Scientist Says Robots May Become Our Masters

LOS ANGELES, May 31. —(AP)—Robots with chemical brains and glands may help man in the near future, but will they help him solve his biggest problem? Prof. Norbert Wiener of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, while predicting the likelihood of such robot slaves, told interviewers: "Machines may some day become our masters." Mechanical brains may some day do all our routine chores, asserted Dr. Wiener, mathematician and researcher in the field of electronic calculation. But he doubts that they will be able to solve what he considers the major human problem: The failure to think about "know-what" as well as "know-how."

LaBelles Trim Tony Terrors In Tag-Team Battle

By DAN MINDOLOVICH The usually excited mob saw the LaBelles boys grapple their way to a win over two Tonys at the Roseburg wrestling emporium Saturday night. The two-out-of-three-fall main go was a tag-team tussle of no small proportions and the conflict caused customers' blood pressures to soar considerably. In the semi-final, George Drake, a personable 18-year-old neophyte from Catalina Island, lost a one-fall clash to veteran Salvadoro Florez, but not before the Central American Spaniard was forced to employ all his tricks. He eventually took the go with a punishing figure-8, that apparently caused Drake some discomfort. In two 20-minute preliminaries, Rene LaBelle was awarded a match by Referee Elton Owen, when opponent Tony Falletti continued to fingerlace the Frenchy. Owen's repeated warnings that Falletti cease the dirty work brought no response, so the referee gave the go to LaBelle. Tony Ross defeated Pierre LaBelle, no relation to Rene, with a series of arm stomps in the other preliminary action, after 4:40 of scuffling. Pierre and Falletti started the action in the main-tussle and numerous tags by each team made it difficult to determine who was in the act without a program. Each Tony attempted to help his partner from outside the ropes and this, coupled with other dirty tactics, brought screams of rage and anguish from heated fans. Meanies Score First Virtue was dealt a severe blow as the initial falls to a dismayed audience saw Ross force Rene to cut it quits by applying vicious knee-slams to the chin after 11:30 of torrid action. Continued dirty tactics by the Tonys put the LaBelles in an untenable position early in the second fall. Extreme consternation was apparent in the bleachers as first Falletti, then Ross, came into the ring and tried to choke the life out of the personable Pierre by employing punishing knee-kicks to the neck. Owen caught the maneuvers in the nick of time and Pierre was spared a broken neck. Owen awarded the second fall to the LaBelles as a result of the dirty work.

Clearly chagrined, Falletti wanted to have it out with Owen, who is ever-ready to match wit with muscle against bruisers of that ilk. After the referee's mishap, in which fans helped out considerably with verbal headlocks and body slams, tempers calmed and fans retired to the refreshment stand. Much activity marked the third fall, with both Pierre and Rene trading blows quickly. This fast exchange by the cleaning puzzled Ross, who was not too certain with whom he was wrestling. Still puzzled, Tony tagged Falletti, who continued the action for the meanies. More fast exchanges by the LaBelles unmoved Falletti, who quickly snatched his guard. Rene and Pierre took turns dropping Falletti with numerous drop-kicks. This tactic eventually took the fight out of Falletti. The crowd, shown proof-positive clean living had triumphed, walked out of the arena in an orderly fashion. The two Tonys remained in the ring, apparently pondering the cruel turn of events. Eventually they retired to the dressing room, amidst heckling from self-satisfied customers and poorly-aimed paper cups.

Finals Is Torrid

Clearly chagrined, Falletti wanted to have it out with Owen, who is ever-ready to match wit with muscle against bruisers of that ilk. After the referee's mishap, in which fans helped out considerably with verbal headlocks and body slams, tempers calmed and fans retired to the refreshment stand.

Civil War Bitterness Dying Out But U. S. Still Paying In Dollars

By HAL BOYLE NEW YORK.—(AP)—The earth is a tomb of dead armies. And very soon indeed it will swallow the last survivors of the American Civil War. On Memorial Day, 84 years after Lee offered his sword in surrender to Grant at Appomattox, only a handful were left. Just how many no one knows. Life Magazine, after a nationwide search, discovered a few unlisted veterans' organization members, but the Federal Pension officials, it publishes, say the current issue pictures of 30 Union and 35 Confederate survivors. It isn't particularly a tribute to Southern hardihood that there are now Confederate veterans alive. The South, drained of manpower, had to take in soldiers younger, including boy volunteers of ten. It will be a tremendous event in America when the last of these grizzled veterans passes into legend. The earth then will hold in silence all of the 2,000,000 or more men who fought in the famous war of brother against brother. First Billion-Dollar War It was probably history's first billion-dollar war. The price was heavy in terms of blood, but that bill was paid long ago. The bill in terms of dollars is still being paid. The bill for the four-year fight cost the North alone $3,000,000,000, some 110,000 combat dead and 221,791 lives lost by disease. The North eventually also will have paid out an additional $5,000,000,000 in pension and compensation claims before the federal government officially closes its book on this fratricidal conflict. A year ago the Veterans Administration still had 16,372 Civil War cases on its rolls, mostly dependent and veterans.
