"Scuse us while we mention McKay again—but did you see "Kiddie" McKay in last Friday's News-Review? Yup—he wuz listenin' to "Raggy Ann" in the Kiddie's Listening Room, no less! He has a green convertible scooter too, on which he rides there each afternoon.

Tonight at 7, George Valentine stands in a man marked for a murder frame-up, and discovers a plot which includes a doublecross and a grand robbery besides the murder, during "Stand-in for Murder," KHJ-Dan Lee's "Let George Do It" episode for tonight.

Gabriel Heatter was among those cited recently by the 10,000 members of Clara Lane's Friendship Center in New York as one of their favorite personalities. Mr. Heatter was named the most popular commentator, while Tallulah Bankhead was cited as their most popular actress and Joe E. Lewis their most popular comedian.

On Tuesday's "Strange Parades" program at 3:30 p. m., John Nesbitt will tell of "Strange Coincidences." Wednesday and Thursday he will devote his talk to the "Story of Little Adam Worth," a swindler of three million dollars. Friday—"Two Hoaxes." Nesbitt reported this truism in one of his recent broadcasts over KRNR—"There's one secret that's never kept. When you get a bargain, you've got to tell somebody about it."

Tomorrow night at 7:30, Nick and Nora Charles plan to invite the first person who rings their doorbell into their home for Thanksgiving dinner, and have a quiet evening, forgetting even about their stolen Frazer-Manhattan automobile. But their guest upsets their plans. He can't eat because he has lost his wife, Nick and Nora help him to find her, and their Thanksgiving dinner is spiced with excitement during the "Case of the Lost Appetite." What are they doin' havin' Thanksgiving dinner at this late date anyhow?
