stitution that can give us a rebirth of ideals and thus justify its existence," he added. "It must do this or die."

"Our founding fathers had one great ideal as they brought forth this nation," he continued. "They said, 'This Nation under God.' Behind this idea there was the blending of the non-Conformist movement of English Protestantism, the philosophy of natural rights of man developed by John Locke and the elements of reason and justice of the French Revolution.

"Regardless of where these ideals had development, they were caught up in our Declaration of Independence and recognized as coming from the supreme ruler of mankind.

Rights of Man Foremost
"The defense of these ideals

has cost many lives, and will continue to cost as the years go on. Being an American does not mean that one is simply born in America, but that he stands for the great freedoms springing from the ideals set down in American history. This revolution of the rights of man stands as a challenge to all humanity, and as long as we believe in these rights they will have to be defended.

"Un-American activities are those which hinder the advance of liberty under law, or that betray the equality of human rights, or that transgress the freedom of the individual conscience, or profane the sacredness of human personality. Any impairment of civil rights, or discrimination on account of race or creed is Un-American.

"Age cannot wither, nor custom stale her infinite variety," some ancient bard thus eulogized a lady of his acquaintance, but the phrase might well be applied to the great American institution, the Circus. In all the years that it has raised and lowered its "big top" from Maine to California, and from Florida to Oregon, age has not withered nor custom staled its appeal to youngsters of all ages.

Elephants look the same today as they did when P. T. Barnum swung around the country with the famous Jumbo, but there is a vast difference today in the way they are presented, for now, each and every elephant must be an actor. Not only must they help build the "tent city" and stand on display in the menagerie, but they must also do their bit on the big show's program.

The elephants with the Clyde Beatty Circus are considered the best trained in all spangland. The big show—and it is big—being one of America's two biggest shows with over 700 people, is coming to Roseburg Saturday, June 4 for afternoon and night performance at the Circus Grounds west on Garden Valley Road, which means that circus fans will have the opportunity to see many of the world's greatest circus attractions, headed as they are by Clyde Beatty, the most fearless wild animal trainer the world has ever known, and his death-defying wild animal display.

The performances, starting at 2:30 and 8 p.m., open with a gorgeously produced super-spectacle in which great masses of people and herds of animals take part.

cell floor. The men apparently had a saw and a wrench which had been smuggled in to them, deputy Warden Gene Halley said. The saw cut the bars and the wrench took off a lock-protecting plate on a door.

A plank from new construction within the prison was placed against the 15-foot south wall and the men went over. The guard opened fire, but whether either man was hit could not be determined.

hurred to the nearby Glide Ranger Station, where Forest Ranger George Churchill summoned aid from the Roseburg Fire Department and took charge of the searching operations.

The river was dragged, starting about 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon and continuing until darkness. The search was resumed by the Roseburg Fire Department with aid of several Glide residents early Monday morning. Although the Roseburg firemen ceased their efforts late in the afternoon, people at Glide continued looking until they found the body in the evening.

Deputy Coroner Douglas Tudor was called to the scene when the body was found. The Roseburg Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements.

At least four boats—including the Roseburg Fire Department's rescue boat—were used in the search. A diving suit was donned by one of the searchers to inspect deep channels in the river. Food prepared by Mrs. Vivian Padelford of the Red Barn, North Umpqua eating establishment, was served to the searching party.

The North Umpqua and Little Rivers meet headlong at the junction, then turn off at 90 degrees as the North Umpqua. Heavy rapids and eddies are evident at this point. The two streams were once featured in Ripley's "Believe-It-Or-Not" as the only two rivers in the world that crash head-on, then continue as one stream at a right angle to their junction.

Lovelace was born May 19, 1930, in Sprague River, Ore., and came to Glide two years ago to make his home.

Surviving are his mother, Nina Lovelace, Glide; a sister, Lieth, Glide; two brothers, John, Bend, James, Seattle; and his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Casebeer, Glide.

Funeral services in charge of the Roseburg Funeral Home will be held Wednesday, June 1, at 2 p. m. in the Glide Church, with Rev. Karl Faulkner officiating. Interment will follow in Burt Cemetery.

Dog And Lion Are Strange Pals

Here art two of the chummiest and strangest pals in the animal world.—Leo a lion, and Lucky, an ordinary dog.

Both are owned by Clyde Beatty, the world's greatest wild animal trainer and owner of the huge Clyde Beatty Circus, coming to Roseburg, Saturday, June 4, for afternoon and night performances at the circus grounds west on Garden Valley Road.

Leo, a lion cub, has been Beatty's special pet from the time of his birth, along with Lucky who considers himself a member of the Beatty household and is very reluctant in sharing family friendships with the lion.

As time wore on, Leo, the lion, grew bigger, stronger, and more dominating—as lions are prone to be, and gave Lucky to understand that he too, was something to be reckoned with. While Lucky, seemingly miffed that a mere lion should usurp part of Beatty's affection, learned that lions don't like their ears nipped.

So, thereupon, he decided to train Leo his own way. By seizing the lion by one ear, Lucky now leads the lion around at will, even if the big "cat" is several times his size.

Soon, Leo is going to be altogether too old for freedom and will be placed in a cage along with the fifty other ferocious beasts of the jungle which the world famous Beatty battles twice daily in the all-steel arena.

In addition to Clyde Beatty and his world renowned wild animal display, the 1949 program features many of the most outstanding attractions in the land of sawdust and spangles. Spangland stars and features from all parts of the world.

Performances will be given at 2:30 and 8 p.m., with the main gates opening at 1:30 and 7:00 p.m.

Fire Damage Hits Martin Box Plant

A fuel bin fire at the Martin Box Company, Oakland, Saturday at 6:30 p. m., brought out the Sutherland and Oakland Fire Departments and two pieces of equipment from the Roseburg Fire Department.

Considerable water damage to the boiler room underneath the bin was noted. Fire burned supporting roof timbers, and a company employee, reportedly overcome with smoke, was revived by firemen.

A 500-gallon-a-minute pumper on the company premises was also used to extinguish the blaze. It was nearly 9 p. m. before the Roseburg trucks returned home. Firemen reported it was necessary to pump large amounts of water into sawdust, to make certain no sparks remained.

trends in the Soviet zone and is what we think the new Democratic Germany should look like. It is our contribution to the unification of Germany and not intended for any one part."

Western Plan Rejected
Westerners had expected Russia would race the Allies in setting up a rival republic in the East when it became apparent that four-power control of all Germany could not be revived. West Germany is expected to have a functioning government by mid-July. The proposal of the West that the Western constitution be extended to all Germany has been rejected by the Russians in Paris, but the Russians have not yet introduced their Eastern German constitution. Kastner was the first East German to indicate publicly that the Russians have no set schedule for putting the East constitution into effect.

Lilienthal will be fired on grounds of "incredible mismanagement." He has said further that numerous persons of strong Communist leanings have been permitted to work on atomic secrets.

Lilienthal said the latter statement has "cast a cloud" on 60,000 atomic workers.
