It Costs Nearly $85.00 to Buy a Full-Page Ad in The News-Review

Why, you ask, should anybody pay 85 good round dollars for the privilege of printing their message on one page of a daily paper?

Well, Let's Look at It This Way . . .

You have 200 suitcases for sale. They're good, serviceable suitcases and you're willing to sell them for, say, $5.

You want to tell all the prospective suitcase buyers in the county of this bargain.

Should you write each of them a letter? Too expensive and too slow. How about sending out post cards? Not very effective. You know how you throw such literature away, yourself.

How then to reach the greatest number of people for the least amount of money?

Why, Buy a Newspaper Ad!

Because the News-Review is read by more than 25,000 people of all ages. And you can tell each and every reader about your suitcase sale—on a full-page ad, which will in itself command attention—for $85.00.

To reach those 25,000 people by post card would cost more than $250.

—And $750 (in stamps alone) if you sent a first-class letter to each.

And You're Talking to An Interested Audience Who Pays for the Newspaper He's Reading . . .

Your ad isn't forced on him, doesn't interrupt his thoughts. It's there to be seen, read and remembered.
