Truman-Rayburn Rift Rumor Denied By Sabath; Ten Bills Advanced On House Agenda

By WILLIAM F. AREGOAST
WASHINGTON, May 17.—(AP)—Ten bills moved to the top of the House timetable today following conferences between President Truman and his House leaders.

The conferences also turned up a little talk—and much denial—of disagreement between the President and House Speaker Rayburn.

Chairman Sabath (D-Ill.) of the rules committee spurred a drive for early action on the ten bills after outlining them late yesterday on the White House steps.

They cover the fields of housing, a lobby investigation, crop insurance, federal buildings, statehood for Alaska, extension of rural telephone service, pay raises for government executives, displaced persons, minimum wages and general labor legislation.

Within the next week or so, Sabath told newsmen, he expects the Rules Committee to clear most of them for House debate.

Although Sabath's White House visit, following by only a few hours a conference between the President and Rayburn, was interpreted in some quarters as evidence of a rift between Mr. Truman and Rayburn, Sabath said this was not the case.

"There is no disagreement that I know of between the President and Speaker Rayburn," he told newsmen following his return to the Capitol.

Sabath said he had at the White House: "Sometimes the President and the Speaker don't agree" and "where they are in disagreement I try to smooth it out a bit."

The remarks he made to the White House reporters, Sabath explained, were offhand and were not intended to give the impression that all is not harmony between Mr. Truman and his House leaders.

Sabath said he went to the White House to get the President's views on bills now before the Rules Committee or soon to come before it. This Committee normally clears bills for floor debate when administration leaders give the go-ahead, and holds them back when the administration says so.

Typo Error Blamed
The impression that the President was miffed with Rayburn grew last week when a copy of a letter from the President to A. F. Whitney, rail union head, was made public.

The White House blamed typographical errors for phrases which read as criticism of congressional leaders who advocated compromise on labor legislation.

Rayburn led a group which unsuccessfully sought a compromise when the House had before it recently a bill to repeal the Taft-Hartley labor law. The President did not endorse the compromise, at least publicly.

Rayburn is known to feel that the House will not vote to repeal the Taft-Hartley Act without putting something in its place, regardless of the President's wishes. From a practical standpoint, his job is to get some kind of bill passed.

U. S. Women Plan Easy Dress To Meet British Royalty

LONDON, May 17.—(AP)—American women aim to dress in comfort for Thursday's presentation at court.

Most of the 60 or so who will be presented to King George and Queen Elizabeth said that what they will wear "depends on the weather."

The presentation is a highlight of the British coal and fashion season. Some 3,000 diplomats and socialites from all nations are invited to sip tea in Buckingham Palace for two hours and be "presented" to the royal family. The guests attend on one of two days, Wednesday or Thursday, alphabetically by their home countries.

In modern version of the age-old custom, few of them actually will meet the King and Queen. And some won't even see them as they mill about the spacious ivory and gold state apartments. But to have been invited and to have accepted is to have been "presented at court."

The rigid rules of correct dress have been relaxed since the war. Almost anything goes, in the way of an afternoon frock and a hat. The men, who aren't presented to the King and Queen anyway, can wear just about what they please from their "Sunday best" closet.

The More the Merrier

One good rule about parties: The more people attending, the easier it is for everyone to find a friendly companion.
