

Physical Exams Of 1st Grade Pupils Up to Districts

Arrangements for pre-school examinations of Douglas County school children (exclusive of Roseburg) who will be entering the first grade this fall will be up to the individual districts, announced County School Superintendent Mrs. Lula C. Gorrell.

An original plan to secure for the examinations interns from the Portland Medical School failed to materialize. The County Health Department, she said, has found it impossible to make the examinations as in past years, because of increased work of the department and limited staff.

The Rural School Board, which serves all county districts except Roseburg, set up a fund of $2 for each pre-school age child for examination purposes, but the districts will have to arrange with physicians for the work, said Mrs. Gorrell.

The superintendent suggested that arrangements should be made for the smaller districts to combine so that large groups could be handled in a single day, or less. The fullest cooperation of the parents in assisting with the arrangements would be necessary, she said.

Individual examinations by family physicians might be preferable, said Mrs. Gorrell. In case this is done, she said, the parents should make sure the physician has the prescribed examination form from the State Board of Health.

Approximately 900 first graders, based upon last fall's census, will enter county schools this fall. While the pre-school examination is primarily the responsibility of the parents, the school will endeavor to assist them as much as possible, she said.

Superintendent of Schools Paul Elliott stated a later announcement will be made regarding pre-school exams in this city.

Theater Attractions

Capturing with charm and realism the hilarious tribulations of a courageous family, RKO Radio brings to the screen an adaptation of John Van Druten's smash hit, "I Remember Mama", coming Sunday to the Indian Theatre.

Irene Dunne is the indomitable "Mama" of the title. Head of a teeming household and harassed by a clan of problem relatives, she pilots her brood through vicissitudes which would wreck many another. She also guides a limping romance to the altar, arranges her daughter's career, wallops the family budget into working order, and buoys up the morale of all concerned.

Co-starring with Miss Dunne are Barbara Bel Geddes, Oscar Homolka and Philip Dorn. Featured are Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Edgar Bergen, Rudy Vallee and Barbara O'Neil.

"Mama's" household consists of "Papa" (Dorn), Jonathan Hyde (Hardwicke), a hammy thespian whose rent is always unpaid, but whose contribution to the education of the household is not purchasable in money; Katrin (Miss Bel Geddes); daughter Christine (Peggy McIntyre); youngest daughter Dagmar (June Hedin); and son Neil (Steve Brown) and "Uncle Elizabeth", an adopted alley cat.

Also ruled by "Mama's" mailed fist in the velvet glove are THE AUNTS; disliked by "Mama's" children; considered rank fools by "Papa". They are Aunt Trina (Ellen Corby), lovable, whimsy spinster; Aunt Jenny (Hope Landin), and Aunt Sigrid (Edith Evanson). The latter two are given to intrusion and to superior poses. They are baffled only by Uncle Chris (Homolka), a feocious-seeming Viking, whose kindness is intuitively known by the children and whose charities are never discovered by anybody except the perceptive "Ma-

Mr. Thorkelson, a mild-mannered undertaker (Edgar Bergen) is suitor for the fluttering hand of Aunt Trina. For a while he is frustrated by the terrible weight of the two hostile aunts' ridicule. But he captures the meek Trina, unaware that Mama has stymied interference by a threat of disclosing some in-law family skeletons.

Throughout Christine's desperate illness, Katrin's extravagant yearnings, Mr. Hyde's financial lapses, and "Papa's" low income, the knowledge that "Mama's" account in the bank down-town is always there to tide them over, gives the children hope and the grown-ups courage. That they never have to tap it, is due to their ability to muddle through each emergency as it arises. When Katrin's stories sell, and she is the amazed recipient of a big check, the family, rejoicing, urge "Mama" to put the money along with the rest in her account . . . and it is only then revealed that "Mama" never had an account. The mythical backlog has served its purpose—has inspired a sense of security and strength.

Army Allotted Millions to Carry Out Big Program

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6—(AP)—The Army gave its engineers $3,525,100 today for special military construction at the secret guided missile center at White Sands.

It also allotted $40,907,085 to bolster the nation's ramparts in Alaska, where a lack of housing has forced a delay in plans to increase ground force strength.

Funds for the New Mexico and Alaska projects were among top items in a $612,700,000 expansion program announced by Secretary of the Army Royal. Of this total, $151,000,000 was earmarked for Army and Air Force construction in 27 states and 10 overseas areas. The Army Engineers also will spend $429,000,000 during the fiscal year ending next June 30 for such things as equipment, maps, research and maintenance operations. In addition, Congress gave them $32,700,000 extra to continue work underway in Guam, Okinawa and Alaska—mostly housing. The major item in the White Sands allotment is a dust-proof assembly plant for guided missiles.

Most of the construction funds are earmarked for housing, with a $3,432,672 allotment for Camp Hood, Tex., topping the list. Fort Lewis, Wash., received $2,131,632. Switzerland, which covers 16,000 square miles, contains the headwaters of four great European river systems—the Rhine, Rhone, Po and Danube.

Barrow Relief Operation Looks Like Invasion

POINT BARROW, Alaska, Aug. 6—(AP)—America's northernmost base looks like an invasion beachhead today.

Out at sea, huge Navy attack transports stand at anchor. Landing craft shuttle between ship and shore. Mountains of oil drums and crates pile up on the beach.

Portable generators whine on the shore as Navy signalmen transmit messages by wireless and blinker to the "invasion" headquarters—the flagship, Weasels, tractors and cranes are a moving maze between supply stacks and warehouses.

There is a sense of urgency to the feverish unloading pace, similar to a wartime beachhead. The foe, this time, is the polar ice pack.

The scene is the Navy's yearly landing of supplies for its oil exploration base on the upper tip of Alaska.

The supply vessels anchored offshore here yesterday. They had raced from Seattle with word of the ice breakup only to be barred from reaching Barrow for two days by shifting ice.

Today, helicopters and amphibians coursed the edge of the massive white thatch that caps the North, ready to warn the supply fleet to up anchor if it begins again to move towards shore.

The arrival of the ships was like Christmas in August to the natives as well as to the Navy personnel here. Men, women and children trooped out of the native village onto the beach, shouting "umiapuk, umiapuk!"—the Eskimo equivalent of "big boat."

The vessels also brought 2,000 tons of freight for the village. It must last until next summer when the ice breaks up again for an all too short period.

Federal officials had reported the natives short of supplies before the Navy expedition arrived. Native leaders said they expect shortages in many items before next summer, despite the fact that the present shipment is the largest ever received.

Navy crews are scheduled to work 12-hour shifts, 24 hours a day until the supply vessels are unloaded. On their side in the race against the ice is the continuous daylight. The sun sets for only 90 minutes, and then barely beneath the rim of the earth.

FINES SUSPENDED

Defendants in two assault and battery cases coming before Justice of Peace Thomas C. Hartfield Thursday were each fined $25, but the fines were suspended. In one case, Paul Rogers was the plaintiff against Euel and Vaul Rogers. In the second case Erman Rogers was plaintiff against Vaul Rogers.

Saint Bernard dogs are named for a mountain in Switzerland near which the breed was developed and where the dogs were used to help rescue travelers lost in the snow.
