THERE is something new in the wind on Russia.

It seems that a few days ago our ambassador in Moscow (General Walter Bedell Smith) put the situation up to Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov.

He is supposed to have added that the United States of America ISN'T bluffing.

Even if there should be a depression, he is said to have informed Molotov, it won't affect in any way our basic productive capacity or change our minds as to what we are going to do about it if Russia keeps on acting as she has been acting.

MOREOVER, General Smith is said to have concluded, WE THINK RUSSIA IS TO BLAME FOR WHAT HAS HAPPENED.

ACCORDING to the Moscow radio, Molotov is supposed to have answered that the Soviet Union is ready to pursue "a policy of peace and co-operation with the United States," and to get together with us for "discussion and settlement" of differences that have split the postwar world.

IT sounds good. As a matter of fact, it sounds too good to be true. If we're wise, we'll keep our fingers crossed.

But at least we can watch interestedly what follows this new and dramatic move on our part.

Winners of Essay Contest Selected

Mary Martin, first place, and Harlan Carter, second place, were presented cash awards as winners in the American Legion sponsored "Americanism" essay contest at a student assembly at Roseburg Senior High School Wednesday morning.

The presentation was made by Mrs. Bayard Reed, Umpqua Unit 16, Americanism chairman. Mrs. Victor J. Micelli, department Americanism chairman, also of Roseburg, was present, and gave a brief talk on the Americanism program.

Contest judges were Charles A. Brand, Mrs. George Caskey and Mrs. Scott Layman.

The two essays, together with two essays of Junior High student winners, have been sent on to the state contest committee.

Names of the Junior High winners will be withheld until an assembly presentation is made next week at that school.

Active Club Members To Attend District Dinner

The Active Club dinner-dance will be held Saturday, May 22, instead of the week following, it was decided at the Wednesday morning breakfast meeting.

PICKING DELEGATES

By CHARLES V. STANTON

Having outlined the duties of delegates to the national nominating conventions and the method by which they are selected, we list today the Republican candidates. Lest democrats feel slighted by the greater prominence given the Republican candidates, we hasten to explain that no contest exists on the Democratic ballot, where President Truman appears as the only candidate, while the contest in the Republican ranks is attracting nation-wide attention and Republican voters will be far more interested in their choice of delegates.

We are indebted for much of the following information to C. C. Chapman, editor of Oregon Voter, as he has gone to great pains to compile his sketches and put them in easy form, thereby saving a lazy writer much effort.

Starting with the delegates-at-large, as they will appear in alphabetical order on the Republican ballot, Robert A. Bennett is a Portland attorney, who has served three terms as state representative from Multnomah County. He is a former locomotive engineer and ice manufacturer. His slogan: "Let's Elect a Republican President and Congress in November."

Henry Black, also of Portland, is a successful Portland contractor who appears to get much pleasure in appearing on the ballot at every election as a candidate for some office. Editor Chapman refers to him as "self-stuffed, futile." His slogan: "Favoring Henry Black for President. Second Choice: Bricker, Dewey or Taft."

Henry B. Cockrum is a resident of Portland. He formerly was a bank cashier at Ontario, Ore., later serving with the state corporation department as savings and loan liquidator. He owns and manages farm properties in Malheur and Jefferson counties. His slogan: "Personally favor Stassen. Will support choice of Republican voters."

Richard Deich is a Portland attorney. He is a veteran of the Spanish-American War, served as state representative and as district judge. His slogan: "Common sense administration of our national affairs."

Robert A. Elliott, is a leader of Young Republicans; Stassen's campaign manager in Oregon; has his own insurance business in Portland; is a veteran of World War II. His slogan: "Favoring the forthright, constructive program of Harold Stassen."

Robert S. Farrell, Portland, is father of the late "Bob" Farrell, secretary of state at the time of his death in an airplane accident which also took the life of Governor Earl Snell. He has served as delegate to the national convention three times; is a former state representative and state senator. His slogan: "Oregon's preferential choice for President; State's rights and Anti-New Deal."

J. O. Johnson, a resident of Tigard, has law offices in Portland, operates a tax service, is head of an electrical supply firm, and is a loan expert for savings and loan association. He is a veteran of the first World War. His slogan: "Let's have a change—nominate a young man—preferably a veteran."

Phil Metschan, Portland hotelman, has long been a figure in Republican state politics. Has served previously as delegate. His slogan: "Will vote for Republican voters' choice for President and Vice-President."

Charles L. Paine, Portland, is well known for state leadership in the Townsend Pension movement. His slogan: "Vandenberg—if Dewey or Stassen release—Peace—Pay-as-you-go—Pensions."

John Y. Richardson, Portland accountant, is a civic leader, veteran of Spanish-American and first World Wars, active in political affairs. His slogan: "Republican Party will best solve our problems—as in the past."

Ray Smith, president of the Oregon Republican Club, and executive secretary of the Eagles lodge. He is active in political affairs, particularly with the younger group. His slogan: "Republican victory means sound government. Will vote your choice for President."

Talmadge F. (Jack) Staley had aspirations to be mayor of Portland but after filing found his residence was just outside the municipal boundary. He is a farmer and produce dealer. His slogan: "In agreement with principles as announced by Thomas E. Dewey."

Lamar Toozie, a Portland civic leader, veteran of the two World wars, active in political affairs, member of a prominent law firm, former president of the Oregon Bar Association. His slogan: "Republican victory vital necessity. Will support Oregon's choice."

Peter W. Welch, resident of Portland, formerly of Klamath Falls, is a veteran of both World wars. He was a delegate in 1932. His slogan: "A militant party of Republicans—leading the world to Peace and Prosperity."

From the candidates-at-large listed above, Republican voters will select four. In addition they will select two from the Fourth Congressional district.

District candidates are as follows: Ed Boehnke, Eugene, is a printer and publisher. He has long been active in Republican politics, is a veteran of the World War, one of the founders of Oregon Republican clubs, a former district delegate. His slogan: "For the people's choice and the American Way."

William M. McAllister, Medford, resigned from the state legislature in which he served as former speaker of the House, to enter World War II. Is an attorney-at-law. His slogan: "For Republican Victory."

Lars P. Peterson, farmer and head of a wrecking company at Coos Bay, where he has been very active in civic affairs. His slogan: "Will support people's choice—favor Harold Stassen."

Edward Ellis Sox, lawyer at Albany, where he serves as city attorney. His slogan: "For a man who can see the promise of the West."

Stewart Weiss, Sweet Home, one of the founders of the Oregon Republican Club. He formerly practiced law in Portland, before opening offices at Sweet Home. No slogan.

Sophomores' Yell Cops First Place In School Rivalry

The sophomore yell stunt presented in inter-class rivalry competition at a Roseburg Senior High student assembly Wednesday morning was awarded first place. The juniors took second and the seniors third. Judges were Mrs. Albert G. Fiegel, Paul Keith and Mrs. Harold Hoyt.

The assembly was held in conjunction with the presentation of Americanism essay contest awards and a Future Farmers of America demonstration.

The sophomore stunt featured "Indians" mounted on the shoulders of two other "Indians" in totem pole fashion, standing solemnly while a group of students in "locomotive" formation entered and gave a few yells. As the Indians knew nothing of football, a demonstration was given for their benefit.

The juniors put a great amount of pep and coordination into their stunt. Serpentine into the assembly behind five suited football players, they gave a series of yells and songs.

The seniors staged a colorful Indian war dance. Girls dressed in the fashion of Indian maidens and boys wearing blankets sang school songs and gave yells.

The FFA program, under the direction of Homer Crow, advisor, was a demonstration on how an FFA meeting is called to order by ritual method, and how a meeting is conducted by the members under strict parliamentary procedure.

Four sample motions were introduced, debated and voted upon. These were a motion that freshmen students be permitted to vote on next year's student officers instead of seniors; that the football grandstand be painted white; that a school picnic be held at the coast, and that the FFA sponsor a booth at the International Exposition.

RAIN WELCOMED

Some Roseburg residents may object to the prolonged rainy weather, but not J. O. Faust. Mr. and Mrs. Faust have returned to their home at Brockway after an absence of two years spent in Arizona. "After Arizona, this Oregon rain is marvelous," said Faust. They are planning to resume their residence at Brockway.

MEET THE CANDIDATE

The following statement concerning his candidacy for nomination for county commissioner on the Democratic ticket was submitted by Dick Baker, above, and does not necessarily signify endorsement by the Roseburg News-Review.

"I was born in Bennington, Kansas, Nov. 9, 1895, and moved with my parents to Colorado at an early age. I am married and have two children; both of age now.

"I first came to Douglas County in the spring of 1924 for a visit with relatives. I was so impressed with the friendliness of the people, the natural beauty and potential resources, that I returned in the fall of 1927 to make my permanent home. I purchased a home and accepted employment from one of the large automobile agencies. I remained with this concern 13 years, being employed as salesman and salesmanager. For the past six years I have been with the sheriff's office, holding the position of criminal deputy.

"During the 21 years I have resided in Douglas County, it has been my pleasure and duty to have traveled over all the county and state roads. Very few residents of the county have a more thorough knowledge of the entire county road system than I possess.

"I have made no campaign promises, nor have I any axe to grind. If elected, I will meet each problem as it arises and deal with it to the best of my ability. I realize the many problems confronting the County Court at this time, for Douglas County is going through a vast change. I am definitely for the best roads possible, for nothing can contribute more to the economic stability of a county than the roads its citizens travel for work or pleasure."

Ashland Defeats G-Pass Merchants

Serving notice it will be a team to bear watching, Ashland's Southern Oregon Baseball League entry last Sunday pounded out a 14-to-9 victory over the Grants Pass Merchants, who had previously won their first two contests. The Ashland team was made up almost entirely of Southern Oregon College of Education players, and finished their college baseball schedule last Saturday.

The Central Point Cheney Studs continued their winning ways by defeating the Grants Pass Old Timers, 9 to 3. This gives the Studs three straight victories to top the circuit.

Medford's Craters scored their first victory, beating Crescent City by the slim margin of 3 to 2 at Crescent City. Roseburg's Umpqua Chiefs were downed, 6 to 2, by the Central Point Millers. In next Sunday's league play Roseburg will travel to Tri-City, Grants Pass Old Timers play at Medford; Crescent City at Grants Pass; Central Point Studs at Klamath Falls, and Ashland at Central Point.

Public Instructed On Giving Paper To Scouts' Drive

All persons not living in easily accessible parts of town but who have paper to be collected in the Senior Boy Scout paper drive this Saturday and Sunday are requested to call the Boy Scout headquarters 874-J4 on Saturday.

One of the boys will be on call there all day Saturday to serve as a dispatcher for the three donated trucks, which will be used to collect the paper, according to W. H. Schofield, advisor.

The railroad car will be located between Oak and Washington streets on the west track. Rural residents and others who care to bring their bundles of papers may unload them directly in the car. There will be no other central station.

Townpeople should leave their bundles conspicuously on the curbs in front of their homes, except in the event of rain. If the weather is stormy, the paper should be piled on their porches, as no wet paper can be handled.

The Scouts will make but one thorough trip over the city, but will not have time to make a second trip, so the paper should be out early enough that it will not be overlooked. Areas of the town not covered Saturday will be cleaned up Sunday.

Welfare Workers Attend Meeting of State Board

A number of Douglas County welfare workers attended a meeting of the State Public Welfare Commission at Portland Monday and Tuesday. They included Miss Barbara Weiz, Miss Virginia Kizer, Mrs. Aileen Loomis, Miss Helen Gorrell, and Mrs. Claude Baker, administrator.

Mrs. Gorrell remained in Portland Wednesday to attend an administrators' conference. Also at the meetings in Portland was County Commissioner Lynn V. Beckley, member of the County Public Welfare Commission. Commissioner H. B. Roadman said he would have accompanied the group, but the illness of County Judge D. N. Busenbark required the presence of at least one of the commissioners here.

Students Present Show During Radio Operation

A special feature of the Senior High School students "radio day," in which the radio class took over the entire KRRR program operation Wednesday, was a half-hour student talent variety show from 4:15 to 4:45 p.m.

Program numbers included songs by the triple trio; trumpet solo, Jim Yvisaker; duet, Marilyn Dixon and Shirley Wilson; solo, Holly Nicholas; numbers by the triple trio, and selections by Bill Anderson and his "Wranglers."
