

Red Leaders May be 'Crackpots,' But Not Necessarily Harmless

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

PHILADELPHIA—(NEA)—Backbone of the Henry Wallace Third Party is revealed here as coming from the leadership of the left-wing labor movement. It has for its front a few radical intellectuals like Louis Adamic, Howard Fast, Lillian Hellman and Prof. Rexford Guy Tugwell of the University of Chicago. It gets its mass support from Negroes, Jews, Townsendites and other minority groups.

But the main strength is drawn from 11 unpurged CIO unions, plus a scattering of Wallace button-wearers in the right-wing CIO unions, the AFL, the railroad brotherhoods and the United Mine Workers. Chairman of the National Labor Committee for Wallace is Albert Fitzgerald, president of the United Electrical Workers, CIO. His right-hand man and chief counsel is Lee Pressman, former CIO lawyer, now secretary of the Third Party platform committee and a candidate for Congress from Brooklyn. Their three vice-chairmen are Courtney Ward of Cleveland, president of the Northern Ohio Painters' Council, AFL, Donald R. Hicks of Minneapolis, Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, and Hugh Bryson of New York, president of the Marine Cooks and Stewards, CIO.

Wallace's Backers

The CIO internationalists that openly support Wallace, and whose officers are all for Wallace, are: United Electrical Workers; Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers; United Office and Professional Workers; Fur and Leather Workers; Farm Equipment Workers; Harry Bridges' International Longshoremen and Warehousemen; Fishermen; Marine Cooks and Stewards; Food and Tobacco Workers; and Furniture Workers.

These left-wing unions represent a total membership of about 1,500,000, of which 600,000 are in the United Electrical Workers. All their Third Party activity is carried on against the policy laid down by Phil Murray, Dave McDonald, Jim Carey and other top CIO officers.

Phil Murray's opposition to the Wallace movement has forced Fitzgerald and Pressman to do a certain amount of underground work in getting support from rank and file members of the more conservatively led unions. In the anti-Communist directed Steel, Auto and Rubber Workers unions, Fitzgerald's organizers have worked at the local level. They claim some 3000 shop communities for Wallace, functioning against the top officers of their unions.

Demands Set Forth

Jack Kroll's CIO Political Action Committee has fought this Wallace movement as hard as it could. PAC units that show any interest in the Wallace candidacy are disciplined.

Fear of getting in bad with their international officers has kept many union men from supporting the Wallace movement openly. Fitzgerald lieutenants say strangely enough, they report no opposition from leadership of the AFL unions or from John L. Lewis.

What these left-wing labor elements want out of the Wallace movement is fantastic. Don Hicks speaking for the railroads before the Wallace Platform Committee, outlined these demands: The six-hour day; pension at half pay for railroaders with 39 years service; amendment of the Railway Labor Act to give the brotherhoods more power, pending eventual national ownership of the railroads. Stanley L. Loney, UEW vice president, made these demands: Free high school and college education for all; free medical care and hospitalization for all; $100-a-month pensions for all over 60; $1-an-hour minimum wage; $40 a week for 52 weeks unemployment insurance; 92 weeks guaranteed work every year; and so on.

These are fair samples of the demands made by a parade of over 75 witnesses from special interest groups of World Federalists, Amigos de Wallace, tenants, social workers, artists, scientists, teachers, Slavs, Armenians, writers and what-have-yous. Out of the whole bunch, there was not one that said there was anything good about the United States of America.
