

Biologists Seek Cause of Dwindling Pilchard Supply

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 21.—(AP)—The familiar sardine is not as familiar as it used to be. Its disappearance off the North Pacific coast already has changed the habits of the fishermen, and may change the eating habits of the nation.

The next "dark of the moon" may tell the story.

The Pilchard (sardine) season already has opened in the north Pacific coast area. In those waters, the tiny fish once were abundant. But last year the catch was so small that fishermen turned to other areas and other fish to make a living.

Biologists of the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service, in cooperation with the State of California, are studying the problem. But they say it may take years of statistical research and samplings of the catch to discover the reason for the disappearance.

Experts said the early catch this month is inconclusive. But when the boats go out again at the next dark of the moon it should become known whether the Pilchards intend to return in great numbers to the waters off San Francisco and Monterey.

Minor B. Schaefer, fishery biologist of the Fish and Wildlife Service, said northern fishermen last year gave up and joined the crews fishing for Pilchard in the San Pedro bay area of southern California.

To keep the northern canneries going, some of the purse seiners turned to Mackerel and Tuna.

Girl Drowns 4-Point Buck Deer to Save Her Dog

UKIAH, Calif., Aug. 21.—(AP)—Hunters told yesterday how a 19-year-old girl struggled with a wounded four-point buck and drowned the animal in a stream to save her tiny dog.

The girl, Mary Ruddock, of Anderson valley, wounded the deer as it went over a bluff followed by the pet dog, part bulldog and part terrier.

Fearful her dog would be killed by the crazed animal, Mary leaped a 20-foot embankment and struck the deer so hard with her rifle it broke the stock. She then leaped onto the struggling deer and finished it off by holding its head under water. The girl was badly bruised.

Convicts Spurn 'Vacation' Offer, Too Busy at Jobs

ATLANTA, Aug. 21.—(AP)—It seems that some of the 2,200 inmates of Atlanta's federal penitentiary just don't want to get away from it all.

The warden's proffer of a week's vacation—with room and board for free—brought out the shopworn reply: "I just can't make it now. I can't leave my work."

Warden W. H. Hlatt offered the vacation plan as a morale builder. But some of those eligible for an easy time of it turned him down cold. Only prisoners with outstanding records are given vacations—if they can tear themselves away from their chores.

As an eligible machinist told the warden: "I can't let a vacation interfere with my work."

"Vacation" at the big house means sleeping as late as you want to, basking in the sun, playing tennis, spending the day in the library, going to two shows, lounging in your bunk—things like that. All of course, inside the penitentiary walls.

Hlatt said many of the prisoners had been working at the same task seven days a week for years, and just didn't want to let a little fun interrupt their work.

Boy Shoplifter Failed To Read Comic Strip Finale

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 21.—(AP)—The 15-year-old boy arrested yesterday on a shoplifting charge didn't, said Detective O. K. Robinson, read the comic strip long enough.

The boy, never in trouble before, was accused of stuffing a cashmere sweater into a box fitted with a trapdoor, like one used by a character in a newspaper comic.

"You read that strip," don't you?" asked the detective.

"Yeah."

"Did you get the idea from it?"

"Yeah."

"Well, you didn't read last night's strip, did you?"

The boy shook his head. So did the detective.

In last night's strip, the character who shoplifted with the trap door box pleaded guilty to larceny.

Neuner Issues Opinion On Non-Medical Practice

SALEM, Ore., Aug. 20 (AP)—Chiropractors and naturopaths can practice physiotherapy, electrotherapy and hydrotherapy, Attorney General Neuner ruled today for the State Board of Chiropractic Examiners.

He also ruled that chiropractors can't permit unlicensed persons to do their work.

In 1948, U. S. proven crude oil reserves were at a record high level of more than 21 billion barrels.

Longshore Union Faces Trial Under Taft-Hartley Law

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 21.—(AP)—Harry Bridges' CIO longshoremen must appear before a National Labor Relations Board trial examiner here Sept. 1 to answer an NLRB complaint charging them with violating the Taft-Hartley act.

The complaint was issued yesterday by regional NLRB Director Gerald Brown. It cited the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union and two affiliated groups with "refusing to bargain in good faith by insisting on a hiring hall arrangement which is illegal."

The Waterfront Employers Association filed unfair labor practice charges against the ILWU last June 10, a few days before a scheduled coastwide strike by five maritime unions.

The strike was averted by a federal court injunction which expires Sept. 2. A second injunction to extend the strike ban could result from the Sept. 1 hearing.

The employers, in a stand upheld by the NLRB this week, have maintained that hiring halls in which dispatchers are union members are illegal under the Taft-Hartley act. They have insisted on "impartial third parties" for dispatchers.

The controversy has been the principal issue in the deadlock over a new contract to replace the one which expired June 15.

But last night a coastwide caucus of the ILWU declared settlement would not settle the projected Sept. 2 strike.

The caucus rejected a "final offer" by the WEA which included a five per cent wage increase.

West Coast employers have declined to follow the lead of Atlantic and Gulf Coast shipowners who have agreed to continue a union dispatcher hiring hall arrangement with the National Maritime Union unless the Supreme Court rules it illegal.

All the theater equipment. Consideration for the purchase was listed at $25,000.

Under terms of the contract, the name of "Eagle Theater" is transferred to the new owner, and the former owner agreed not to establish, or operate, another theater within a radius of 15 miles of Yoncalla for the next five years.

The first canal and lock in America was built in Sault Ste. Marie.

Theater at Yoncalla Sold To Drain Operator

The Eagle Theater at Yoncalla has been sold by Frederick E. and Bernice E. Merk of that city to Golda Woolman, owner and operator of the theater in Drain, according to terms of an agreement filed with the county clerk Thursday.

The agreement covers the property, described as lot five, block three, City of Yoncalla, and
