

Sportsman Proves It Pays to Fish

LARAMIE, Wyo.,—Dr. Gale W. McGee of the University of Wyoming history department has a statistical answer to the old problem of keeping wives of wandering fishermen happy.

With the help of a little book-keeping he convinces Mrs. McGee that his absences in the wilds have a dollar and cents value.

"Perhaps some other fishermen whose wives are weekend widows through the summer might find the same system useful," McGee says.

He keeps tab of all his expenses on fishing and hunting trips. He also places a cash value on the trout or game birds he brings home. At the end of the year he strikes a balance between receipts and expenditures.

If the money value of the fish and birds exceeds his expenses, Mrs. McGee receives a bill for the amount. This she ignores.

If the cost of the trips exceeds the value of the products of the hunt, McGee has to pay his wife the difference. She can buy a new hat with the money if she wants.

In last year's report McGee said he spent $38 on equipment. He swears he caught 474 trout which he valued at eight cents each, or a total of $39.92. For eight hunting trips he listed costs at $27.20. But McGee claimed a value of $28.50 on the 53 ducks, 11 pheasants and one goose he got.

Mrs. McGee is still ignoring his tendered bill for $1.16.

Ideals of Martyred Gandhi Now Guide India to Orderly Life, Mission Workers Say

In the United States since December, two members of an international fellowship mission who have been touring the country spoke at the First Presbyterian Church Wednesday night. They are the Rev. S. Nazir Talibuddin, churchman of India, and Miss Gerd Arnborg, representing Christian youth of Norway. They spoke here of postwar problems which face Christian people.

In an interview at the Rose Hotel, the Rev. Mr. Talibuddin stated that since the recent death of Mahatma Gandhi, conditions of unrest have been lessening. The people of India have become more conscious of the ideals of Gandhi and are attempting to implement those ideals, since he died a martyr's death.

The Rev. Mr. Talibuddin said there are eight million Christians in India. Fifty per cent are Roman Catholics. The Christian forces have done much toward bringing about peace in India, he said. The National Christian Congress of India, headquartered at New Delhi, has given medical assistance, and provided education and recreation for both Hindus and Moslems in refugee camps.

A sign of better relations among the people of India is the work of the National Gandhi Memorial Fund with the objectives of bringing about a national scale better relations between Moslems and Hindus; to publish the writing of Gandhi in the major languages of India, and to carry on the projects that Gandhi started during his lifetime—emancipation of depressed classes, extension of basic education, and rural reconstruction.

Reunion Far Off

Other signs of lessening unrest are the liquidation of the Moslem league in India (the Hindu state) and elimination of politics from the Maha Sabha, conservative orthodox Hindu party, responsible for Gandhi's death. The party will concern itself with only social and religious matters.

Possibility of reunion between the Hindu state of India and the Moslem state of Pakistan seem very remote at present. More than eight million people have migrated from one state to the other, while five million more are held in concentration camps until they may go to the state of their choice.

Educated in Presbyterian mission schools, the Rev. Mr. Talibuddin is at present principal of the Union Theological Seminary at Saharanpur, Punjab, India. He is in the United States as a participant in the international fellowship mission at the invitation of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church.

Five other nations—China, Korea, Chile, Persia and Norway—are also represented in the mission. Members of the mission have visited 33 states. They will end their tour at the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church at Seattle this month.

Miss Arnborg spoke of the problems of recovery from war in Europe. She expressed the hope that "our churches will be able to build bridges from one part of the world to the other." Describing the gap between Europeans and Americans, she commented, "To come to the United States is to come to another world."

She said when the shooting war ended in Europe, there was "not a person who did not want to start rebuilding." But cities had been destroyed, the people were in displaced persons camps because they had no other place to go. During the war, European people learned to be distrustful and skeptical. They do not now wish to be pitied by the American people, but to work with them in fellowship.

There were no knockouts, but plenty of solid blows were landed. One boy went down for a count of nine, but was plenty game, and though lost the decision. All fights were three one-minute rounds.

Results of the fights were as follows:

Last Tribute Tendered To Fr. Flanagan

BOYS TOWN, Neb., May 21.—(AP)—Youth of all races and creeds paid last respects today to their great friend and benefactor—the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Edward J. Flanagan, founder and director of world-famous Boys Town.

D. Ford Memorial Chapel on the grounds of the haven for homeless and neglected boys was prepared to receive the body after two solemn masses of requiem said by priests of the Omaha archdiocese.

The body of Father Flanagan, who once said "I have yet to find a single boy who wants to be bad," will rest in a sarcophagus in the northeast corner of the chapel. He died in Berlin last week.

The Rev. Edmund C. Walsh, acting director of Boys Town, said Father Flanagan had asked to be buried in the chapel "so I can be near the boys and they can come and visit me."

Father Flanagan, who would have been 62 on July 13, was ordained to the priesthood in 1912. In 1917 at Omaha where he was an assistant pastor, he borrowed money, took over an abandoned house and made a home for five boys. In the succeeding 35 years 5,500 boys have found a home in Boys Town.

GOD'S WORD

12. Put on therefore, as the elect of God, holy and beloved, bowels of mercies, kindness, humbleness of mind, meekness, long suffering;

13. Forbearing one another, and forgiving one another, if any man have a quarrel against any: even as Christ forgave you, so also do ye.

14. And above all these things put on charity, which is the bond of perfectness.
