Deer Scarce in Reedsport Area; Varmints Blamed

Earl Murphey and Edgar Stevens of Reedsport have returned from a deer hunting trip in Eastern Oregon with a nice four-point buck. Many hunters from Reedsport found that the pleasures of the trip was their only reward as they returned without meat for their lockers.

Reedsport hunters also found sucks hard to find this season, with evidence that coyotes and cougar had killed or driven out the deer in many localities where good hunting formerly existed. A fairly good supply of both ducks and mudhens are reported on the Umpqua River and also on Siltcoos and Tahkenitch Lake, to the north. The season opens Oct. 29.
