GENEVA, Switzerland, Aug. 24.—(AP)—The United Nations Economic and Social Council yesterday adopted a resolution deploring any ban on wives leaving their country to join their husbands, or any ban on racially mixed marriages.

But when the delegates saw the text of their resolution in writing for the first time today, they were not quite sure what they had voted for.

The resolution was debated for five hours yesterday, during which so many drafting changes were made and withdrawn and reintroduced that not even the secretariat was quite sure what was going on.

The resolution was adopted 14 to 3, with British Delegate A. M. Morgan abstaining because he approved the intention but did not like the phrasing of a 92-word sentence. The three Communist delegations, the Soviet Union, White Russia and Poland voted against the resolution because they considered the reference to women leaving their countries an infringement of national sovereignty by the United Nations. The entire resolution is certain to be redrafted by the general assembly next month.

Street Widening Plans Get Commission's O. K.

as a route for northbound high-way traffic and Stephens Street for southbound traffic.

He said he believed that Main Street would be more practical as the alternative route than Pine Street. To use Main Street, it would be necessary to make a suitable connection with the highway at the south end and to bridge Deer Creek. Traffic could then be routed over Winchester Street to the north. Use of Pine Street would create traffic bottlenecks, he said.

Sanitation Need Cited
County Sanitarian Claude Baker appeared before the commission to urge that provision of suitable sewage disposal facilities be required for subdivision plans presented to the Commission for approval. He pointed out that to receive FHA loans from the federal government, homes must have suitable drainage and sewage facilities. He urged the commission to adopt similar regulations as a requisite for approval of real estate developments.

Baker's remarks were made in connection with the presentation of a plat by Warren Cloake for a proposed subdivision on the Melrose Road near the South Umpqua River. The area was described as a beautiful location for homes where Cloake intended to construct low-cost dwellings for purchase by veterans. The proposed plat received the tentative approval of the Commission.

Other plans were presented to the commission by Cecil Hedges, of an area on the Calkins Road, and by Mel Housley, of an area in the Edenbower Orchards. Tentative approval of the plats was given by the commission.

ress been made last night and early today, he added, the current series of conversations would have ended.

It had been stated on good authority before the meeting last night that the session would be the last.

Whitehall sources in London said Stalin introduced certain "new ideas" which offer hope for an East-West settlement in Berlin. The introduction of those unexplained new thoughts dispelled fears that the diplomatic exchanges would break down, the informants said. They added that prolongation of the Moscow negotiations averted a potentially explosive international situation, at least temporarily.

Politeness Rules
It was stressed that despite the length of the talks, the delicacy of the subject and the frankness exhibited by both Stalin and the Western diplomats, there has been no loss of temper. The conversations have been correct and polite.

Indications here were that the four powers may issue a public statement shortly on the talks.

It is obvious there must be conversations in the four capitals. There is little indication of how much ground the announcement will cover, but it is reported it should be sufficiently substantial to put at rest some of the rumors circulating around the world.

Anti-Red Germans In Berlin Face Vote Ban

purge, according to announcements by party leaders, has been aimed at weeding out "anti-Soviet elements" and other "unreliables," who fail to adhere strictly to the Marxist-Leninist line.

The party also has been trimming down from mass membership to what it calls "a fighting cadre party," which could more easily seize and wield full powers.

The postponement of elections in their zone also indicated the Russians would oppose holding new municipal elections in Berlin this October. The Socialist Unity Party, which ran a poor third in the 1946 Berlin voting, already has indicated opposition to new elections here.

Meanwhile, the Communists have been seeking to obtain control locally by splitting up the elected anti-Communist city government and setting up various administrations of their own.

The Communist press, meanwhile, is beating the drums again for a share in Western Germany's coal-rich Ruhr.

The Russians intensified their efforts to win over the population of Western Berlin with new offers of food, fuel and other rations. Thus far these gestures have had little success and only a trickle of western Berliners have come across sector borders to registered for the proffered rations.

Pro-Soviet Churchman Denied Visa to U. S.

LONDON, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Dr. Hewlett Johnson, the Dean of Canterbury, said yesterday he had been refused a visa to enter the United States for lecture engagements.

Dr. Johnson, for years a defender of the Soviet way of life and known as "the Red Dean," issued his statement through the London Daily Worker. He is a member of the editorial board of that Communist newspaper.

Dr. Johnson said the visa was refused because the embassy disapproved of the American-Soviet Friendship Society which was sponsoring his tour and an address at New York's Madison Square Garden Nov. 3.

In Washington, press officer Michael McDermott said the State Department has no objections personally to Dr. Johnson. But he added, "It would regard a visit under auspices of this organization as not in our national interest."

"The Soviet-American Council, McDermott said, is on the attorney general's list of subversive organizations."

Science Seeks Bans On Severe Effects Of Atomic Bombs

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Reporter
BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 24.—(AP)—A surprising start toward protecting humans from some bad effects of atomic bombs or X-rays was shown today by five Chicago scientists.

One of these bad results is anemia. Radiation from atomic bombs or hospital X-rays can destroy bone marrow, the factory that makes red and white blood cells. When the marrow is damaged, production of these cells falls off and anemia results.

The surprise is a way to prevent damage to the bone marrow factories by fighting fire with fire. It is explained in an exhibit at the International Congress on Hematology.

One big dose of radiation destroys the bone marrow of normal animals, they found. The animals got anemia and it took a long time for them to recover.

They took other animals, and first made them anemic before exposing them to the dose of X-rays or neutrons. This was done by bleeding them, or giving them a drug that ruptures red blood cells.

These animals, already anemic, escaped any damage to their bone marrow. They escaped it even when given doses of radiation that probably would kill a human being. They weren't made more anemic by the radiation. And they recovered quickly from the induced anemia.

The induced anemia had stimulated the bone marrow to make more blood cells, Dr. L. D. Jacobson explained, and this greater activity of the cell factories apparently protected the marrow from radiation damage. Exactly how it is protected hasn't been learned yet.

This same kind of fire-against-fire protection probably would occur in humans, Dr. Jacobson said.

consumer spending for personal use, which had tightened up some early in the year. Bigger sales of furniture and home appliances, and larger outlays for laundry and shoe repair services were items in a $3,000,000,000 increase in the consumer spending rate.

Consumers had more left to spend after taxes, for one thing. The federal income tax cut which began showing up in May gave them an extra $3,000,000,000 a year to "blow" and still keep overall savings at a little higher rate than in the first quarter of 1948.

Since the Washington Redskins of the National Pro Football League were organized in 1932 they have drawn playing talent from 101 different colleges.

Housing Lack Will Be Probed by Sen. Cordon

I want to know why," Cordon said. "I want specific examples of why it is not working. If there are hazards the law did not contemplate, then I want to know about them."

"There is no excuse—or should be no excuse—for material shortages. If the materials are not available, the federal government should help make them available, either through voluntary channeling or through control, if necessary."

The Roseburg senator is scheduled a meeting at Portland with the housing committees of that city. Later, he said, if his itinerary permits, he proposes to visit other cities to make first hand study of their housing needs.

"If the legislation we now have is not sufficient to encourage home building, we will try to secure the kind of legislation that is needed," the senator said.

He pointed out the need for rental units in the Roseburg area and declared it would be his intention to try to encourage the building of such units as a public service, providing the legislative factors prevent investment losses.
