bonebrake, Chairman of the Douglas County Agricultural Conservation Committee, said today, in commenting on the recent announcement of Government price supports for hogs during the next 6 months.

"Many consumers jump to the conclusion that support programs are keeping prices at current high levels," the Chairman said. "Actually, the programs are not being used for most products, because the market prices are way above supports. Price supports become effective only when prices fall so low that the farmer can't afford to keep on producing the crop."

Prices for hogs are considerably above parity, and they aren't expected to fall to support levels this year. However, the law requires that hog supports be available through 1948 at 90 per cent of parity, for use if needed. Parity for hog prices on March 15 was $18 per 100 pounds; prices received by farmers on that date averaged $21.80.

For the next 6 months, hog supports will range from a low weekly average of $16.50 per 100 pounds, Chicago basis, in May when marketings are seasonally the largest of the spring or summer, to a high of $18.50 in September (when marketings are seasonally the smallest of the year).

Central California Rid of Power Controls

SAN FRANCISCO, April 29—(AP)—All remaining controls on use of electric power in northern and central California were wiped off the books today by the state power conservation director. The action signaled the end of the electric crisis created by a record winter drought.

The action meant disbanding of the 200 or more local conservation committees in the 46 counties proclaimed emergency areas. These committees had been screening new business applications since the state ended the bulk of the emergency controls on April 12. Heavy March and April rains and increased power deliveries from southern California helped end the emergency.

tice of the Peace Hartfield reported. He said the fines included: Froman F. Chambers, no splash aprons, $10; Lloyd Lee Albert, speeding, $10; George E. Miller, overload, $15; Fredrick Broszio, overhanging load, $10; James L. Rutherford, unit overload, $15; Everett W. Brittain, overload, $10; Charles A. Brauch, unit overload, $20;
