

Allies Cautious in Dealings With Russia but Firm in Stand Taken

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

The current international tension was strikingly dramatized in Thursday's session of the British House of Commons when Ernest Bevin—England's barrel-chested two-titled foreign secretary—took the floor to tell of the new Allied efforts to pave the way for peace.

Bevin spoke to a hushed house. Contrary to his usual catch-as-catch-can delivery of speech, he maneuvered cautiously for words. He was faced with the fact that U. S. Ambassador Bedell Smith had just arrived in Moscow with the plans of the Western Powers for a verbal approach to Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov instead of the usual austere in inflexible written note. Bevin must be careful not to say anything which would jeopardize the Allied move. And he mustn't commit his government too far or disclose too much. He was even cautious in his keynote:

"I have not given up hope..." Bevin made one startling revelation in stating that Britain is considering a halt in the demobilization of its armed forces because of the tension between Russia and the West. He was, I take it, killing two birds with one stone: He was letting the public in on a momentous secret, and he was tipping the Muscovites that John Bull really means business.

Lest there be any doubt about British solidarity in this crisis, at the conclusion of the foreign secretary's statement, wartime Prime Minister Winston Churchill took the floor as leader of the Conservative Party. He pledged the Socialist government the full support of the powerful party which he heads.

Allies Definite on Stand
Bevin's cautiousness is also seen in Washington and Paris. The British, French and American ambassadors in Moscow are expected to meet with Molotov in the immediate future. From inspired speculation we may assume that the ambassadors first will make it clear to the Soviet foreign minister that the Democracies take the following stand:

"They will not get out of Berlin, period. They will not be high-pressured by Russia into negotiating over the problems of Berlin or over any other broader questions, period. Before there can be any negotiations the Soviet must lift its food blockade of Berlin, exclamation point. Meanwhile the Western Allies are going straight ahead with their plans for forming a German government for their three zones of occupation. The Soviet Union can join in with its zone—or it can stay out."

Out to Beat the Draft, 18-Year-Olds Line Up for Enlistment

Army and Navy recruiting stations in cities across the nation opened their doors July 21 to accept first voluntary enlistments of 18-year-olds, far exceeding local quotas. By enlisting now they will be exempt from the 21-month draft when they reach their 19th birthdays. Line is shown here forming outside New York Navy recruiting station.

It has been reported, but not confirmed, that the three Allies are prepared to negotiate other broader European questions with Moscow if and when the German question is ironed out. That would, of course, aim at settling the cold war in Europe.

Man Bets $100 He Can Beat Horse In Walking Contest

LEBANON, Ore., July 29.—(AP) Paul Smith, 63-year-old and strong-legged, rushed today to the defense of Linn County men. They haven't been feeling so good since Old Baldy, a Waterloo, Ore., horse, supposedly long past his prime, up-ended strong men in three tug-of-war contests.

Smith challenged the horses to a walking contest. "I can outwalk any horse. A horse has to stop for grass and water. I eat as I go. And I get there first," the Mill City heel-and-toe expert asserted.

Then Smith offered to bet $500 he could beat a horse over a 100-mile course. Linn County men perked up.

In fact they brightened more than at any time since Chet Fitzwater, 220-pound pool room strong man from Lebanon, met his Waterloo.

That was where half the countryside lost bets on Chet. He got on his back, braced his feet against a timber and grabbed the tug of war rope. Old Baldy 100 yards away at the other end of the rope promptly pulled him up and sent him flying into mud. Smith's challenge got an immediate response. Jess Moss, Lebanon, who owns a horse just three miles from Waterloo, took the bet.

He will ride a ten-year-old ex-horse named Larry over the 100-mile course. The race will be over a tour yet to be set.

Smith even agreed the horse would run or gallop. He figures he can walk five to eight miles an hour and win handily.

Tough Guy, Aged 4, Turns on 3 Fire Alarms, Swats Cop

DANBURY, Conn., July 29.—(AP) An unidentified boy who appeared to be no more than four years old, had quite a time for himself here today.

He turned in a fire alarm from a box in the center of Danbury's congested factory district, bringing three fire companies to the scene.

After firemen arrived, he gave the alarm box hook another yank which brought out all of Danbury's fire fighting apparatus together with 150 firemen.

Fire Chief John A. McNamara said the second alarm was equivalent to a general alarm because of the nature of the area.

He also explained that the boy was able to reach the fire alarm box the first time because "it was a low hanging one."

The boy turned in the second alarm, the chief said, while he was struggling in the arms of a fireman who saw him standing near the instrument.

"He slapped the fireman in the face with one hand and turned in the alarm with the other," the chief said.

Later, during the excitement, the chief said, the boy disappeared in the crowd.

Vice-President's Home To Cost $2,500,000 Proposed

WASHINGTON, July 30.—(AP) Congressmen from the home states of the two major party vice-presidential candidates joined yesterday in drafting bills to build and furnish a $2,500,000 home here for the vice-president.

Such a home should have been built when the White House was erected for the president, the two sponsors, Rep. Gregory and Gearhart (R-Calif.), said in a statement. Gov. Earl Warren, GOP vice-presidential candidate, hails from Gearhart's state. Pending construction of the proposed home, the famous old Blair House, now used for visiting dignitaries, would be assigned to the vice-president.

Oslo, the Norwegian capital, was founded in 1048, destroyed by fire and rebuilt in 1624, renamed Christiania and then given its original name back in 1925. The new Mt. Palomar telescope extends man's range of vision by 500 million light years.

Wife Seeker's Specifications Eyed by Colleens

DUBLIN, July 30.—(AP) Irish colleens perked up at a letter published in the Dublin Evening Mail advertising for a wife for a well-to-do stationary engineer who prefers "the short, well-built type—not too slender."

The letter was signed, "Bert Stone, 13297 Glen Oaks Boulevard, San Fernando, California."

"She can be from, say, 20 to 30 years of age," it said.

"She should know how to cook, keep house, and prepare a good meal."

"She should be, at least, a high school graduate—the more education the better."

The writer said he was "past 40 years" and "athletically built."

He promised: "The girl I marry will have a good car to drive, good clothes, money for luxuries and necessities."

God's Word

6. But godliness with contentment is great gain.
7. For we brought nothing into this world and it is certain we can carry nothing out.
8. And having food and raiment let us be therewith content.
9. But they that will be rich fall into temptation and a snare, and into many foolish and hurtful lusts, which drown men in destruction and perdition.
10. For the love of money is the root of all evil.
