Four New Earthquakes Are Reported in Nevada

RENO, Nev., Jan. 8—(AP)—Four new earthquakes, two of them with a noise "like a rumbling explosion" were reported in Verdi, nine miles west of Reno last night. At least one was felt sharply in Reno, but there were no reports of damage in either city.

The Reno vicinity was shaken by a long series of earth shocks beginning Dec. 27 and continuing more than a week. The most severe, Dec. 29, did widespread minor property damage. Seismographs recorded from 80 to 90 tremors in all, tapering off to a final, very faint shock early yesterday morning.

Then, at 7:41 p. m., Verdi residents felt the first of four "severe quakes." Mrs. Sophus Mortenson, interviewed by telephone said there had been three up to 7:55 p. m., PST; then she gave a little scream and said "we're having another one!"
