Douglas One of 3 Counties Topping Lumber Payrolls

The lumber producing counties of Lane, Douglas and Coos continue to show the way towards setting up new payroll records for Oregon, according to compilation of first quarter reports from 18,000 employers covered by the State Unemployment Compensation Commission.

Covered payrolls for each of the three counties showed increases of around 25 per cent over 1947 figures, while Linn, Klamath, Deschutes and Lincoln counties, which also have been stepping up lumber production since 1940, little more than held their own. In all seven counties, wood product firms accounted for most of the reported wages.

Lane county widened its margin for leadership among upstate counties with $15,783,113 payroll, an increase of 27.6 per cent over the $12,368,912 reported for the first quarter of 1947. More than 85 per cent of these wages went to wood product workers.

Coos county overtook Linn with an advance of 23.5 per cent from $5,844,025 last year to $7,230,076 in 1948. More than 66 per cent of this payroll was in lumber and logging. With an increase of 25 per cent from $5,557,277 in 1947 to $6,942,467 the first quarter of 1948, only 6 per cent higher than a year before. Nearly 66 per cent of Linn's payroll was in wood products, while 71 per cent of Douglas' wages came from this industry.

Nearly 80 per cent of Lincoln county's $2,527,377 first quarter payroll was accounted for by lumber and logging, but the county gained only 10.3 per cent over the same period in 1947. Klamath reported $6,044,632 in first quarter wages, 5.4 per cent higher than a year before. Deschutes gained 17 per cent to report $2,706,617.

Sixteen of Oregon's 36 counties reported more payrolls in the first quarter of 1948 than the entire year of 1940. One county—Douglas—actually doubled that year's figures, and Linn and Josephine came close to it.

Payroll reports already tabulated indicate a first quarter total of well over $210 millions, highest in the state's history, while first half wages will run around $436 millions, indicating new highs for 1948 of more than $900 millions. This compares with a pre-war high of $256 millions and a war-time mark of $799 millions in covered payrolls.

Axis Sally, Once Mental Glamour Girl, Just Another Illusion

By DON WHITEHEAD

WASHINGTON—(AP)—All during the war years, allied soldiers thought they were listening to a young, beautiful woman when they tuned in on "Axis Sally" broadcasting from Berlin.

Axis Sally had that kind of voice—the kind that weaves an illusion for tired and lonely men who have been months and years away from home.

I remember the first time I heard Axis Sally. Montgomery's Eighth Army was chasing Rommel's Afrika Korps across the western desert toward Bengasi and defeat in Tunisia. There wasn't much time to rest, but occasionally the traffic jam on the desert road forced halts along the way.

One night at Halfaya (Hell Fire) pass, tired British soldiers gathered around a radio after supper. A signalman tuned in a BBC program. It was a bore-some discourse by a Mr. Heathstone Witherington, or somebody with a like name, on Dahlia culture in Kensington. The BBC seemed to specialize in programs nobody wanted to hear.

"Hell, Jock," a Highlander growled. "Let's hear Axis Sally." Jock spun the dials and in a few moments the soft, pulsing strains of an American melody floated across the desert.

When the music ended, a throaty woman's voice whispered words intended to stir longing and desire and homesickness in the hearts of those who listened. The voice talked of home and wives and sweethearts—and how foolish it was to fight the Germans.

It told the men to give up the fight and go back home to their loved ones. It was a voice that tried to seduce and break the hard spirit of the desert rats so far from home.

Oh, they liked Axis Sally—those tough men of the desert. They liked her American brand of music and her warm voice that made them forget for a moment the cold winds of the desert night—just because it was feminine.

But they laughed at Sally's commercials—the sloppy merchandise she tried to sell them. And now they tell us Axis Sally is no glamorous gal at all. The government says she is American-born Mildred Elizabeth Gillars—a tired-looking, graying woman of ordinary figure and features who is nearing the half-century mark in age. She is accused of "unlawfully, willfully and treasonably" aiding Germany during the war by trying to break the morale of Allied troops with her music and seductive voice. She was brought here from Frankfurt, Germany, and is awaiting trial.

If Mildred Elizabeth Gillars is Axis Sally—then a lot of men around the world are going
