

Vishinsky Does Amazing Back-Flop In 'Yearning for Cooperation'

By DeWITT MACKENZIE AP Foreign Affairs Analyst A most remarkable spirit of Russian "peace and goodwill" descended for a time on the deliberations of the United Nations meeting in Paris yesterday when Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vishinsky abandoned his customary oratorical invective and declared Communists "are yearning for cooperation."

That was an amazing back-flop which naturally gave rise to speculation as to its significance. What could have caused such an abrupt change? Of course the non-Communist countries on the social committee had appeased Russia the previous day by the withdrawal of an amendment to the declaration on human rights saying that all human beings are "created in the image and likeness of God."

Russia's Alexei Pavlov had objected to such language. He said in the Soviet Union the postulate that man is created in God's image is "much disputed" and often regarded as "a certain sign of social backwardness."

However, it could hardly have been this striking appeasement which influenced vitriolic Vishinsky. A British spokesman summed the thing up for reporters rather more prosaically when he said the offensive by the Western Powers in the Security Council had "kept Vishinsky fairly subdued."

The spokesman was referring to the charge laid before the Council by the Western Powers that the Soviet blockade of Berlin is a threat to peace. He explained that the deputy foreign minister had been put on the defensive, and said the Western Powers feel sure the course they are following will in the end make Russia change her policies in Germany.

Attitude Softened Vishinsky's speech came after a broadside from U. S. delegate Warren R. Austin in the U. N. Assembly political committee. Austin asserted that the Soviet battle cry in the Security Council was "wreck and destruction."

Vishinsky, instead of trying to tear his opponent limb from limb, as is his usual procedure, adopted an attitude of injured dignity. He complained that the Western Nations believe "whatever we do is wrong."

The speaker capped that by declaring that capitalist and Communist ideologies could live side by side in the same world "if both sides try to understand the other side. Hence our desire to cooperate."

All of which strikes me as meaning merely that Russia is under pressure and consequently is staging a tactical diversion. There is no real sign that she has changed her views in the slightest degree.
