

Republicans Confident Of Win in Oregon

Retention of All State Offices Expected; Demos Lock Campaign Funds

By PAUL W. HARVEY, JR.
SALEM, Oct. 25 — (P) — Oregon's general election ballot will be the longest ever, and the balloting will be doubly important because of the unprecedented situation in which all three positions on the State Board of Control must be filled at once.

The death of Governor Earl Snell in a plane crash a year ago made this necessary.

The members of this board are the governor, secretary of state and state treasurer. The Republicans are running three men who served in the State Senate last session, and all are upstate men. If the Republicans win, Portland won't have a man on the board.

The Republicans are confident of maintaining their stranglehold on all state offices, and the Democrats have been hard-pressed to find campaign funds. Oregon has been Republican for many years in voting for state offices, although there are almost as many registered Democrats as there are registered Republicans.

The last time the Republicans lost the governorship to the Democrats was in 1922, when Walter Pierce was elected. Charles H. Martin, a Democrat, was elected governor in 1934, but that was made possible by an independent getting into the act.

McKay Resembles Snell
State Sen. Douglas McKay, 55, Salem auto dealer, who got the Republican nomination by beating Gov. John Hall last May, is running for the state's top job against another senator, Democratic Lew Wallace, 59, a Portland insurance man.

Wallace, former Democratic national committeeman, tried to get elected governor in 1942, and Earl Snell beat him by more than 3 to 1.

McKay has many resemblances to Snell. He was Snell's lieutenant in the legislature, and Snell was an auto dealer, too. He would not be a spectacular governor; his friends assert he would be cautious. His campaign speeches have dwelt almost exclusively on Oregon's development, but he favors lower income taxes, better highways and state planning.

Wallace, a former state game commissioner, has the same tax program as McKay, but he would go a step farther. He wants gasoline taxes cut, too, as well as lower milk prices in stores. Wendell E. Barnett, Salem Farmers Union official and PUD advocate, is an independent candidate.

Newby vs. Carney
Secretary of State Earl T. Newby, 48-year-old Ashland Republican, is a peer packer who was appointed a year ago from the Senate to succeed Robert S. Farrell Jr., who was killed in the same crash as Snell.

He already has proposed many changes in his office, such as the plan for permanent automobile license plates, staggering the expiration dates of drivers' licenses, and exempting minor accidents from the state law which compels owners of cars involved in accidents to have liability insurance or to post bond.

Newby's Democratic opponent is Byron G. Carney, 73-year-old Milwaukee contractor, whose career has included being a minister, missionary, shipyard worker, state senator, and running the 1940 census for Oregon.

Belton vs. Pearson
Howard C. Belton, 55, is a Canby farmer with a long Senate career which included a term as Senate president. He barely won the Republican nomination for state treasurer, and is running against Walter J. Pearson, 45, Portland insurance man and one of the tiny group of Democrats in the Senate.

Belton's campaign theme has been economy in government, while Pearson's main argument has been for lower taxes, bigger old age pensions, increased college facilities, and more state and federal aid to education.

Neuner Again in Race
In the only other race for state office, Attorney General George Neuner, 70, who has been in Republican politics all his life, is after another term. And here again, just to make the record complete, is another former state senator on the Republican ticket.

Neuner has served five years, and his record includes service in both houses of the legislature, as United States district attorney for Oregon, and as attorney for the State Liquor Commission. He owns a ranch near Riddle, Douglas County.

Neuner is running against William B. Murray, 41, Portland lawyer, who charges Neuner with trying to dictate to county district attorneys in the enforcement of gambling laws.

Plane Crash Kills Three Of 22 Persons Aboard
CHANUTE AIR BASE, Ill., Oct. 25 — (P) — Three men were killed last night in a crash here of a C-47 Air Forces plane carrying 22 persons.

Nineteen injured taken to the base hospital "probably owe their lives to the fact that their light plane crashed into a second barracks, Brigadier General F. R. Upthegrove, commanding general, said.

Approaching the base in a heavy ground fog, chopped a corner off one barracks and then plowed through a second barracks before smashing to the ground.

Two Portlanders Die When Plane Strikes Hill
ST. HELENS, Ore., Oct. 25 — (P) — Two Portland men were killed Saturday when their light plane crashed into a hill between Scappoose and Vernonia during heavy fog and low clouds.

Frank Henry Fay, 36, and Wilson Albert Maisel, 30, were thrown clear of the wreckage.

Fay, the pilot, was a manufacturer of radio equipment and owned the plane. Maisel was an instrument technician and with Fay had been inspecting installation of electrical equipment at Castle Rock, Wash.

Hit-Run Car Kills Aged Man, Injures His Wife
PORTLAND, Oct. 25 (P) — A car which did not stop crashed into an elderly couple at an intersection last night, killing the 80-year-old husband and injuring his wife.

The victim is Elbert M. Foudray, Portland, who died in a hospital after the accident. His wife, Elsie, 69, was in critical condition.

A witness to the accident said the car which hit them was occupied by three youths and traveling at high speed.

Although splitting on this issue the five-man board agreed unanimously that (A) mass picketing which blocks plant entrances, and (B) pursuing non-strikers in automobiles to stay away from a struck plant, are illegal practices.

Also unanimous was a board ruling that swearing on a picket line by strikers against non-strikers is protected by free speech clauses of the Taft-Hartley Act so long as there is no threat of bodily harm.

Russia Vetoes Proposal For Berlin Blockade Lift

brought before the Security Council in the first place. Earlier, an authoritative source said that the three Western Powers had rejected a Russian counter-proposal for ending the blockade.

The Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister said his main objection to the six-nation proposal was that, while the blockade was to be raised at once, "only talks will be organized" immediately on the currency reform demanded by the Russians.

"We cannot accept that," he declared.

French, British and U. S. delegates all informed the council, before Vishinsky spoke, that they would accept the resolution.

The six powers—Canada, China, Argentina, Syria, Belgium, and Colombia—stepped into the dispute in an effort to mediate it, soon after the United States, Britain and France filed the Berlin case with the Security Council, charging that the Berlin blockade is a threat to peace.

Russia has maintained there is no blockade.

U. S. Delegate Responds
Dr. Philip Jessup, U. S. Representative on the Council, then declared that if Russia vetoed the proposal, responsibility for failure to find a solution of the Berlin dispute "will rest squarely and unavoidably on the government of the Soviet Union."

"In the judgment of the world," he said, the six-nation proposal was "a fair-minded resolution" drafted by six nations and supported by three of the world's great powers.

Jessup said he had "listened in vain" during Vishinsky's speech for a sign of conciliation. Vishinsky, he said, "flat-footedly admitted" Russia would continue the blockade to attain its ends.

The issue now before the council, he added, is that "the Soviet government has clearly shown by its actions . . . it wishes to secure political objectives."

The Russian plan, one informant said, called for lifting of the Berlin blockade by stages, in conjunction with currency revision and other adjustments of the German problem. The West has insisted that the Russians must lift the blockade before further direct negotiations take place.

Cabinet Jobs Under Study by Gov. Dewey

Clifford R. Hope (R-KAN) for Secretary of Agriculture.

Dewey has promised publicly to name a Secretary of Interior from one of the 11 far western states, excluding California and Arizona because of their current water dispute.

There are some who believe that he might name Gov. Sam Ford of Montana.

May Retain Forrestal
Dewey's praise of Harold E. Stassen while the GOP nominee was campaigning in Minnesota revived talk that he might want his former rival for the presidential nomination in his cabinet.

Stassen, however, has told friends he would be interested in only two jobs—Secretary of State or Secretary of National Defense.

For the latter post, there still is talk that Senator Edward Martin of Pennsylvania is in the running.

Ferdinand Eberstadt, former War Production Board chairman, is mentioned often for the defense post. There is even some talk that Dewey might want to retain Secretary James Forrestal.

There has been almost no speculation on a possible appointee for Secretary of Labor.

Significantly, however, the only labor figure of any stature in the Dewey camp has been William L. McFetridge, general president of the International Union of Building Service Employees.

McFetridge will introduce Dewey for the Chicago speech tomorrow night.

The speech will be broadcast at 7 p. m. (PST), by NBC and televised in the midwestern area by ABC. Dewey's aides said he would discuss how government policies friendly to labor, business and agriculture could "help build a healthy and vigorous America."

perated that it would require many bombs to destroy effective numbers of them.

Bomb's Purpose Twofold
The bomb thus becomes essentially a strategic weapon, to be used for two general purposes:

1. Destruction of cities in which war goods are produced or distributed, together with the people producing them.
2. Breaking the will of civilian populations to continue a war.

In considering all the possibilities of atomic weapon attack, matters of policy beyond the purely military aspects have been given grave consideration by national defense officials. This is one of them:

It is quite possible that an all-out atomic war eventually could destroy the economy of even the largest nation. When that military victory had been achieved, the victor might have to support the vanquished—even as in Germany and Japan.

Mrs. Katie Walker Passes Away at Melrose
Mrs. Katie Walker, 83, died Saturday, Oct. 23, at the Barclay Nursing Home at Melrose following a long period of ill health. Mrs. Barclay was born Feb. 12, 1865, in Indiana, and had made her home in this community for the last 11 years.

Surviving are the following sons and daughters: C. E. Walker, Roseburg; Perry J. Walker, Canada; William Walker, Whittier, Kan.; Frank Walker and Jasper Walker, both of Hutehinson, Kan.; Mrs. Martha Simons and Mina Vian, both of Canada, and Mrs. Blanche Schmucker, Abbeville, Kan.

The body has been removed to the Long & Orr Mortuary and funeral arrangements will be announced later pending word from relatives.

Law Violation Charged Follows Traffic Mishap
Julius F. Powell, Tiller, was cited to appear in Municipal Court today on charges of having no driver's license and failure to yield right of way, following an accident on Cass between Rose and Jackson streets Saturday, Chief of Police Calvin Baird reported.

The investigating officer reported Powell was attempting to pull away from the curb just as Roy Kiltow, 4515 N.E. 41st Street, Portland, was going by. Powell's car, pulling away from the curb, hit the rear fender of Kiltow's car with the left part of his front bumper, the officer reported.

Dewey's praise of Harold E. Stassen while the GOP nominee was campaigning in Minnesota revived talk that he might want his former rival for the presidential nomination in his cabinet.

Stassen, however, has told friends he would be interested in only two jobs—Secretary of State or Secretary of National Defense.

For the latter post, there still is talk that Senator Edward Martin of Pennsylvania is in the running.

Ferdinand Eberstadt, former War Production Board chairman, is mentioned often for the defense post. There is even some talk that Dewey might want to retain Secretary James Forrestal.

There has been almost no speculation on a possible appointee for Secretary of Labor.

Significantly, however, the only labor figure of any stature in the Dewey camp has been William L. McFetridge, general president of the International Union of Building Service Employees.

McFetridge will introduce Dewey for the Chicago speech tomorrow night.

The speech will be broadcast at 7 p. m. (PST), by NBC and televised in the midwestern area by ABC. Dewey's aides said he would discuss how government policies friendly to labor, business and agriculture could "help build a healthy and vigorous America."

Atom Bomb Not Relied On Alone to Win War

perated that it would require many bombs to destroy effective numbers of them.

Bomb's Purpose Twofold
The bomb thus becomes essentially a strategic weapon, to be used for two general purposes:

1. Destruction of cities in which war goods are produced or distributed, together with the people producing them.
2. Breaking the will of civilian populations to continue a war.

In considering all the possibilities of atomic weapon attack, matters of policy beyond the purely military aspects have been given grave consideration by national defense officials. This is one of them:

It is quite possible that an all-out atomic war eventually could destroy the economy of even the largest nation. When that military victory had been achieved, the victor might have to support the vanquished—even as in Germany and Japan.
